Suez Build-Up Speeded On Eve of Nasser Talks

Today's Developments

1. Cyprus governor clears way for stationing of troops from nine nations, including U.S., on British bastion 250 miles from Suez.
2. Egypt readies indictment that could send three accused British spies to gallows.
3. Arab workers threaten to quit Mid-East oilfields.
4. Australia army chief ready to mobilize division if Britain calls for troops.
5. Twenty-six troopships loading men and equipment at French ports. Round-clock airlift of troops to Cyprus continues.
6. Prime Minister Eden rejects Labor demands for special session of Parliament immediately.

(Reuters, AP and UP Dispatches)

Governor Sir John Harding today signed an order providing for the presence in Cyprus of "visiting forces" from the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon and France.

The order, made under the Visiting Forces Act, appeared in a special issue of the official Gazette and came into operation today.

This is the first time that the act has been put into operation in Cyprus. It follows Britain's approval for a French contingent to be based in Cyprus temporarily in view of the Suez crisis.

At almost the same moment, British authorities on Cyprus revealed that a series of bomb explosions damaged the closely-guarded Episkopi cantonment of the joint Middle East command headquarters early today.

Gasoline bombs set off a fire that was later extinguished. A sergeants' mess was destroyed and the roofs of two officers' messes were damaged. An unexploded time bomb and an unexploded gasoline bomb were found in the debris.

2nd Air Crash In Alaska Kills 11

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A United States Air Force B-50 weather plane crashed on a tiny island in the Susitna river in Alaska and exploded Friday. Ten of the crew were killed and the other is believed dead.

The island, 50 miles northwest of Anchorage, is so small that helicopters were forced to land on a mud bank a quarter mile away.

An air force spokesman said the plane apparently crashed downward instead of coming in at an angle.

The plane was from Elelson air force base, 26 miles from Fairbanks. Weather planes make routine flights over the north pole, the Aleutians and the Bering sea.

Mayor Pleads For State Aid

(From AP and UP Dispatches)

CLINTON, Tenn.—Clinton officials today took steps to organize a "home guard" unit as another scheduled segregation rally tonight posed a threat of further mob action in protest of racial integration at the Clinton High School.

Mayor W. E. Lewallen of Clinton asked today for state reinforcements to help preserve peace in this town where businessmen sat in their darkened stores Friday night with guns across their knees as a huge and riotous crowd surged through the streets of Clinton.

Lewallen said that nothing has been heard from an appeal to the state for aid and added, "It's a hot potato and they don't want to touch it."

Tennessee's five pro-segregation organizations announced they will jointly sponsor the Clinton segregation rally tonight at the Anderson county courthouse. The principal speaker will be criminal court Judge Raulson Schoolfield of Chattanooga, who was an unsuccessful candidate for governor on a segregation platform.

Lawyer Buford Lewallen, son of the mayor, said a home guard would be organized this afternoon and would be on hand at the rally tonight.

'There's Going To Be Bloodshed'

Mayor Luwallen predicted today that "there's going to be bloodshed before the night is over" unless Clinton's small police force gets reinforcements.

"I've talked to everybody but the governor (who was reported unavailable today) and they've assured me that they are closer to this thing than we think they are," Luwallen said. "They said they are watching it very closely.

"But our people can't understand why this disturbance was allowed to go on, especially on a state highway, without some state action.

"Somebod's going to get hurt. Those boys that mobbed us are coming back and they're going to try to tear up this town."

Luwaallen said it was "a miracle" there nas not more extensive damage here nast night.

Most of the pupils at Clinton High, which admitted 12 negroes this week, were reported by their school leaders to be ready to accept integration. But there were a number of holdouts. Apparently most of the teenagers in the crowd last night started out for a good time but then were swept into a frenzy by the super-charged situation.

Autos occupied by negroes were damaged but the occupants managed narrow escapes from demonstrators, heated to boiling point by a week of agitation from white citizens council leaders.

Single Agitator Cause of Trouble

In less than a week, court-ordered mixing of races in the local high school has changed this peace high school has changed this peaceful Tennessee town into a place of racial tenseness and hatred.

Last Monday Clinton High became the first state - supported high school in Tennessee to end segregation when it admitted 12 Negro students along with about 750 whites.

The town's leaders agree that most of the trouble was stirred up by a fiery segregationist from Washington who never saw this town of 4,000 persons until last Sunday.

"Everything had been quiet until he arrived," said Sheriff Joe Owen. "Now we've got a pretty ugly situation on our hands."

He was talking of John Kasper, 26, executive secretary of the "Seaboard White Citizens' Council" of Washington.

"We will go on with our picketing and fight until we win," Kasper told a reporter. He promised to form a White Citizens' Council here, and since Monday, the school has been picketed, signs have been paraded bearing such legends as "Go home, coons," "Coon season open," and "Keep Negroes out."

Kasper conducted nightly meetings on the Anderson courthouse lawn, harranguing against integration and against local school and law-enforcement officials.

Over and over, he has repeated: "We must keep the Negroes out."

MANSFIELD, Tex. (UP) — A troubled quiet settled over Mansfield today and there seemed no immediate danger that violence would erupt over an attempt by six Negroes to enroll in an all-white high school.

The Negroes, armed with a court order, were to have enrolled Friday. But they were frightened away by more than 400 sullen whites who blocked off entrances to the school grounds and milled ominously about.

Gov. Allan Shivers ordered two Texas Rangers in for a look. He also instructed school officials to transfer out of the district any student, white or black, whose attendance could reasonably be calculated to incite violence.

Lake Swim Draws Hundreds; Sun Promised for Weekend

11 DIE IN FIRST DAY OF HOLIDAY WEEKEND

By The Canadian Press

Canada started a three-day holiday weekend marking Labor Day with 11 persons killed in traffic accidents since 6 p.m. (local time) Friday.

The United Press reported 45 persons killed in accidents on streets and highways in the U.S. since 6 p.m. (local time) Friday.

Excellent weather is expected for the Labor Day weekend, according to weatherman William Mackie of Gonzales Observatory. Sunshine will prevail, with light, cool winds and seasonable temperatures. (See holiday story page 15).

Saanich Golden Jubilee Perpetual Trophy — top award to the fastest teenage lake swimmer in the district—hung in balance at press-time today.

Thirty-two youngsters aged 14 to 16 were battling across the two-mile course between Elk Lake's Happyland and Beaver Lake beach.

They were the third of three age groups to kick off this morning in a two-mile swim toward a brilliant array of 20 cups and other prizes.

At press-time, Monty Vanden, 17, had made the best time—just over an hour.

First race of the three-wave swim saw 16-year-old Monty Vanden take an easy win with a time of 60 minutes and 30 seconds for the two-mile course.

Age group was 17-19, with Monty an under-age entry. A Grade 10 student at Victoria High, Monty dreams of swimming Lake Okanagan.

Second was Jim Smith, 17, with a time of 62 minutes, 40 seconds. Jim is an apprentice carpenter.

Third place went to Lawrence Todd with a time of 72 minutes, 55 seconds.

Winners in the socond group were 11-year-old Ralph Mills, first, with a time of 69 minutes, 23 seconds; Keith Mulloy, 14, second, 71 minutes 34 seconds; Dennis Parnell, 13, third, 71 minutes 35 seconds. Only one of 17 starters in the under-13 failed to finish.

On stepping ashore each swimmer was led through a uniform guard of Eagles drill team and band members who saluted the youngsters.

Sandown Racing Starts Sept. 15

The Sandown Park race meeting, canceled Wednesday after a dispute between horse owners and the association over purse money, was rescheduled today.

The Ascot Jockey Club this morning completed arrangements with the horsemen for a two-week meeting at the suburban track near Sidney.

The meeting will open Sept. 15 and close Oct. 1.

Racing will be held daily except Sunday.

Last-minute negotiations started Friday resulted in the change of plan.

The minimum purse money of $500 per race remains the same as the Ascot Jockey Club previously offered the horsemen.

However, two co-features a day have been added. On Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, these will be worth $600; on Wednesdays $600 and $700, and on Saturdays $600 and $800.

The Ascot Jockey Club lost heavily on last year's meeting at Sandown; this year it is prepared to lose money again in order to preserve racing for Victoria.

A leading horse owner in Vancouver said today:

"Victoria needs racing; it always was a good racing town, and I'm certain Victoria fans want to see racing again. I'm certain that this effort on the part of the Ascot Jockey Club and the horsemen will be appreciated."

OTTAWA COMMENT

At Ottawa, Lt.-Gen. H. D. Graham, chief of the general staff, said he had never heard of any plans for sending Canadian forces to Cyprus. Defence Minister Campney and his deputy, Frank R. Miller, were unavailable; they are touring NATO establishments in Europe.

Gen. Graham said he did not believe Governor Harding's order had any particular significance to Canada.

When the Visiting Forces Act is brought into operation, Gen. Graham said, it is normal to make it applicable to the forces of any country that might possibly be concerned.

At Sydney, Australia, Army Minister John Cramer said a fully-equipped battalion of the Royal Australian Regiment is ready if a call for troops should be made in the Suez Canal crisis. Another battalion can be mobilized at short notice and a complete division of 17,000 men could be called up if necessary, he said.

But Cramer added that the Australian army has not been placed on the alert over the Suez situation and no move has been made to cancel army leave.

At the French port of Marseille Friday thousands of French troops boarded ships bound for the Mediterranean. France's round-the-clock airlift of crack troops to Cyprus continued without let-up.

'WHO NEEDS MONEY?'

B.C. Woman Refuses $50,000 Inheritance

VANCOUVER (CP)—A former Burnaby, B.C., woman who was left $50,000 by a long-lost brother doesn't want the money.

Mrs. Ida Mary Topham Lewis, 70, now of Haddenham, Buckinghamshire, said she doesn't need the money and isn't enthusiastic about the legacy.

Mrs. Lewis was the object of an intensive search in B.C. recently and was finally located in England. A brother in California bequeathed her the money.

"What's $50,000 in pounds?" she asked the reporter who showed her the clippings. It's about £17,142.

Manchester U. Takes Lead In Football

LONDON (AP) — League champion Manchester United soared back to its old place at the top of the soccer standing today with a 3-0 home victory over Portsmouth.

Chill winds and driving rain kept crowds small again for the third straight Saturday, but the teams turned in some blazing stuff with Sunderland's 8-1 win over Charlton Athletic topping the list of monster scores.

Preston, without a point in four previous matches, slammed Cardiff City 6-0. Newly promoted Sheffield Wednesday hammered Newcastle 4-0. And Sheffield United, down in the second division and striving to get back, took a 6-1 away victory over Barnsley.

ONE NAME RECURS IN WILLS

Deaths of 29 Rich Widows 'Not Adequately Explained'

EASTBOURNE, England (UP)—Scotland Yard officials hinted today that they are on the trail of a definite suspect in the mysterious deaths of 30 wealthy women.

They said examination of more than 400 wills disclosed that the name of one man appeared in many of them, but they refused to announce his name.

Scotland Yard threw reinforcements of detectives into the hunt to fulfill a police prediction that enough evidence will be uncovered to make an arrest by the middle of next week.

All but one of the 30 deaths in question "are not adequately explained," Scotland Yard's Detective Superintendent Herbert Hannan said.

A well-known Sussex hypnotist was interviewed this week, in an effort to learn if a man with hypnotic power could induce a person to make a will in his favor, and whether he could persuade that person to act in a way which would cause death, apparently by accident or natural causes.

Officials said the hypnotist demonstrated to them how persons could be put into such a state of hypnosis and that they could be made to "follow certain lines of action suggested to them."

. . . CYPRUS

that a number of the ships soon will sail for Cyprus.

Both France and Britain have been building up their military forces in the Mediterranean since July 26 when Egypt seized the canal.

Meanwhile, at London the five-power Suez conference committee headed by Prime Minister Menzies of Australia put the finishing touches to the canal plan it will deliver to Egypt's President Nasser Monday. The committee is due in Cairo Sunday.

The committee will deliver a western sponsored proposal, backed by 18 of the 22 countries which attended the recent London conference on the canal issue, that an international board operate the canal.

Diplomatic sources say Menzies will face the "toughest and roughest" fight of his career when the talks begin. They say the Egyptian mood has become increasingly rigid in its opposition to any suggestion of widening control of the waterway.

At Cairo, the Egyptian attorney-general was drafting inthree accused British spies to dictments which could send the gallows.

Egypt, burning with resentment at Anglo-French "pressure tactics"—especially the buildup on Cyprus—moved against the accused Britons under its wartime code which orders death for anyone transmitting military secrets to a foreign country. Egypt technically is in a state of war with Israel.

Speculation in Cairo was that the spy trials would begin next week, perhaps simultaneously with the Menzies-Nasser conversations

As the canal controversy continued to develop, other Middle East troubles boiled up.

The biggest clashes in months were reported along the Egyptian-Israeli frontier. Egypt complained to UN truce supervisors that Israeli forces killed 13 Egyptian soldieds in three separate raids on Egyptian territory.

Threats they would quit work in Mid-East oilfields, key source of Europe's fuel supplies, were issued by the Federation of Arab Worker.

In Britain, Prime Minister Eden resisted growing uneasiness, stirred by Labor Party speechmakers, against the use of force outside the United Nations. Eden rejected a Labor demand he call Parliament into urgent session.

Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell said in a letter to the government Friday—his second within a month—that it is essential to recall members "not later than the week after next" so that Parliament would have an opportunity to discuss the Suez situation before the government took any new decisions.

"SET FOR WAR"

The Manchester Guardian, Liberal, warns editorially that the government is "preparing to go to war immediately" if Egypt turns down the 18-country proposals for international control of the Suez canal.

The News Chronicle, also Liberal, criticizes the government for deciding to permit the stationing of French troops on Cyprus. "We give the impression of being more intent than ever on dictating rather than negotiating a settlement," The Chronicle says.

In turning down Gaitskell's request, the government statement said: "The date for the recall of Parliament cannot be fixed until the government have had an opportunity of considering the outcome of the discussions due to begin in Cairo on Monday."

Canada's External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson left Ottawa last night for a special Paris meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council next week on the Suez Canal crisis, and a three-week series of consultations with his colleagues on NATO's committee of "three wise men."

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By DINAH KERR and IRVING STRICKLAND

Question: Saanich is celebrating its 50th birthday today. How long do you think it will be before the municipality is as large as Victoria city in population? (1951 census figures: Victoria, 51,331; Saanich, 28,481).

Derek Carrigan, druggist, 3943A Quadra: "I'll give her five years. I think Saanich will equal Victoria in no time at all. Lots are too high-priced in Victoria. That's why I moved out here."

Howroyd Carrigan

Mrs. J. Howroyd, 1710 Mortimer: "I imagine Saanich will catch up to Victoria within 12 years. Look at the rate it's growing right now. The expansion out here is just amazing."

George Ditchburn, realtor, 3551 Saanich road: "Undoubtedly Saanich is growing faster than Victoria and will soon overtake her. It's hard to say how many years this will take. Of course, the two may be combined before very long."

Ditchburn Horth

Mrs. H. G. Horth, Land's End Road: "I wouldn't like to guess the number of years, but I am sure that Saanich will keep growing until it is larger than Victoria. I've lived in the municipality for several years and have seen a great many changes. Actually, I'm in favor of amalgamation."

Horace Taylor, bulldozer operator, 651 Alpha Street: "As a matter of fact, I don't think Saanich will ever overtake Victoria in population. There are just too many farms out there."

Taylor Preston

J. Preston, hardware salesman, 3440 Whittier Avenue: "I think Saanich will soon be [illegible] Victoria. Saanich is [illegible] in, whereas the city has had it as far as population goes. It wouldn't take Saanich any time at all if they allowed industry there."

B.C. ELECTION ROUND-UP

Concessions Made to BCE 'Cause for Alarm'—Turner

VANCOUVER (BUP) — CCF candiates at a Vancouver East election meeting Friday blasted the handling of public power under Premier Bennett's government.

Arthur Turner, veteran MLA, said the question of public power is a top issue in the election. The public must know what the government's policy is in this matter, he said.

"Bennett's silence (on the power issue) must be interpreted as knowledge that he has something to hide," charged Mr. Turner.

He said that the government concessions to the B.C. Electric are "cause for alarm."

The Premier's refusal to allow enquiry into charges against former Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers and holding back of the RCMP report "show an utter contempt for honest dealing in public affairs," said Mr. Turner.

"When Bennett comes in the door, democracy flies out the window."

Douglas Speaks Here on Tuesday

Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan will speak in Victoria Tuesday during his six-day B.C. election campaign for the CCF.

Mr. Douglas will be joined by all Greater Victoria CCF candidates at a meeting in Central Junior High School at 8 p.m.

Irwin Should Quit

CLOVERDALE, B.C. (CP) —James Rhodes, CCF candidate for Delta riding in Sept. 19 B.C. election, said Speaker Tom Irwin of the legislature should resign from the Social Credit party.

Mr. Rhodes said the speaker, who is seeking re-election in the Delta riding, says he is a member of the government "but does not agree with half they do." He said Mr. Irwin should resign from the party and sit as an independent member or "get back on the bandwagon."

"You can't sit on the fence and be a member of the government and at the same time properly represent the people," Mr. Rhodes said.

'Red Herring'

LADYSMITH (CP)—Labor Minister Wicks, speaking in support of Social Credit candidate Rev. Charles W. Parker, former MLA for Peace River and now Cowichan-Newcastle nominee, said opposition criticism "is a red herring for the people."

Mr. Wicks said the opposition has constantly asked the present government to go to the people. "Now their criticisms are doing nothing but confusing the public."

'Ducks and Drakes'

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—CCF Leader Robert Strachan accused Premier Bennett Thursday night of lying and deceiving the people.

He accused Attorney-General Robert Bonner of playing "ducks and drakes" with democracy and said neither Bonner nor former lands minister Robert Sommers has the moral right to stand for public office so long as an RCMP report on Sommers is kept secret.

Speaking for an hour to an audience of about 150 in the CCF hall here, Mr. Strachan attacked Social Credit policy on debt reduction, taxation, forest management and hospital insurance.

Strachan

Answering a question from the floor regarding the Sommers case, he said if he were premier he would not let a minister of his resign if he were innocent. He would announce his stand publicly and would not do what Premier Bennett has done.

"Bennett hasn't said a word to this day and probably knows as much about it as anyone. He must have seen the RCMP report." He said if he were the premier he wouldn't allow "the bumbling political finagling" of the attorney-general.

"Had the attorney-general been interested in the welfare of the public he would have disclosed the RCMP report."

He charged that the attorney-general withheld information in the report deliberately for political purposes.

Strachan said the premier's boast that he had reduced public debt to $191,000,000 was an example of a downright lie. He said that debt reduction was a fable and charged the government with keeping two sets of books.

Judgment Withheld

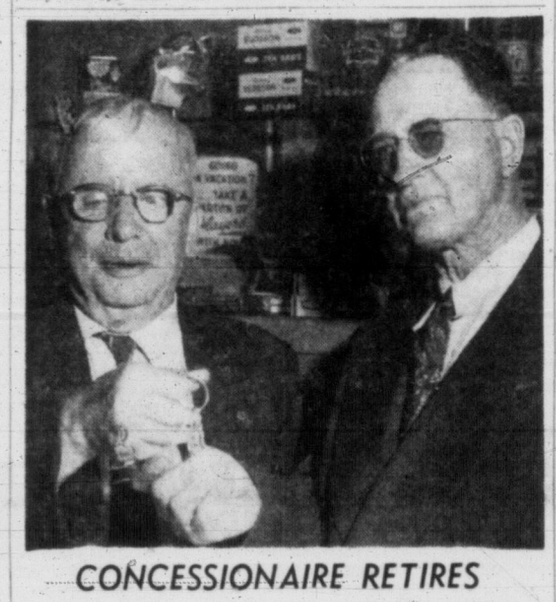
VANCOUVER (BUP)—Tom Irwin, Speaker of the last legislature and Social Credit candidate for Delta, says the Social Credit party is withholding judgment on a former cabinet minister pending the outcome of his case in the B.C. courts.

Speaking at a Delta nominating convention, Mr. Irwin referred to former lands and forest minister R. B. Sommers who is suing Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy for slander.

Mr. Irwin said: "Those unfortunate circumstances came about as something the party had no control over."

"We allow people to do what they want," he said. "If they don't do the things that live up to the tenets of Social Credit, then we don't want them in the party."

"But, as always, we will hold judgment until we know for sure."



CONCESSIONAIRE RETIRES

Retiring after more than 10 years running Canadian National Institute for the Blind concession in Belmont Building is Horace Woodfield, here passing keys over to Clayton Hamilton, his successor who formerly ran the CNI concession beside the Public Library on Yates Street.

CHIEF CHARGED—Police Chief Charles Lockwood of Marmora, in eastern Ontario has been charged with theft from the mails. The chief had been helping investigate the theft of $8,500 from a bank shipment two weeks ago. He was arrested by Ontario Provincial Police.

Perry's Son Named

Prince George lawyer Frank Perry, 28, son of former Liberal cabinet minister Harry Perry, has been nominated Liberal candidate in the Fort George riding.

His opposition will be Education Minister Ray Williston, and CCF-er Walter Kienzle, a farmer, who was promised by party backers they will harvest his crop for him while he campaigns.

Other nominations:

At Kamloops, Victor Mauro, 36, has been nominated CCF candidate. His opposition will be Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi and Liberal T. P. Wilson.

Progressive Conservative candidates in Vancouver-Burrard will be James A. Macauley, 27, and Wilfred Caine, 66.

Glyn Thomas, 28, has been nominated second Labor-Progressive candidate in the North Vancouver riding. His running mate is Charles Caron.

Oilman Boosts Bennett For Northern Policies

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Political Reporter

FORT ST. JOHN—Frank McMahon, president of the West Coast Transmission Company, extended an enthusiastic welcome to Premier Bennett here Friday and said:

"I hope everyone will support you in your election campaign." His firm is engaged in a gigantic oil and gas development program in the north and is building the Peace River-to-Vancouver gas pipeline.

Mr. McMahon said other governments had tried to develop the Peace River country but he did not think they had "tried very hard."

He gave fullest credit to Mr. Bennett and his cabinet for taking the PGE Railway to Prince George and planning its construction to Fort St. John.

Government officials, B.C. industrialists, newspaper men, and guests from all over the United States, fairly gasped with surprise when the millionaire oilman said:

"We have tried for nearly 20 years to get things going up here. We tried the Pattullo government and the John Hart government. But we had to wait for the Bennett government to get any kind of action."

Mr. McMahon stated afterwards that he was not a member of the Social Credit Party, and had no interest in politics apart from the fact that the Social Credit government had encouraged northern development.

"We have tried for 20 years to invest our money up here and at last we have succeeded," Mr. McMahon told his applauding audience.

Premier Bennett said no man was entitled to more credit than Mr. McMahon for his "magnificent northern enterprise" and, he pointed out, the by-products of Mr. McMahon's development would provide tremendous traffic for the PGE Railway.

"This PGE is going to Fort St. John and north to the Beaton river," Mr. Bennett said.

"We owe a great deal to the inspiration of such men as Mr. McMahon. Without such men it might not have been possible to lay the foundations of what will be known to history as the glorious north of British Columbia."

Politicians and the CBC

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT was perhaps too rushed in its last hours to realize the gravity of certain affairs in the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. The unsatisfactory exchanges on this subject leave some vital questions unanswered. They will require an answer later on.

The C.B.C. was introduced into the House of Commons when Mr. Solon Low, leader of the Social Credit Party, declared that the publicly-owned radio and television system harbored Communists and distributed Communist propaganda.

He was referring to a play about the Industrial Workers of the World, the so-called "Wobblies," a famous left-wing movement in the United States about the time of the First World War.

Dr. J. J. McCann, minister of national revenue, who is responsible for the C.B.C.'s relations with the Government, made an extraordinary reply to Mr. Low. He said: "Apparently there are Communists everywhere, and they infiltrate into organizations of government as well as into places of industry."

This remark was widely interpreted as meaning that Communists have infiltrated the C.B.C. as Mr. Low had alleged. But a few days later Dr. McCann explained that was only making a general statement about Communist infiltration. He did not mean that this had occurred in the C.B.C.

Dr. McCann added, however, that he regretted the C.B.C.'s action in broadcasting the play about the Wobblies because it would revive old feelings of social bitterness. He would be on his guard, he said, to prevent a recurrence of such a mistake.

Both Dr. McCann and Mr. Low seem to be confused about the Wobblies. Their movement was certainly radical and, in the view of many people, dangerous. It was not part of general Communist conspiracy which got under way after the Wobblies had disappeared. They were enemies of the Communist International.

Whether the C.B.C. was wise in broadcasting its play about a radical workingmen's movement is a matter of opinion. The C.B.C. doubtless makes mistakes like other public bodies, including the Government and Parliament.

It should never be forgotten, however, that the C.B.C. is an absolutely independent body, so far as its programs are concerned, and the Government has no right to interfere with them. If Dr. McCann or any other politician is allowed to interfere in these matters the C.B.C. will become involved inevitably in partisan politics. Its independence will be destroyed.

It is no part of the Government's business to censor the C.B.C.'s broadcasts or to protect the public from material which it considers undesirable. Our radio system is founded on the assumption that an adult population is capable of making up its own mind on social questions and that it is entitled to hear all sides of those questions. For this purpose it pays huge sums annually to support the C.B.C.

If the C.B.C. were infiltrated by Communists, if it were broadcasting Communist propaganda—as it certainly is not—its managers should be dismissed; for in the case of international Communism we are not dealing with a legitimate social movement but with an agent of a hostile foreign power.

On the other hand, if the C.B.C. is to become a kind of Nice Nellie of the air, if it is afraid to open its channels to social debate on the most controversial questions, if the public cannot hear all sides of all such questions from its own radio system, then we had better pack up the C.B.C. altogether.

Time to Hunt, Time to Worry

ANOTHER HUNTING SEASON opened today and with it came the usual apprehension.

Within the next few days or weeks, unless the pattern has changed radically, newspaper readers will be informed that someone has been shot in the woods, has been lost or has narrowly escaped serious injury.

The virtual certainty of such news items stems from two primary causes: An increasing number of people are going hunting and far too [illegible] the woods or in the use of firearms.

Because we are relatively remote from frontier living, woodlore and automatic safety education in the use of guns are not part of the present generation's conventional training. At this season, and this season only, a number of urbanites attempt to revert to a type of life which required and once developed as second nature particular skills now seldom used.

Those skills can still be learned, preferably at an early age by boys from fathers who are experienced and careful. Many potentially good woodsmen are being developed in that way. This year, however, a change in the regulations prevents them from hunting with their fathers until they are 14.

Perhaps the authorities might look a little more deeply into that [illegible] have young men hunting in the woods for years to come. The earlier they learn how to conduct themselves, the better. Conceivably special permission might be given to those even below 14 to gain experience in the field under the supervision of men of proven ability and safety consciousness.

'Are You There?'

IT IS REASSURING TO BE TOLD that the telephone of the future—the instrument which will present a visual image of the person on the other end of the line as well as transmit conversation—will be equipped with a mechanism to switch off the picture.

The man roused from bed, with hair standing on end and probably wearing inelegant night attire, will not have to make a spectacle of himself when he picks up the receiver and says "Hello." Nor will the young lady with her hair in curl pins preparing for the evening date.

Without the image of the listener automatically displayed, it will still be possible to read a book while receiving the outpourings of a telephone bore. It will be possible, even, to retain stand-ins to murmur "uh-huh" at appropriate moments while taking a coffee break from a telephone monologue.

On the other hand, it will still be possible for an unseen voice at the other end to pop the old and exasperating question, "Guess who this is!" But perhaps the phone of the future will have another button that can be pressed to deliver a mild, though not too mild, electric shock to the ear of people who have made and still make this communications medium a small horror.

'Where Duty And Glory Lead'

With reference to your editorial in the issue for Aug. 29: It would indeed be regrettable if the old 5th Brigade were to fade into oblivion. At this critical period in World history I think it would also be a grave mistake on the part of those responsible.

"Everywhere, Where Duty and Glory Lead." This is the proud motto of the Royal Regiment of Artillery and the Royal Canadian Artillery, of which the 5th Western Harbour Defence Bty. forms an integral part.

In all parts of the Commonwealth wherever there are defence forces there will be found artillerymen. They are truly ubiquitous, and wherever they are, in peace or in war, they have always tried to live up to the second part of their motto.

Tradition plays a great part in stimulating the esprit de corps of a unit. An American general wrote an article some time ago deploring the fact that in the United States Army the units did not have that continuity of tradition that the British Army has, and lacked its stabilizing influence.

It is a great pity that the long history of the 5th Brigade of which the last unit is to be disbanded, is not published. I feel sure there would be a public outcry against the projected move.

Apparently there is no suggestion that the Canadian Navy is to be abolished, otherwise money would not be spent on the new buildings for the Naval Base. A navy consists of ships. Ships require places where they can refit, refuel, or be repaired. When in harbour for these purposes they cannot adequately defend themselves.

Hence the need of some form of defences against attacks by air, sea, and land. I think that most naval officers are against diverting naval personnel for such defences. They need all they can get to man their ships.

So all over the world wherever there are Commonwealth naval bases, artillerymen have manned the shore installations protecting the harbours.

As you remark in your editorial, weapons change with the times, but the new types still need men trained to use them. Naval vessels still are armed with guns though some are being fitted with guided missile projectors.

Very wisely the navy is not scrapping the old before the new are available. Surely in these critical times the same principle should apply to the defences of their bases.

Guided missile batteries will, no doubt, eventually replace existing armament. This I have read is already being done in the U.S.A. notably at New York where some of the old forts have been converted. It would be interesting to know whether the Russians and the Chinese still have coastal defences. I feel sure that they do.

Atomic bombs of large explosive force mean complete destruction of anything they are used against and cannot be ruled out though it would appear that all countries who have them at present will hesitate to use them.

But even their possible use does not preclude attacks made with more conventional weapons where complete destruction is not the main object, but where the attacker, if successful, may desire to make some use of the place he is attacking, e.g. drydocks, repair facilities etc.

A naval base costs millions of dollars to construct and maintain. Surely those [illegible] unprotected. To do so would be to invite sudden attack before a declaration of war.

Personnel, whether they are air force, artillery, or infantry allotted to defended ports, should be stationed at or near them, and should be constantly exercised in all phases of defence, by air, sea, or land. They should know the surrounding country better than any potential enemy, and be ready to man the defences at extremely short notice.

For this reason units from other parts of the country are not so suitable as a local one since conditions in Central Canada for example are so different to those in B.C. Hence the need of Reserve units formed here in Victoria and on Vancouver Island of which the original 5th Brigade was one of the oldest if not THE oldest in B.C.

The fact that few harbour defence weapons were fired against an enemy in the two World Wars only goes to show that they fulfilled their role, which was to make the enemy hesitate to attack ships in harbour.

Let us hope that the powers that be will reconsider their decision to disband harbour defence units.

J. G. RYCROFT,
Lieut.-Colonel

LOOSE ENDS — By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Good-Bye Summer, Good-Bye

IN a few more days man's summer siege of nature will be lifted. Autumn is hurrying to the rescue of the wilderness. You can almost hear the forest's sigh of relief and the cheers of the woodland creatures. For the last two months, throughout the length and breadth of the nation, man has been trying to remake nature in his own image. He has invaded the woods, terrified the native inhabitants, filled the air with the noise of his engines and polluted it with his gasoline fumes. He has converted a thousand silent lakes into clamorous ski resorts. The echo of his shouts has mocked the virgin hills.

Hutchison

He has regarded the sun only as a furnace to heat his swimming pool or as a sun-tan lamp to change the natural color of his skin. He has given much of the Canadian landscape the authentic look of Coney Island.

BUT that is finished now or nearly finished. After Labor Day the invaders will retreat and leave nature to her own devices. The brave woodsmen of summer will crawl home to the shelter of their steam heated caves. Nature will get down to business again, free of interruption.

All year-round residents of these parts, human, animal and vegetable, are looking forward with relief to their annual holiday, as the summer horde goes back to work.

An ancient man, driven from the lake since the end of June by speedboats and airplanes, was launching his battered rowboat today, resplendent in a new coat of paint, in anticipation of a merciful quietude and a return of the trout, long sulking on the bottom. He says he will now enjoy not only the chance of fishing but the chance of thought; for no one could think around here when the gasoline fleet was sputtering, the barbarians shrieking and the tall glasses clinking.

A DOE and her overgrown fawn ventured out of the woods this evening for the first time in many weeks, realizing by some private system of communication that the aliens would soon be gone. The first grouse are coming down out of the hills. None of these creatures, designated as game under man's laws, was aware that the open season will follow the holiday season and then a new invasion will begin under the curious name of sport.

The forest alone has been spared the knowledge of man's presence, having no eyes to see, or ears to hear him or nose to smell the poisons of his machinery.

FOR the trees it has been just another routine season of labor. An extra ring of wood has been added to every trunk, from the seedling to the giant, and while this may seem a small achievement for a whole year's work it adds up to quite a total and, though the forest has not read the news, this process of growth has produced massive effects on men's affairs and even on his elections and the business of his courts.

If it has accomplished nothing but the addition of a new layer of wood, the forest has accomplished more than its brief visitors. They have nothing to show for their summer but a coat of tan which will hardly last until Christmas and has no commercial value; unless, of course, they are instinctive and dedicated builders like my neighbor, Mr. Horace Snifkin.

AFTER five years of toil he has almost completed a lop-sided house which, with luck, may outlast the snows of winter. But Mr. Snifkin is an exception, as you can see when he occasionally puts on a bathing suit and reveals a white skin, the sure mark of the worker too busy for sun bathing, as the manly tan is the mark of the drone and waster.

Well, it has been a good summer for all concerned, man, animal and vegetable; a summer of sunshine to alter man's original pigmentation, of one timely rain to assuage the forest's thirst, of surging growth to nourish the woodland natives; a summer of perfection in the wilderness as it was a summer of politics, conventions, crisis and customary disorder in the affairs of mankind.

NOW that summer begins to die its approaching end must fill any old man's heart with a certain melancholy, for there are not so many summers left. Only the wilderness is immune to time. New human strangers will arrive next year and some old familiar faces will be missing but everything else will be the same. Unlike man, the wilderness goes on forever and it is fixing now for its winter holiday season of quiet and content while man transfers his energies, his noise, his fury and his brown skin to the city.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG — By GUS SIVERTZ

Round Trip Through the Sooke Watershed

THERE was one last wonderful excursion before school opened in the early autumn to cut our little journeys down to Saturdays only. It was a full-day bicycle trip and it entailed a good packed lunch without any fruit added. That came gratuitously from roadside orchards. My bike was a fine English Raleigh, bought, of course, from Peden Brothers store on Government, just below Broughton street. Later, indeed much later, I graduated to a real super bike—a three-speed Singer.

We started early because the first real stop was at Goldstream Hotel and that was quit a bike ride. Naturally, it wasn't made in one spurt. There was the long walk up Four-Mile Hill and at least part of the longer hill leading up from Parson's Bridge to the old Colwood Hotel.

There was no golf course at Colwood then—Joe Sayward hadn't yet fathered the smart idea of building one in that lovely valley. A few miles further on we would stop at Langford Lake which then was not on a motor highway but skirted by a dirt road that snaked a twisted course only as far as Goldstream.

The Malahat was not yet even on the drawing boards but a road of sorts led down through the beautiful Goldstream gorge to Finlayson Arm and then I believe just sort of petered out in the highlands after giving access to a few rugged stump farms.

Popular Stop

At the Goldstream station of the E & N Railway there was the then famed Goldstream Hotel, a very popular stop for convivial spirits, operated, I think, by a Mr. Phair. It boasted a wide and long porch covered with creepers and adjoining it were quite substantial gardens and an orchard in which the Gravenstein apples were ripening about this time of year.

Across the road from the hotel was a picnic park equipped with rustic seats and tables and this was the site we were looking for for lunch—with sun-warmed apples for dessert.

Actually it was a very lovely spot and was frequently used for large picnic parties that arrived by train from Victoria. I think it was a popular destination for smart young swains, rigged out in peg-top pants, coats with flared skirts and high tight collars, who drove their girl friends out for a day in shiny hired livery rigs.

We left Goldstream by a road that startd at once to climb up to Sooke Lake watershed to which it aspired with all the twisting of a frightened garter snake.

At the top we halted, which was a good thing because the country was new to us and we had no warning of the steep descent to Sooke Lake. The bikes slithered as we braked them and for most of the down grade we dragged our feet on the rough gravel to check our speed.

The crazy road debouched all of a sudden onto the lake side at right angles to the fairly good road along the lake shore.

But we didn't stop there. It was a gloomy lake, shut in by high steep hills and the water looked cold, dark and forbidding. It seemed almost to have a sinister aspect as though we were trespassing where we had no right to be. We felt impelled to leave it as soon as we could and were soon peddling fast down toward Sooke River which drained the lake from its southern end.

Different World

Here a different world opened out for the Sooke River was—and is yet—a lovely stream with joyous, laughing ripples over sandy bottoms, sudden little cascades and deep quiet inviting pools. It was a place that, unlike the lake, seemed to call a welcome to you.

Perhaps we would have lingered for a swim but with the natural improvidence of boys we had long ago eaten the last of our lunches and the last of Mr. Phair's apples. We were mighty glad to find trees with fruit-laden branches hanging over easily scaled fences.

It was a long way from home for a group of small boys but except for the steep hill up to 17-mile House the road was winding without any severe climbs. At 17-Mile House, which was a stop for the old horse stage from Victoria, to wherever it finished out Jordan River way, we refreshed outselves by asking politely for a drink of water.

Kindly People

The good wife of the landlord was touched by our plight and added some thick slices of homemade bread and jam and glasses of milk. We seemed so often to meet kindly people on our jaunts.

A little further on we passed the stage coach whose weary horses made puffs of dust as their hooves clop-clopped up the hill.

At Metchosin there was a store at the Happy Valley crossroad where we were able to buy something to give another stay to the ravages of hunger.

And from there in except for old Four-Mile Hill—it was easy going and the miles fled behind our singing tires as we called on reserves of energy for the spurt to home—and supper.

NO FLYING SAUCER — By JOHN WINDSOR

Our Nearest Neighbor Pays Us a Visit

SILENTLY cutting its way through unlimited oceans of space, Mars is approaching the earth. Its reddish light, far outshining that of other stars, can be clearly seen at dusk on the south eastern horizon.

Each night as it draws closer, it will continue to shine more and more brightly until Sept. 7, when it will have reached its closest proximity to earth since 1924, a mere 35 million miles.

There is a theory abroad at present that the planet, named in honor of the war god, has been attracted this way by the political war at present being waged in the province, but scientists are inclined to scoff at this idea.

In point of fact, Mars, our nearest planetary neighbor, varies considerably in its distance from us, sometimes swinging in close, as at present, at other times drifting out to a distance of 60 million miles.

Whilst vast quantities of valuable information has been written in science fiction and comic books on Mars, the Martians, flying saucers and other types of space ships in which they commute to and from the earth, they have apparently not been read by our scientists, who frankly admit to many unsolved mysteries as far as this planet is concerned.

It is known that Mars, considerably smaller than our earth, has two moons, Phobos and Deimes, which an observer, possessing a telescope, might be lucky enough to see on Sept. 7. Like ourselves Mars has an icecap, but it is very thin and melts away during the warm season.

Its day, just over 24 hours, is about the same length as ours, but its year of 687 days is nearly twice as long. However, it is the temperature that Victorians, used to their evergreen climate, would find hard to take. During the day it soars to a sizzling 90 F., whilst at night it falls to a bone chilling 90 below.

The big question of course is what, if any, form of life exists on this neighboring planet. As it is thought that the surface is covered with arid deserts on which only lichens grow, it does not seem probable that there is any form of advanced life — and yet there are canals, or are there?

Whether they exist or not is still an unsolved dispute among scientists. If there are canals, are they natural formations or were they artificially constructed, and if so, by what kind of creatures?

Maybe this question will not be answered on Sept. 7, but astronomers from many countries will be using cameras, telescopes, television and spectroscopes in order to try and find out more about our next door neighbor.

If on that day you should run into a little man standing only two feet high, who jabbers at you unintelligibly, don't be alarmed; it's not someone trying to talk politics to you, but only a Martian who took advantage of the cheap weekend excursion rates to follow the birds to Victoria.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

By SILENUS

An Echo From the Past

The atmosphere in Mr. Justice Wilson's chambers last Monday and Tuesday when Deane Finlayson, The Vancouver Sun and the Herald were haled before the court for contempt was quite different from that of any other legal proceeding which this column has ever observed. Though I am a little young to remember with any clarity the State Trials of the 18th century, there was more than a whiff of the feeling which ran then and which permeates even the dry official account in Howell's Reports.

The large Vancouver Assize courtroom was crowded with lawyers and others interested in liberty; the sense of dramatic expectancy which never left the proceedings overflowed into the rest of the building; gathering little conversational knots of people in the corridors and offices. For this, as everyone recognized, with the curious unanimity of crowds, was not a mere juicy spectacle. It was a contest between legitimate freedom of speech and the press and the authoritarian hand of an oppressive executive.

Despite the assurance of counsel who made the motion that it was merely a step in a private lawsuit, the spectators remained convinced in their minds that this apparently insignificant proceeding was in effect a State Trial.

Senator Farris and John Diefenbaker, the acknowledged stars of the production, were never in finer form. It is not often these days that one is treated to a display of advocacy of the heyday of the art, and here was advocacy indeed, from two of the great Canadian exponents. Courtroom oratory is far more than mere presentation, and it can never take the flavour of ordinary public speaking. The advocate, where there is no jury, must convince a judge, whose cold and fishy eye is ever upon him, noting, taking in and silently assessing. In the words of the old song:

It's a deuce of a drudge
To budge a judge
and to budge one

the advocate must talk only clear cold sense of an authoritative kind.

It is evident that the Senator and the MP did just that. But even so thoughts of Erskine defending Tom Paine or Horne Tooke, passed through the minds of many onlookers.

In one of these columns I tried to show how great an influence small beginnings may have on the progress of the Common Law. A dead snail in a ginger beer bottle is the cornerstone of a vast body of private law. Similarly in the field of public law the criticism by ordinary people of the government of George III which resulted in the State Trials of the day gave free English juries the chance to settle for all time the form of our liberties.

Here Mr. Finlayson provided our own Supreme Court with the opportunity to restate those liberties.

But liberty, in these troubled times, is becoming more and more of an abstraction. For a long time past it has been draining imperceptibly away from an indifferent people. It is a great thing for all of us that we still have courageous men like Deane Finlayson, who deliberately ran the risk of imprisonment for the sake of his expressed convictions, and courageous journals who will publicize such utterances. They speak for the individual against the power of an increasingly monolithic state.

So long as such people and such papers exist, the old ideal of liberty under the law will not altogether disappear among the curiosities of history.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Why No Second Class?

LONDON—I am indebted to Peter Roos for explaining to me, in a BBC broadcast, why it is that British railways have first and third class but no second class. It is something that puzzles you when you first come to England but then you take it for granted, without bothering to find out the why and wherefore. You say to yourself it is just the quaint way the English do things, and let it go at that.

Dr. Alvarez

Reason why the subject has come up is that countries of western Europe have got together to standardize the various classes on train travel that you encounter as you go from one country to another. It is confusing as it is now.

In planning a continental trip you have to figure that third class on an English train is the equivalent of second in France while in Spain to get the same sort of accommodation you have to travel first, whereas in Switzerland, etc., etc. Any Canadian who has had a European trip knows all these problems of booking rail journeys.

So, under the new system, Britain's third class is to be designated second. It won't look any different, being up-graded in name only.

How did it come to be that British trains have first and third, with second non-existent?

When Britain got this business of trains started early last century there were all three classes, and on some lines even four classes. In the 1840s there were entire first class trains (with accommodation for the servants of the well-to-do people who traveled by such trains) and the carriages looked like three horse-drawn coaches joined together and placed on a flat wagon.

And that, incidentally, is how the British system of compartments in trains arose and still persists. There were also second class (less elegant) trains and "mixed trains" of first and second. The third class trains were something to be avoided because you went along with the freight and the accommodation wasn't much better than that of the cattle trucks.

To dissuade people from traveling third the railway companies saw to it that they never made any connections. In 1884, on behalf of the masses, the government passed an act forcing the railways to make third class better and it was around this time that second class disappeared.

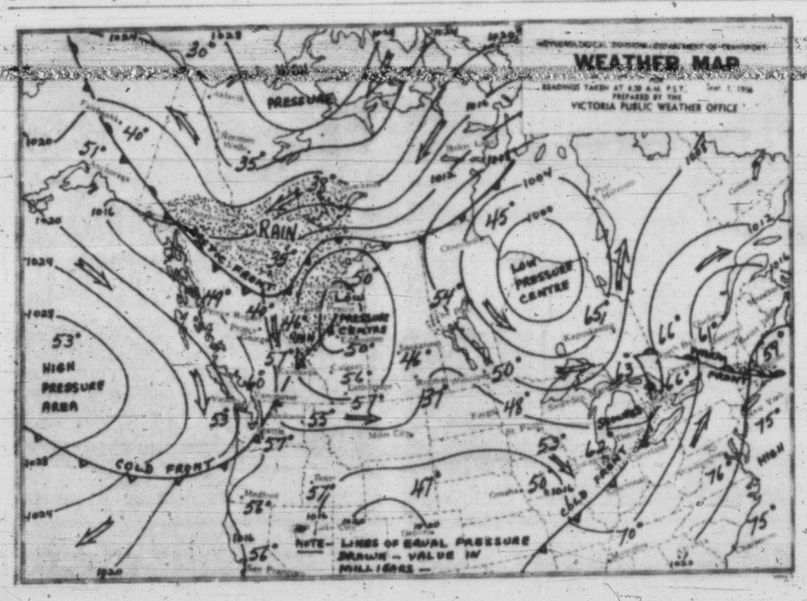
One of the companies announced that henceforth they would admit third class passengers to all their trains. Third class travelers took over the second class accommodation and first class fares were reduced to the level of second class and in this shuffle this company and the others that followed suit wound up with only first and third.

In those days 70 out of 100 traveled third but today it is true to say that "practically everybody travels third." Only two out of every 100 sit in the first class carriages. There is no stigma attached to traveling third, as in the old days. Even less so now that it will be a case of saying "I'm traveling second."



WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—Westerly gales swept the southern mainland of B.C. early this morning in the wake of the disturbance which moved inland during the night. Relatively clear skies have returned to most of the southern coast but considerable cloud and scattered shower activity has been reported over the southern interior as the disturbance moved eastward over the province. Winds in the coastal regions will diminish this afternoon and evening. Temperatures are expected to be somewhat lower than those of the past few days.

ANIMALS AROUND US

Moss Creatures Odd Creation

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL

Until the magnifying glass was invented and inquisitive people began looking more closely at living things around them, the moss animals escaped attention. Up to that time these rather complicated animals were thought to be mossy plants and even today many of them are not recognized as members of the animal kingdom.

Dr. Carl

The reason for this of course is that these creatures in general are small and many species form branching colonies that appear to be plant-like to the naked eye. Only close attention to details reveals their true character.

Under a lens a branching colony is seen to be a tubular structure with individual animals occupying the ends of the "twigs." Each animal has a gullet, a U-shaped stomach, muscles and other structures, as well as an incomplete ring of tentacles around the mouth. When feeding, the body is extended into the water; but when at rest or alarmed it can be retracted into the hollow tube.

While moss animals are defenceless except for the protection afforded by their tubular housing, some are equipped with minute structures resembling a bird's head with jaws that open and snap shut to prevent other small forms from settling on the surface of the colony.

LIVE IN SEA

Most moss animals live in the sea, especially in shallow water. The attractive colors seen in tide pools are largely due to encrusting forms that cling to rock, shell and other support. Some common species are cream colored and slippery to the touch, others are in modern shades of pink or are dead white forming delicate whorls of lacework on flat fronds of seaweed.

One world-wide species lives in fresh water where it forms a mossy growth creeping over submerged rocks and waterlogged branches of trees. Before the days of chlorination this colonial animal was a source of trouble to maintenance men in charge of Victoria's water system. Finding a constant source of food and favorable anchorage these creatures flourished in water meters and other sections of the distribution system often completely stopping the flow of water. Following the necessary addition of chemicals to the water their rich supply of food was cut off with the result that these colonies are no longer able to exist within the pipe. However, extensive colonies still flourish in Sooke Lake, and no doubt in all lakes in the district.

Ontario Cracks Down

TORONTO (BUP)—Ontario police will crack down on used car dealers who refuse to issue mechanical fitness certificates for all cars sold, Attorney-General Kelso Roberts said Thursday.

The Struggle

I was there the other day,
When Marilyn beat in to
Horseshoe Bay;
I jerked my ankle outa joint,
Jumping down rocks at
Clover Point.
I was just as excited as all the rest,
When I thot I saw her on a
crest,
I looked way over, Port Angeles
way,
Just HOW could a human,
battle that spray??
Something told me, she'd make
the beach,
People started to wade, they wanted to reach,
And grasp the hand of this little girl,
Who'd fought the cold, the
the tides & the swirl.
I felt all these souls had SO
wanted to dare,
To do something big . . . so
people would stare,
But somehow fate wove a different story,
There's just the odd one, who makes it to glory.
And yet, as I saw the aged &
lame,
I knew each one had that inward flame,
That kept them
stroking all
their lives,
Thru some
that life
contrives,
These the real
heroes, fighting great woe,
The bravest
grapple . . .
and CONQUER SO.

Sherlock Holmes Solves Mystery Death (By Proxy)

CHATHAM, England (AP)—Chalk up the solution of another mystery to Sherlock Holmes.

The death of Capt. Edward Mantell, 26-year-old army adjutant, puzzled the Kent police and army officials. He was found dead in a field with head injuries. Was it murder?

Then one detective, an enthusiastic reader of Conan Doyle stories noticed young horses grazing in the field. He thought of Silver Blaze, the horse which Holmes discovered had killed its trainer by kicking him.

The shoe of one horse showed traces of blood and hair.

Your Progressive Conservative Candidate for OAK BAY

JUSTIN HARBORD

To The Citizens Of Oak Bay

Dear Neighbors:

I have accepted the nomination of the Progressive Conservative Association in Oak Bay, and wish to ask your support during this campaign and on election day.

I believe strongly in the two-party system in government, and that the best interests of all the people cannot be served by government by splinter groups, be they Social Credit or Socialist.

I believe in a strong and effective opposition, and in the dignity of the legislature which was lacking in the last session.

I am a Conservative believing in this party's principle of orderly progress without extravagance. I do not believe it is necessary for the people of British Columbia to be the highest taxed people in Canada.

With your support, I will fight for the following:

1. Economy in Government.
2. Protection of the Rights of the Small Lumberman and Logger, Assuring a Future for This Industry and Its Employees.
3. Fair Treatment, Freedom from Political Interference and Better Salaries for Our Civil Servants.
4. Restoration of Integrity in Government.
5. Restoration of Effective Opposition.
6. Restoration of the Dignity of the Legislature.
7. Recognition of the Importance of the Rights of the Individual and His School Board, Hospital Board and Council.
8. Honest Accounting and Careful Budgeting.
9. A Government-Operated (or Subsidized) Fast, Low-Cost Passenger and Freight Ferry System Between the Victoria Area and the Mainland, making it possible for Lower Vancouver Island Industry and its Oak Bay Employees to stay here.
10. The Platform of the Progressive Conservative Party as Published.

If elected, I promise to serve the interests of all the citizens of Oak Bay and British Columbia to the best of my ability.

I earnestly solicit your support.

Yours sincerely,

JUSTIN V. HARBORD.

ART IN REVIEW

Gallery Curator Pays Tribute To Publishing Friend of Arts

What follows here is in the nature of a postscript, as technically this column ceased to exist as of last Saturday. Growing pressures on gallery administration, combined with reasons of health, have at last brought relief to those patient and polite readers who have done weekly pennance by struggling through it off and on these past three years.

But before signing off completely I want to say a word or two that could hardly be said while still in the employ of this newspaper—something so unseemly in fact that it was with difficulty that I persuaded our modest publisher to let me say it.

Except in the case of a few big metropolitan dailies it used to be the honored tradition on this continent for newspapers to mention the arts mainly when they brought forth a scandal. If a regular review chanced to find its way into the columns of a paper, it classically originated from an interview which ran as follows:

Editor: What kind of work have you done?

Reporter: Well, I've covered baseball, the police courts, and filled in for the financial editor.

Editor: Fine. You'll do. Tomorrow you start as our art critic.

With this background in mind let us look at the activities of a certain newspaper in this city.

When Miss Sara Spencer offered her Moss street home as a gallery for the city, this newspaper at once championed its cause, bringing its editorial guns to bear on a city council reluctant to accept the gift.

COLIN GRAHAM

In the ensuing five years the paper devoted more than a score of editorials to the gallery cause, taking the lead in the recurring battle for civic grants for both the gallery and the symphony.

When the same newspaper brought Sir Edmund Hillary to talk about Everest at the arena, it was the art gallery that received the proceeds. It was the gallery, too, which received the proceeds when the paper cooperated in bringing this summer's Mexican show to the city.

CRUCIAL FACTOR

It is no exaggeration to say that the vigorous support of this paper has been a crucial factor in the gallery's struggle for survival and its establishment on its present solid foundation.

Victoria artists, too, have good reason to be grateful to this same paper, which has set an example by giving space to murals in its offices, by taking on their cause in its Saturday arts page, by helping native carvers over a fallow period in their employment, and in general by giving copious space in its news colums to the activities and achievements of local artists.

When, in short, I tell visiting curators and artists about the kind of support the arts get from the Victoria Daily Times and its always helpful staff, a greenish tinge spreads over their countenances.

It appears that you will not find the like of it anywhere else in Canada. It is just our good luck, in fact, that we have in our genial publisher, Stuart Keate, one of the warmest and staunchest friends the arts have ever had in this country.

I must apologize for saying this about him in his own paper. But the above facts needed repeating for we are too apt to take these good things for granted.

Music of Berlioz Gains Popularity

Beecham Brilliance—A Sampling of Serenades—Rock an' Roll Hit Record

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A fine collection of Hector Berlioz overtures performed by the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra with Sir Thomas Beecham conducting is now available on a Columbia record (ML5054).

The record includes the Roman Carnival, King Lear, the Corsair, Les Francs Juges and Waverley overtures. The entire collection makes an enjoyable program and should prove popular with the devotees of Berlioz.

Davy

The outstanding feature of the program is Beecham's version of these overtures. The conductor's performance is sparkling and his readings on a high level. Beecham is one than who really understands the composer and can interpret his music.

As for the music of Berlioz, one of the most controversial composers of the 19th century, it is gaining in popularity, particularly in England and in the United States. The man who wrote the "Damnation of Faust" and the Symphony Funebre and Triumphal, containing some of the world's most stirring and idylic music, is coming into his own.

Meanwhile Epic has come out with a record "Serenades for Strings" designed to satisfy anyone who likes music, classical or otherwise. The disc features the world's best-loved melodies, such as "Greensleeves," Massenet's "Meditation de Thais" and selections from Tchaikovsky's tuneful "Serenade in C Major."

In all there are 10 selections performed by the Boyd Neel Orchestra, with Cedric Dumont conducting.

Serenades have an interesting history. While the music was primarily designed to be complimentary or diverting, some forms were written as dinner music. As early as the 13th century it was realized that music assisted the digestive system.

Look out for Columbia's release of Puccini's "La Boheme" featuring Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra. The disc is destined to make a hit.

POPS LIBRARY—Canadian artist Adam Timson who has appeared on "Cross Canada Hit Parade" makes his debut on a Columbia disc "Too Bad," a rock and roll number. "Repeat After Me" is another of his releases.

PLATTER CHATTER—"Clay Idol," a ballad with a rock-n-roll twist, should establish Betty Johnson (Bally Records) as the female singing find of the year . . . Pearl Bailey's sense of humor shows up in her Mercury recording of "I Can't Rock and Roll to Save My Soul." She doesn't need E&R . . . Dick Hyman, who has distinguished himself as one of the country's best instrumentalists and who helped make "Moritat" one of the year's best numbers, puts a Dixie beat in his "One Finger Piano" (M-G-M).

TOPS IN POPS—"Peachy Peachy" by Rosemary Clooney (Columbia) "Please Be Gentle With Me" by Jean Martin (Unique), "In the Middle of the House" by Vaughn Monroe (RCA Victor).

Best piano number—"Are You From Dixie?" a rollicking old-timer given new enthusiasm by Del Wood (RCA Victor).

Best revival—"Bei Mir Bist du Schon," by the Crew Cuts (Mercury). This is a remake of the number that made the Andrew Sisters one of the most important groups of the 1940s.

Victoria Choral Society Appeals For New Members

Many clubs will be resuming their activities this September, among them the Victoria Choral Society, now appealing for new members. This choir embraces all religious denominations and is led by Mr. Graham Steed.

The first practice will be held at Christ Church Memorial Hall, Tuesday, Sept. 11, at 7.30 p.m. Because of public demand it has been decided to present Handel's "Messiah" in mid-December.

The principal work for the second-half of the season has not yet been selected. It is likely to be one which has not yet been performed in Victoria.

To Meet Thursday St. Luke's Players

First meeting of the season will be held by the St. Luke's Players, Thursday next, in St. Luke's Hall, Cedar Hill Cross Road.

Anyone interested in acting or backstage work is invited to join the organization. Commander H. Luke, president, will show colored films of last season's productions. Refreshments will be served.

AA (Great Class) A (Don't Miss) BB (Wednesday) B (For Rainy Days) C (To put in time)

(BB to A "THE AMBASSADOR'S DAUGHTER" (Odeon) United Artists' comedy "The Ambasodor's Daughter" is a gay, fluffy, sometimes draggy affair. But it's worth the price of admission to watch Olivia de Havilland prove that in addition to being a fine dramatic actress she is an accomplished comedienne as well.

Two-times Academy Award winner ("To Each His Own," 1946; "The Heiress," 1949) Miss de Havilland waltzes out of the Snake Pit, so to speak, to present a thoroughly charming and captivating picture of an ambassador's daughter who is mistaken for a Dior fashion model by a GI serving in Paris.

Produced, written and directed by Norman Krasna the play is risque in intent but some of the scenes between Miss de Havilland and John ("Teahouse of the August Moon") Forsythe might have been cut a bit to hurry up the business of bringing the plot to a clean-cut and logical solution.

However, there are plenty of funny scenes and incidents, such as when Forsythe's GI sidekick, Tommy Noonan is caught on the window ledge in his shorts by embassy guards. The Technicolor photography of Michel Kelber is excellent and the Paris backdrop lends enchantment.

THERE ARE some familiar faces that veteran movie-goers will be interested to see again. Myrna Loy, once voted the world's most perfect wife while playing with William Powell in the "Thin Man" series back in the early 30s, is ideally fitted to the role of wife to Senator Adolphe Menjou. The late Edward Arnold doubtless would have enjoyed seeing his last picture, a far cry from his "Diamond Jim Brady" days, technically at least.

But in the end it is Miss de Havilland's picture. It is she who makes one think that the whole thing is believable and therein lies her talent.

If you're looking for a picture to cheer you up and take you out of the drabness of the working-a-day world, "The Ambassador's Daughter" should fill the bill nicely.

SCOTT'S BOOK TALK

'Bad' Women, Fiction Writer's Bread and Butter It Appears

It is probably true, as one school of gallantry insists, that there is no such thing as a "bad" woman. However, gallantry aside, it must be admitted that there are the odd few who are hard to get along with and who even may be unfaithful to their husbands and sweethearts. Such women, of course, are the very stuff of fiction and many a writer would never have achieved name and fame without them.

Scott

Two such women have cropped up in the new books which are coming out at a great clip these days. These two are by no means the usual type found in what might be called triangular romances. This pair make highly intriguing, if not altogether pleasant, reading.

Hilda Manning is the name of the book and the name of the heroine in Allan Seager's latest. Now Hilda is a strange girl. Rustic, untutored, indeed almost bovine, Hilda has that quality which each age gives its own particular name. She is the kind of girl who can turn into a gas station to get the tank filled up and the gent who runs the station will close it up, borrow $1,000 and follow her half way across a continent. In fact, that is one of the things which happens in this book, and all because Hilda had this peculiar something which affected men that way. Disappointingly enough, author Seager never does describe just what it was that Hilda had. I assume that he considers that any red-blooded man will know without being told, but what about the lady readers? I suspect that they might very well be interested in a description of this devastating allure of Hilda Manning's.

Anyway, using this strange power over men as its basis, this novel winds through a series of rather tawdry scenes which are designed to give us both insight into and sympathy for such girls as Hilda Manning.

Somehow this most interesting project does not come off. The narrative line is strong and there is no trouble with the events themselves. One sees Hilda married to an older man, another becoming infatuated, the older man sickening and then suddenly dying only to leave Hilda free to turn down the faithful suitor. And so it goes as Hilda runs away, collects men, and then returns. During all this, she commits a monstrous crime but the author allows her to get away with it. I'm not sure whether because he thought she was morally right or because of that tremendous appeal.

It's just such confusion as this which weaken Hilda Manning and it's too bad because it is a most interesting theme for the male side of the readership anyway.

The other heroine who comes a cropper this week is Constance Turner, who plays the feminine lead in H. E. Bates' The Sleepless Moon. Constance does not have the magical allure of Hilda Manning. She is just an innocent girl who married the wrong man, finds solace in the arms of another and get this—pays the price.

But H. E. Bates is a very different kind of author than Allan Seager. There are few writers of fiction who can handle the delicate nuances of the human situation for greater effect than Bates.

The Sleepless Moon proves this point. The author takes the view that infidelity in marriage is a great tragedy. Using only the ordinary mundane counters of such a situation he spins a yarn which becomes increasingly oppressive as it works its way through a tangled web of inconsequential events. He does not rely on spectacular happenings to hold his reader; rather he takes us through the minute torment of the frustrated heart as it is eked out in each dull moment of each grey day.

This is a powerful piece of writing and a very subtle one and, strangely enough, it answers more of the questions that such a situation raises, than the flashy performance of Allan Seager.

Politics, Poetry Filling Life Of Distinguished Victorian

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Politics and poetry, it sounds an unlikely combination, but in that order they have absorbed the full attention of former Victorian, Phyllis Webb, at present spending a long contemplative vacation in her home town.

Before she left Victoria after graduation from the University of British Columbia, to go to Montreal, Phyllis Webb's claim to fame lay in her candidature on the CCF ticket in a B.C. election when she campaigned vigorously and with telling effect.

Today she is better and more widely known for her poetic and essayist's contributions to Canadian literature and her critical and other broadcasts over CBC.

She has been seen on TV in the interview type program, "Tabloid," from Toronto and has appeared on a "Fighting Words" panel with Clyde Gilmour and Morley Callaghan.

Her vivid interest in people and events in Canada and her astute mind makes continued interest in politics inevitable. However she does not contemplate returning to active participation. As a creative writer she feels personal involvement is unwise.

"Silence and solitude are essential for the writer," she points out. "A factor that puts the creative writer and the active politician poles apart."

In order to gain more time for the kind of silent meditation that produces books of poems like her recently published "Even Your Right Eye," Miss Webb decided to give up her regular secretarial occupation and rely on free-lancing.

This means that she does free lance secretarial work and radio broadcasting. She has been heard on the analytical CBC program, "Critically Speaking" on several occasions. Book reviews and essays are among other published work of this Canadian poet.

PHYLLIS WEBB

In the immediate future, she is to have work included in the Oxford Book of Verse and in a new anthology of Canadian poetry.

On September 5, dark-eyed Phyllis Webb with her low-pitched musical voice and arresting personality, will be seen on local TV screens when she appears on CBUT's "Almanac."

When she leaves Victoria next month, after spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. Mary Webb, Central Avenue, she will be going back to Montreal, a city she loves and is getting to know, with special concentration on its dual nationality and bilingualism.

But, because travel too is one of the essentials for anyone following her craft—and especially one whose interests range so widely in all the arts and intellectual exercises of the human mind—Miss Webb is already planning a second foray on the European continent within a year or so. She had formerly spent a year in England where she worked as secretary at the London School of Economics.

It is possible that Miss Webb might have been a considerable asset in the field of politics if she had decided to pursue that career.

But it is even more certain that she will make valuable contributions to the equally important cause of Canadian literature as time goes by.

Strife Within Prison Walls

THE NINTH HOUR by Ben Benson, George J. McLeod, Toronto, 224 pages, $3.25.

For his first full-length novel outside the mystery field, Ben Benson has chosen a story of strife and tragedy inside a state penitentiary running along the lines of stories that have recently made the headlines.

Nine hours covers the period of "The Ninth Hour."

Without revealing too much of the plot, convicts, prison officials, hostages, state troopers, criminal psychopaths, newsmen, frightened relatives and friends are involved in an explosive story.

The tense situation is dramatically revealed by an author whose work has been bought for television and motion pictures and who, in 1954, had two of his books selected by The Saturday Review for their list of the Year's Best.

CREATIVE WRITING AWARDS

NEW YORK — The Rockefeller foundation today announced a grant of nearly $50,000 for four fellowships in Canadian creative writing.

The fellowships, to be used during the next three years, will enable young Canadian authors of poetry, fiction, drama or criticism to devote one year to the practice of their art free from any requirements of formal study or supervision.

Fellows will be selected by a committee of three English-speaking and two French-language members of the Canadian foundation.

The Canada foundation, whose purpose is the advancement of art and other cultural activities, already has received the grant from the Rockefeller foundation.

Also announced was a $6,000 grant to the McGill University, Montreal, for its research in human genetics under the direction of Dr. F. Clarke Fraser.

Adventure Story For Juveniles

"A DOG FOR DAVIE'S HILL," by Clare Bice; MacMillan.

Clare Bice has written a fast-moving adventure set in the misty sheeplands of Scotland, well designed to hold the attention of the younger readers at whom it is aimed.

Mr. Brice, who earlier wrote "Jon's Cove" and "Across Canada," also illustrates his own book. "A Dog for Davie's Hill" is the story of young Davie Matheson and a sheepdog named Fly, "a nice wee dog, but fearful shy."

Their adventures together, interwoven with a mysterious old tramp who told rousing stories of Bonnie Prince Charlie and Sandy Big Alec, the village villain, are interestingly told against an authentic background.

"Nightmare" — By Cornell Woolrich (Dodd, Mead). Half-dozen assorted yarns make up this auto-anthology by skilled performer; psychological factors are stressed.

An educational system isn't worth a great deal if it teaches young people how to make a living and doesn't teach them how to live.

'UNWITTING ERROR'

YOUNG MEN SO DARING; Fur Traders Who Carried the Frontier West, by Vera Kelsey, Bobbs-Merrill Co., Inc. Indianapolis, 1956, McClelland & Stewart Ltd., Toronto, 1956, $3.25.

Winnipeg-born Vera Kelsey is well-equipped to tell the story of the beginnings of the Oregon Trail, which is the subject of her latest book. She has been writing since her early college days, and has published books of various kinds, travel, history, mystery stories and juveniles.

Her present book will interest younger as well as more mature readers, as her style is racy, journalistic and easy to read.

Young Men So Daring is the story of four young, adventurous men whose common interest lies in fur. Her heroes are Peter Pond, John Jacob Astor, Jim Bridger and the less well-known Manuel Lisa. These men little realized that, in satisfying their love of adventure and incidently their quest for riches, they would pave the way for the settlement of the western states.

Vera Kelsey tells very graphically and clearly the adventures of her four daring young men, and shows how each one plays his important part in the discovery and history of the west.

Peter Pond in his search for the western sea, inspired—through jealousy—the discoveries of Alexander Mackenzie. Manuel Lisa promoted trade and exploration along the Missouri. John Jacob Astor pushed his trading posts to Astoria and the west coast, while Jim Bridger, the mountain man, flourished in the mid-west and the Mormon country.

Miss Kelsey's theory is that each one of these men made one big mistake in his life, and through this unwitting error which, as she says, "changed the whole course of their lives, they adventured and achieved."

Though the paths of these four men never crossed, and each worked independently in pursuit of the beaver, yet each explored sections of the route which led to the western sea. Later, these sections joined and made it possible for others to follow their route over one of the most famous of historic trails to Oregon.

"Riddle of a Lady"—By Anthony Gilbert (Random). British lawyer's light-o'-love fades out; Arthur Crook, crime hobbyist, looks into business. Heavily overcrowded.

Wild Bill 'Shot Down' By Movies

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

Convalescing Humphrey Bogart admitting he lost 35 pounds—"I was down to Smatra's weight"—but predicting he'll be back to work this fall . . . DID YOU KNOW .. by Heaney's

IN THE MIDDLE OF THE 16TH CENTURY BEGGING IN THE CITY OF PARIS WAS DEVELOPED TO AN ART. SOME 40,000 PROFESSIONAL BEGGARS WORKED THE STREETS DAILY. EVERY CORNER AND PUBLIC PLACE WAS LINED WITH "CRIPPLED" AND "DISFIGURED" PEOPLE WHO ASKED FOR THE SYMPATHY OF CITIZENS. AND VISITORS IN THE WORLD'S GAYEST CITY. AT NIGHT THEY LIMPED INTO A DOZEN FAVORITE ROOMING HOUSES WHERE MANY OF THEM BECAME NORMAL HUMANS AGAIN. CRUTCHES AND STRAPS WERE DISCARDED UNTIL ANOTHER "WORKING DAY" ROLLED AROUND. BECAUSE OF THESE REMARKABLE TRANSFORMATIONS THE PLACE WHERE THEY LIVED WAS OFTEN JOKINGLY CALLED A "HOUSE OF MIRACLES" BY CITIZENS WHO KNEW THE FACTS.

A MODERN MIRACLE TO BEHOLD IS A COMPLETE HOUSE BEING MOVED ALONG OUR CITY STREETS BY HEANEY'S SPECIAL EQUIPMENT. PRESENT HIGH CONSTRUCTION COSTS MAKE THIS TYPE OF JOB MUCH MORE COMMON THAN IN THE PAST. THIS IS JUST ANOTHER PART OF THE GREAT MOVING SERVICE OFFERED BY VICTORIA'S PIONEER MOVERS

SET FOR FALL

Two Dozen New Programs For Viewers

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — Your fall TV menu is just about set, with more than two dozen new items scheduled to be offered up to your palate.

Perhaps the night that will come in for the biggest revamping will be Friday, a fairly dreary affair last season.

CBS-TV, figuring the kids can stay up late Friday, hopes to catch them with My Friend Flicka, and West Point Story and Zane Grey Theatre all interlocked. In January, CBS-TV also will unveil Mr. Adam and Eve, with Howard Duff and Ida Lupino. It'll step into The Crusader spot.

NBC has the Walter Winchell show set for Friday along with a legal drama, On Trail. Dinah Shore and Bob Hope will front a series of shows on occasional Fridays and Sundays.

ABC's Friday plans include Jim Bowie and Treasure Hunt, a new quizzer with Jan Murray as pilot.

Saturday is another big night for CBS-TV with the unwrapping of the new Jackie Gleason 60-minute show, Gale Storm's Oh Susannah, and Jeannie Carson's Hey Jeannie. NBC-TV plans to shift Sid Caesar's hour into the Saturday night niche, from Monday.

Sunday will see big changes on ABC-TV with Omnibus moving over from CBS-TV and Ted Mack's Amateur Hour switched to an earlier time. NBC-TV will unravel two early evening adventure shows—Bengal Lancers and Circus Boy. And CBS-TV will alternate See It Now with The Seven Lively Arts during the shank of the afternoon.

Monday will be a big night for NBC-TV. The Most Beautiful Girl in the World is scheduled to drop in as a combination beauty and talent contest. NBC-TV also will premiere a new Buddy Hackett comedy series, Stanley, and Sir Lancelot.

The new Herb Shriner variety show will debut on Tuesday on CBS-TV. So will Broken Arrow on ABC-TV and Noah's Ark, an NBC-TV 30-minuter about a veterinarian. NBC-TV's Wally Cox will move into a Wednesday slot with his new Hiram Holliday series and so will Jack Barry's Twenty One. Wednesday also will see a CBS-TV quiz show, Giant Step.

On Thursday, the new ones will be Tennessee Ernie Ford on NBC-TV and Wire Service and possibly, Frontier Judge on ABC-TV.

Jerry Lewis will play a Las Vegas hotel solo this fall while Dean Martin hops to Italy to visit distant relatives. The Lewis-Martin "pardners" routine continues distant too.

New Winter Shows on Way

'Jim Bowie' Debut At 9 Friday C-5

Macias Fights Bataan Wednesday; Karloff Stars on Climax Thursday

Bothered and bored by the repeats and re-runs of the summer months, TV viewers will be relieved, no doubt, to learn that this week the tide commences to turn.

Although there is nothing spectacular about the summer-to-winter changeover, it does signal the beginning of better things to come. Monday, Garry Moore returns to the TV wars after his summer vacations, taking over Channel 11 daily at 3 p.m. On Friday the new western drama, "Jim Bowie," makes its debut at 9 on Channel 5 with Scott Forbes in the starring role. At 9.30, Channel 4, the same night, Big Story returns to tell of the reporter who discovered "The Bridey Murphy Story."

Meanwhile, here are other highlights in order of their appearance.

Essential Coldframe Nuisance Unless Properly Looked After

BY JACK BEASTALL

Short articles about coldframes usually start with the trite observation that every garden should have at least one such structure.

Jack

This is quite true. It is also true that unless the coldframe receives some care and attention it sooner or later becomes the repository for all the rubbish and odds and ends the garden can provide.

In circumstances such as this it is the refuge for pests and the breeding ground for disease, and the garden would be better off if it had no such structure.

SANITATION NEEDED

A coldframe is actually a small edition of an unheated greenhouse and the same rules of sanitation apply, otherwise the gardener will face many unexpected problems before his plants reach production.

There are three main types of frames used in gardening; the portable growing frame, the fixed growing frame, and the fixed storage frame which is considerably deeper than a growing frame.

Of these, the portable frame is the most useful in a small garden. It can be lifted off one crop and placed on another without the time consuming removal of the first, then preparing the soil, and finally planting the second.

Regardless of the type, cleansing is necessary after each crop is finished, or when storage plants are put in or taken out.

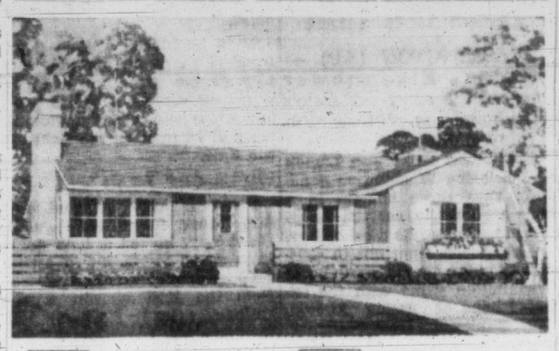
REMOVE DECAY

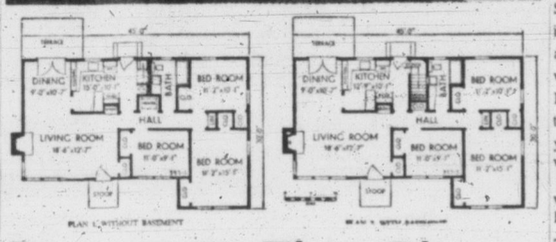
First, a thorough brushing to remove all traces of the previous crop which may adhere to the wooden parts of the frame. Also the removal of all partially decayed fruits (cucumbers, tomatoes, and such like) and foliage from the soil.

Secondly, a thorough spraying, paying special attention to cracks, crevices, and corners. For this a combined insecticide-fungicide spray saves time by controlling both insects and disease spores in the one application.

Thirdly, it is important to clean the glass in the frame covers at frequent intervals, especially for winter crops which need the maximum of light during the dull months.

When these few rules of sanitation are practiced there is a reasonable chance for success with fall and winter crops, but their neglect is one of the reasons for gardeners saying they have no luck with a coldframe.





Rooms in This Plan Well Proportioned

Here is a compact family home which makes generous use of windows throughout, assuring maximum of light and ventilation for every room.

Bedrooms are unusually ample for a plan which takes in only 1,215 square feet—non-basement version. Entrance to the house is cleverly arranged to provide privacy and a large guest closet as well as easy access to the bedroom wing.

In both versions the kitchen is planned for utmost convenience and time-saving and there is a pleasant dining nook with windows overlooking the rear garden.

Blueprints are available and can be obtained by writing to The Loder Company Limited, Revillon Building, Edmonton.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q—I have tried without much success to fill several cracks in the stucco walls of our home. The cement always falls out. What do you suggest?—M.T.

A—Using a hammer and cold chisel, undercut the sides of each crack so it's wider at the bottom than on the surface. Scrape out old mortar and dust the crack with a dry brush. Moisten the crack with water, then pack in mortar with a trowel. Use two coats to fill deep cracks in which mortar is exposed.

Winter-Flowering Crocus Can Be Planted Now

Plant winter flowering crocus, snowdrops, eranthis (winter aconite) and a few anemone coronaria de Caen (the poppy anemone).

Sow seed indoors of schizanthus for large specimen pot plants in May.

Overhaul heating system of greenhouse. Clean and wash benches, walls and floor.

Increase watering of cacti from now on.

Feed chysanthemums in bud, indoors and out.

Clear annual vegetable rows as soon as crop is finished. Add all refuse to compost heap, and dig the ground roughly.

Prepare storage space for potatoes, onions, tomatoes, squash and all tree fruits which are to be stored.

Pull up late sown vegetables and give a dressing of balanced fertilizer to hasten growth while warm weather lasts.

Onions may be ready for lifting. Dry well in sun before taking in for storage.

Oleanders in pots should have flowering stems cut back half way, and receive much less water from now on.

Near Record

TORONTO (CP) — Lionel Whitman, 25, of Red Deer, Alta., was only one and one-quarter inches off the Canadian record Friday when he threw the 16-pound shotput 50 feet seven and three-quarters inches at the three-day Canadian Olympic training program inter-provincial track and field championships.

His toss was good for a meet record. The former mark was 49 feet four inches. The first-day events were held on the University of Toronto campus.

Harvest Hand Shortage Grave

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's broad grainlands—embracing Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—face a serious shortage of farm workers to help haul in the harvest.

Ontario too anticipates a substantial shortage, but the situation is acute in the Prairie provinces, and particularly in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Officials say the situation in Saskatchewan may equal the critical 1951 period when soldiers and airmen stationed in the province were called to service in the fields. In Alberta the shortage may rival those of the Second World War years when high school students were summoned to the farms.

In the six other provinces harvest labor presents only a minor headache or none at all.

TIME IS SHORT

The harvest will be in full swing in Saskatchewan and Alberta within a week and no labor relief appears. Alberta authorities anticipate a severe economic loss in cereal grains unless aid arrives.

F. H. Newcombe, the Alberta agricultural department's labor director, said the shortage is the worst the province has seen and an appeal is being made for urban workers to help on holidays, weekends or even afternoons off.

He blamed a good crop, high industrial activity and a late Ontario harvest for the trouble. Most other officials agreed.

FEW ARRIVALS

About 4,000 extra workers were needed in Alberta and about only 1,000 were in sight. Wages range from $8 a day to $1.25 an hour.

Saskatchewan has asked the help of 1,000 workers from Ontario and Quebec; last year she asked 600. So far only a trickle has arrived on special excursion trains from the East, arranged by the federal and provincial governments. Alberta asked for 600. Neither federal nor Ontario labor officials would hazard a guess as to how many eastern workers would be recruited for the West.

Manitoba, which asked for 150 eastern men, also faced trouble but there was hope help would arrive in time. H. R. Richardson, provincial farm labor service director, said the situation is brighter than in Saskatchewan, and that Manitoba might weather the harvest season without extreme difficulty.

STUDENTS HELP

In Ontario 600 high school students were to be employed to help ease the shortage. W. R. Davison, a government agricultural adviser said a tight labor market caused by demands for workers in the construction, forestry and tourist industries presented problems. About 500 men had been recruited from the Maritimes and 3,000 had arrived from the United States—at their own expense—to help harvest the tobacco crop in the southern sections of the province.

A late harvest, caused by the tardy arrival of spring, meant that any Ontario help for the Prairies would be delayed.

Quebec officials estimated about 172,000 workers would be in the fields for harvesting this year, compared with 188,000 in 1955. About 3,000 women would join the farm force, against 7,000 last year.

They said there is a brisk demand for farm help in the province and some good jobs would go unfilled but they still expect to meet their share of the western demand for workers. Wages in Quebec would be about $5 a day plus board, compared with $5.10 last year.

GROWING PROBLEM

British Columbia also needs help, particularly apple-pickers in the rich Okanagan valley, but there would be no call for outside aid. Authorities said however the farm labor problem gets steadily worse each year.

The Atlantic provinces — Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick —all reported the harvest situation well in hand. In many cases off-season fishermen pitched in on the farms.

Prince Edward Island anticipated no trouble in recruiting 400 to 500 potato-pickers, mainly from [illegible]

Meanwhile Ottawa statisticians reported crops in good condition in most parts of the country. Manitoba, however, suffered heavily—an estimated $15,000,000 damage—in a vicious hail storm Aug. 11. Farmers hard-hit stood a good chance of getting Prairie Farm Assistance payments from the federal government.

GARDEN QUIZ

Propagate Violets In Spring

BY JACK BEASTALL

Q.—I wish to increase a very fine plant of the scented violet. How and when may I do this?

A.—The time to propagate violets is April, or after the main flowering period. The plants are then dug and divided in separate crowns, each with a few roots attached. Warm soil is needed to establish further roots. If your plant is quite large, you might dig it now and divide it into three, keeping the roots as undamaged as possible. Shade from hot sun and wind until established.

Q.—When are evergreens and fruit trees planted in this locality?

A.—Evergreens may be planted in September or October, in fact as soon as the nurseries are able to dig them, or again in early spring.

Fruit trees are not usually dug for sale until just after leaf fall in October, and may be planted at any time during a mild winter until growth is apparent in spring. It is a good plan to visit the nursery while the leaves are on the trees to select the varieties, you will then have some idea of their habit of growth.

TRAVEL NOTES By DON INGHAM

Aura of Paris Lingers Long After Visit to City of Magic

Paris needs no introduction. It is a dolt who has never longed to go to Paris at any time, and those who have managed to reach her usually bring home with them an aura that lingers long afterward.

Travel is expensive, but trips are trips no matter where they end, and if one feels inclined to journeying, Paris can be a rewarding destination.

There is no end to it. Many native Parisians have spent their lives exploring the beauties and curiosities of their city, and have died without exhausting the subject.

And if the city is not enough, there is that fascinating area within a 50-mile radius of Paris known as the "Il de France," which is a miniature edition of most things to be found in the whole of France.

A LIFETIME JOY

However, the city offers sufficient attractions to keep any visitor busy for as long as he wants to stay, be it a day or a lifetime.

Start with the Louvre, and do not stop after having seen the Venus de Milo, Victory at Samothrace, and "Mona Lisa." There are hundreds of thousands of great works in the huge museum, and every effort is made by the staff to put them before an admiring public.

But the Louvre is only one of seven art museums in Paris, all of which have their major attractions. In addition there are three museums of oriental art, 12 specialized art museums, six historical, four scientific, and eight highly specialized collections.

No one can see them all, but when father objects to an afternoon in the Musee National d'Art Moderne, he can at least counter with the Musee de la Marine, where a notable collection of ancient and modern ship models is on display along with other nautical objects.

There are also private galleries and numerous salons.

DINING AN ART

Dining in Paris is practically a fine art, with restaurants to suit every taste and pocketbook. The de luxe eateries charge from 2,500 francs upward, but there are scores in the medium price range of from 1,000 to 2,500 francs, and hundreds in the moderate class with an even more varied appeal.

Anyone interested in the theatre will find the best of grand opera, comedy and drama, moving pictures, and the "musical theatre" which stages what in this country are known as musical comedies and revues. The Folies-Bergere is the most famous of this group, but there are 14 others with lavish and gaudy revues. And you must tip the usher or face consequences that will absolutely astound you.

After the theatre? Night spots, with such names as La Boule Blanche, Casanova, Crazy Horse Saloon, Elephant Blanc, Chez-Gaby, Moulin-Rouge, Nouvelle Eve, Sheherezade, and others, beckon.

Although that kind of even- [illegible] where is it cheap? And where else is it Paris?

(This is a good place for a dissertation on money. According to the official pegged rate, $1 U.S. buys 350 francs, but rough equivalents for quick calculation are: 10 francs, three cents; 500 francs, $1.50; 1000 francs, $3; 5,000 francs, $15.)

There are no bargains in Paris stores, but for women's clothes especially there is the thrill of buying at the source. Small gifts and knicknacks, though, are priced for ordinary folk who want to take something good but cheap home with them.

All French hotels whose standards of comfort and cleanliness meet the demands of foreign tourists are officially classified as Hotels de Tourisme and are divided into categories.

The luxury hotels charge 6,000 francs for a double room with bath, and less out of season. All others are listed as A, B, or C, and these have subratings from four stars down to one. Maximum and minimum prices are set by official agreement, and off-season prices are from 10 to 20 per cent lower.

Braves Get Boost From Ed's Big Bat

IT'S MY VIEW BY Bill Walker

The threatened cancellation of the race meeting at Sandown Park once again raises the whole question about the future of horse racing for Victoria.

The threat came because horsemen said that they couldn't afford to race for the lower purses offered by the association, and the association said that with the attendance and mutuel play it gets, it cannot afford to pay higher purses.

An association official explained that even with a 20 per cent increase in the mutuel play and with the reduction in minimum purse money from $600 to $500 as proposed, the association would still lose approximately $10,000 on the meeting here.

However, they were prepared to operate at a loss if the horsemen had accepted the new terms or lower minimum purses.

The horsemen rejected this offer, thus producing a stalemate, which was only broken today when the race meeting was rescheduled.

But what is going to happen from now on?

Does this mean that followers of the thoroughbreds in the south Island area, as well as the breeders, are going to be denied their favorite sport in future years.

Victoria once was a good horse racing town. But ever since Vancouver interests got control of the sport here—and that goes back a long way—circumstances have conspired to knock it down, despite efforts of local horsemen to keep it alive.

Probably the most important factor was that of racing dates.

Years ago it was the custom to break the Vancouver racing season in the middle, ship the horses to Victoria for two weeks, then go back to Vancouver, and return for a final fall meeting in Victoria while the exhibition was still running.

But as Vancouver lengthened its racing season and the exhibition ceased to function, Victoria was pushed further into the background.

The meeting here was left until the tag end of the season when the chances of good weather were more remote. As a result, most of the better-class horses would head south, or go into barns for the winter, rather than come to Victoria. This inevitably lowered the class of racing here.

Finally, after Oak Bay ratepayers, in their wisdom, decided to abolish racing at the old Willows strip (and horses in the municipality), the racing interests put up the track at Sidney to hold their franchise.

Most followers of the sport in Victoria contended, and seemingly rightly so, that the Sandown track was too far out of town to attract sufficient crowds.

Even with the new speed highway it is not close enough to get many of the $2 punters who are the mainstay of the mutuels.

Despite that handicap, the racing interests endeavored to revive the sport last fall after a lapse of several years and staged a two-week meeting.

They lost money. There can be no doubt of that.

What About Other Sites?

But what of the future?

Two other proposals for horse racing have been advanced in the last couple of years, one for a plant at Beaver Lake, another for revival of the old Colwood track.

Both these locations are within easy distance of the city. They present few transportation problems for the racing public.

Perhaps it is time some one started looking into them again.

After, if something can be done about getting a track closer to the city, negotiations should be started with the mainland about equity of racing dates. There is no reason Vancouver should have all the choice dates, and all the holiday crowds.

Perhaps a provincial racing commission would serve a good purpose in this regard, not only to arbitrate on the dates question, but to improve the sport generally.

Milwaukee Jumps Lead; Mantle Homers

By The Associated Press

Ed Mathews, Milwaukee's slumbering thumper, finally is laying the wood to the ball, and the Braves have picked up the beat to gain a fast start in what may prove a suicide weekend for National League pennant contenders.

Mathews, a 24-year-old left-hand slugger who had only 20 home runs at the start of August, socked his 34th home run and drove in five runs Friday night as the Braves swept a twi-night doubleheader from St. Louis, 6-5 and 5-3.

The Braves, carried to 11 innings before putting the opener away, gained a 2½-game lead with the sweep while second-place Brooklyn was defeating New York Giants 7-3. Cincinnatti's persistent Redlegs came from behind with two ninth-inning runs to defeat Chicago Cubs 4-3 and still slipped 3½ games off the lead.

Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 6-3.

In the American League, Washington's Jim Lemon outhomered Mickey Mantle 3-1, but the Mick's shot was his 47th and broke up a tie game as New York Yankees defeated the Senators 6-4. Chicago White Sox, held to one hit for nine innings by Early Wynn, defeated Cleveland 1-0 in a 10-inning nightcap after the Indians won the opener 3-2.

Al Kaline's five RBIs and the three-single pitching of Paul Foytack gave Detroit a 6-1 decision over Kansas City. Four Baltimore home runs smashed Boston 13-6.

Mathews, who batted in 37 runs in August for an 85 total, unloaded his homer with two on for a 5-4 Milwaukee lead in the seventh inning of the opener. Stan Musial's 23rd homer tied it in the ninth, but the Braves finally grabbed it as Andy Pafco doubled in the 11th, went to third on an error and came home on Jack Dittmer's single.

Frank Robinson's 35th home run, three shy of the rookie record, and a pinch sacrifice fly by Smoky Burgess won for the Redlegs.

Mantle's homer, a solo shot, came in the seventh and left him four games up on Babe Ruth's record 60 pace. By then Lemon had driven in all the Washington runs, tagging lefty Whitey Ford for his 24th, 25th, and 26th home runs.

PAIR OF ABLE SEAMEN

Brushing up offensive patterns in signal drill are two members of this year's Navy squad in the Victoria Intermediate Football League. When the sailors meet Oak Bay Drakes next Friday night, quarterback Joe Hornesty, left, will be barking signals to veteran centre, Roy Reeves. (RCN Photo.)

Can Tars, Vamps Curb Drakes?

Oak Bay Drakes and Navy will lift the pigskin curtain on Victoria's 1956 football season, Sept. 7, and Athletic Park's floodlights may throw some illumination on the question—just how strong are the Drakes?

The defending Western Canada champions, who went to the Canadian semifinals last year, are rebuilding and making no bones about the fact that they are attempting to put together a dominion titlist.

Drake officials have pronounced themselves knee-deep in material, and rival coaches, Frank Hindle of Navy and Ray Mitchell of Mayo Vampires, are not backward in recognizing the problem that Drakes pose.

Drakes, under coaches Freddy French and Bob Scarabelli, have all the best members of last year's mean, bruising line returning, with the addition of several newcomers.

Among the new candidates for the line are Joe Kurlyo, a hefty tackle from Regina; Eno Marchbank, a 235-pound tackle from Flin Flon; Ken Calderhead, former Vancouver Blue Bomber end, and Gary Taylor, who has played end with UBC and Vampires.

Back from last year will be such luminaries as Larry Brownlee, Trev West, Dick Irving and Harry Turner. A pair of former backfielders, Don Hendry and Pete Turko, are shooting for end positions this year.

Drakes will be running their backs out of the split-T, twin-fullback formation and can choose a starting backfield from two quarterbacks, five fullbacks and six halfbacks.

Ted Sanregret is the most touted of the backs and is expected to see heavy duty at quarterback, alternated by Willie Dawson, up from the Junior Drakes.

Traffic Thick in Drake Backfield

At fullbacks, Drakes have veteran Red White, a good plunger and dependable safety man; newcomers Ted Koska and Rick Ginn, holdover Pat Corneille and former rugby star Bob Abbott.

Trying out for the halfback spots are holdovers Johnny Whan, George Wilson, Barry Caviness and newcomers to the city Jack Witty and Gordon Hemmingway. Dawson may also see action as a halfback.

But while Drakes appear to have the grid market cornered, things do not have the same rosy outlook in the Vampire camp, where coach Ray Mitchell admits to being seriously short of players.

"We have had about 20 players trying out for the club," Mitchell says "and we will have a team this year. But if we don't get some more material, we may be weak."

But while the club may be weak in numbers, Mitchell is fortunate in having a nucleus of his old reliables back for another shot this year, notably quarterback Wayne Henderson, a sharp left-handed passer and all-purpose back Charlie Bishop, one of the most explosive runners in the city.

Also back are veterans like Al Marks, Norm Lidstone and Rick McVie.

Condition Key to Sailors' Hopes

Coach Frank Hindle's chief concern at present is whipping his team into shape in a short time.

Only in the past week has he been able to muster his full team in opposition with leaves and sea drafts, and he says, "We are coming along slowly and we'll be a little behind the other teams in condition at the start."

"Generally, the club will be about the same as last year. We will have the advantage of a slightly heavier line but the disadvantage of trying to replace Paul Skinulus, who was just about half our defensive club."

In Navy's favor is the return of tackle Doug Brown, a fair enough lineman but an exceptionally valuable place-kicker and punter. Other linemen are Walt King, Roy Reeves, Bob Douggan, Bill Schwager and Mac Wilson.

Archie Langston, an eminently successful passer last year, particularly against the Drakes, is fighting for the quarterback spot with Joe Hornesty.

Tom's Trusty Toe Two-Time 'Trump'

Bombers Edge B.C. Lions; Alouettes Humble Riders

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers are in second place in the Western Interprovincial Football Union today, thanks to the educated toe of end Tom Miner.

For the second time in less than a week, Miner has used a last-quarter field goal to bring his team from behind and chalk up a victory.

Friday night the Bombers' trump card accounted for all Bombers' points as Al Sherman's team edged British Columbia Lions 3-1 to go into a tie with the second-place Lions.

Miner, obtained in an off-season trade with Calgary Stampeders for tackle Dick Huffman, was not nearly as dramatic as against Stamps Monday night.

Then he kicked a field goal from 37 yards out on the last play of the game for a 16-15 Winnipeg win. Calgary has protested the win, claiming Bombers had 13 men on the field at the time.

WIPES OUT LEAD

Friday night in the mud and rain, Miner, an end from Tulsa University, kicked a field goal from seven yards out to erase a 1-0 lead that Lions had nursed from the first quarter when halfback Gord Rowland of Bombers was rouged on a kick by Paul Cameron, halfback and quarterback for Lions.

The game-winning field goal was set up by a penalty against Lions for roughing quarterback Herman Eagle Day. Bombers won possession on the Lions' 20 and when their attack bogged down on the British Columbia seven, Miner came in to kick the field goal.

The game's only touchdown was nullified by an offside ruling. Buddy Leake of Bombers fumbled and fullback Al Pollard of Lions recovered on his own 14 and ran 96 yards to the Winnipeg goal-line. But the officials called the ball back, ruling Lions had been offside.

'The Rifle,' That's Sam, Barks Loudly

OTTAWA (CP)—The clear eye and powerful passing of Sam (the Rifle) Etcheverry shooed Montreal Alouettes to a 42-10 triumph over Ottawa, humiliating the Rough Riders in their first Big Four home game Friday night at Lansdowne Park before a record 17,870 fans.

The brilliant Montreal quarterback, who got his lumps occasionally from a fired-up but spotty Ottawa line, had pass catchers running through the Riders in all directions, although only two of six Alouette touchdowns came on his throws. He carried the ball across for one himself.

Between touchdowns, though, Sam gained an amazing 393 yards with his dead-eye throwing. He tossed 11 straight passes without a miss. For the night he completed 24 of 29 attempts.

Bruce Coulter came in to give Sam a rest and completed four more to boost Montreal's total to 435 yards through the air.

For a few breathless minutes during the first quarter, the Rough Riders seemed capable of giving the Montrealers, Big Four champions last year, a run for their money.

Avatus Stone kicked a single over the deadline. Several times Rider linemen broke through to smear Sam for losses. But they couldn't keep him down.

He unlimbered and tossed payoff passes to George Brancato and Joey Pal. Halfback Bob Pascal plunged over from close out for two Alouette TDs and Bill Tomegusso scored the other.

Don Pinhey gathered in Hal Ledyard's pass for Riders' TD.

Ike's Cheers For Mickey Go to Jim

Mantle Hits One, Lemon Gets Three

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower cheered Mickey Mantle's 47th home run of the season Friday night.

But it was lanky Jim Lemon of the losing Washington Senators, with three homers in a row, who really set the president to yelling like a schoolboy.

Eisenhower went out to Griffith Stadium to the New York-Washington game with the express hope of seeing Mantle, the Yankee's great slugger, edge closer to the 1927 record of 60 home runs set by Babe Ruth.

"Hit two home runs for me tonight," photographers standing by the president's box quoted him as telling Mickey when the Yankee centrefielder stopped by just before the game.

Mantle promised to try, and he did come through with one in the seventh inning. It was a mighty clout which hit the electric light tower just beyond the right field wall.

The Yankees did win the game, 6-4, and Eisenhower as a Washington resident possibly got no satisfaction out of that.

Soo's Streak Stopped at 34

WASHINGTON (AP)—Baby Vasquez of Mexico City stopped favorite Jimmy Soo of Philadelphia on a technical knockout in 1.36 of the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round lightweight bout at Capitol Arena Friday night.

Soo weighed 136, Vasquez 135.

Vasquez floored Soo with a left and right to the head to hand the up-and-coming Philly puncher his first defeat in 34 fights.

Soo rose at the count of eight but was so shaky referee Marty Gallagher moved in and waved the contest to a halt.

PHIL WILL BE MISSED . . . . . AT WORLD SERIES TIME

The Little Man Who Won't Be There

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Phil Rizzuto will be the little man who wasn't there in the world series this year, and it is a tossup as to who will miss him most—the fans or the Yankees.

The mighty mouse so often has been "the difference" in these fall classics; the guy who made the big play, or squeezed in the big run, or got the big hit.

He'll never be immortalized in poetry, as Franklin P. Adams immortalized a Chicago Cub trio of the dim past in the verse that started:

These are the saddest of possible words:
"Tinker to Evers to Chance . . ."

He couldn't be. It would have to be Rizzuto to Gordon, or Priddy, or Frey, or Johnson, or Carey, or Brown, or Stirweiss, or Coleman, or McDougald, or Martin to any number of a similar assortment of first basemen.

The effervescent mite, teamed with them all at one time or another. He was the one constant quantity in the Yankee double-play equation for a dozen years, outlasting all his second-base partners except the current crop.

Some of these helpers were great, some good, some just so-so, but no matter what their quality they sparkled in his company.

Rizzuto had the fastest pair of hands, could get the ball away quicker than any infielder we ever saw. We'd better put that in the present tense, as for our money he still can get out there and play plenty of shortstop.

Whether snagging a bunt, churning back for a short fly ball, or scooting along to palm a ground ball he is a delight to watch. He never had a strong arm, but he hasn't needed one. So rapidly does he get the ball away that he can arc the ball to first base like a kid playing ante over and still get his man.

That he was released by the Yankees wasn't too much of a surprise. He knew he couldn't go on indefinitely and that, at nearly 38, he is far beyond the age most players remain active.

He has had a long, full career, crowded with fame and financially rewarding. In fact, his financial status over the past 15 years has been far above that of the average young man of his years.

He'll continue to do all right, will the sprightly fellow with the excited voice who still looks as if he is skipping school.

Perhaps the saddest part of his departure from the Yankees is that it marks the end of an era.

FORMER FISHMONGER BETS BUNDLE . . . . . FOR BRITISH MITT CHAMP

Cockney Jack Pursues 1,000-1 Shot

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Jack Solomons, boxing entrepreneur extraordinary, has one overriding ambition—to bring the heavyweight boxing championship of the world back to Britain.

"Everybody thinks I'm crazy; but I believe it can be done," says Solomons, who directs his fistic empire from a dingy, cluttered office in London's Soho district, a few steps off Piccadilly Circus.

From it, too, he issues orders for the operation of Jack Solomons, fishmongers; Jack Solomons, turf accountants (bookmakers); and a thriving restaurant business.

In his spare moments Solomons writes the script of a weekly television show, goes to football games, howls about Britain's crushing entertainment tax, and smokes cigars for publicity purposes. And he does all this without appearing overworked.

The two phones on his office desk are rarely idle. His annual phone bill runs to some £2,500, much of it trans-Atlantic calls to boxers in Canada and the United States.

"A bookmaker friend of mine was ribbing me at lunch one day about the lack of top British heavyweights and offered odds of 1,000-to-1 if I could produce a world champion by the end of next year," says Solomons. "I stand to make £10,000 if I pull it off and believe me I'm trying."

He plans a series of matches against top United States boxers for Britain's three top young heavyweights—Dick Richardson, Joe Erskine and Henry Cooper.

Solomons rates Richardson, a 22-year-old Welshman, as the best boxer in Britain. He expects Richardson will fight former world champion Ezzard Charles later this year.

"I also hope to bring over fighters like Nino Valdes of Cuba, James Parker of Canada and Eddy Machen of California to test our youngsters. The main thing our boys lack is experience against top-flight fighters."

Solomons, who stage-managed the recent Archie Moore-Parker heavyweight scrap in Toronto, says he hopes to engage in other fight promotions in Canada in the near future.

"Canada is a wonderful country and has a great future as a top boxing centre."

Born in London's tough east end, Solomons started out as a fighter himself, "but after three bouts I decided there was more future in the promotional end."

In 1945, the Cockney fishmonger gambled on a major outdoor promotion pitting Bruce Woodcock against Jack London. It made him.

In all, he has staged about a dozen world title matches, including the memorable Randolph Turpin-Ray Robinson bout in July, 1951, that saw Turpin win a stunning upset decision over the American.

It is in many ways a measure of his success that The Sunday Times recently devoted its "portrait gallery" feature to an article on Solomons—an honor usually reserved to prime ministers and statesmen of international standing.

History is against Solomons achieving his ambition and winning his wager. For the last Briton to wear the world heavyweight crown was Cornishman Robert L. Fitzsimmons back in 1897. But pride, the urge of prestige and the keen stratagems of a born promoter are decidedly on his side.

WILLIE TO WILLIE:

Here's Mud In the Eye To You Too

CHICAGO (AP)—There are two little guys riding horses at Washington Park these days who would really mean it if they told each other: "Here's mud in your eye, Willie."

Willie Hartack, who'd rather be called "Bill," and Willie Shoemaker are hooked up in a rousing duel for 1956 national riding honors, with Hartack on Friday leading by only two winners, 265 to 263.

Both will ride out the Washington Park meeting which ends Monday and then will complete at Atlantic City where the season closes Oct. 6.

How do they feel about the daily pressure of riding against each other?

Said the 23-year-old Hartack: "Naturally, you know your rival is in the race. But you just can't spend all your time concentrating on him. There are some other pretty good jockeys around here, too."

Commented Shoemaker, 25, who did his earlier riding this year on the west coast: "I try not to think about it. I believe you do your best riding when you're not too tight and the pressure's not on you."

Hartack, 112-pound Pennsylvanian who has been competing for four years, is the defending national riding champion with 417 winners in 1955. Shoemaker was the 1953 champion with a record of 485 winners and repeated in 1954 with 380.

Only Johnny Longden, native of Tabery, Alta.—in 1938, 1947 and 1948—and Johnny Adams—in 1937, 1942 and 1943—previously won three national riding titles.

Shoemaker can set a new record with a fourth crown.

The next big Shoemaker vs Hartack duel comes in the $142,260 Washington Park Futurity Saturday. Shoemaker rides Rex C. Ellsworth's California Kid, a stablemate of Swaps. Hartack is riding Fred W. Hooper's Greek Game.

B.C. 'Has Everything' Says Outdoor Magazine

The outdoor treasures of British Columbia are described and extolled in a special 24-page section in the September issue of Field & Stream magazine.

Written by associate editor Frank Dufresne, who peered into virtually every canyon and creek in the province on his survey, the definitive article outlines the bountiful fishing and hunting harvest that waits to be reaped in B.C. and is especially aimed at the American tourist consumer.

Titled "British Columbia—The Sportsman's New World Today," the article begins with a glow-introductory paragraph that says, in part, "If a sportsman were to draw up specifications for an ideal fishing and hunting region, chances are he'd wind up with a plan of British Columbia. For B.C. has what he wants: a mulititude of game fish at practically all seasons of the year, wilderness areas full of big game, slathers of game birds. In fact, British Columbia has everything. . . ."

The story opens with a breathless description of salmon fishing on the fly at Moresby Island in the Queen Charlottes.

It moves then into a breakdown into the game and birds that were bagged last year and points out that British Columbia is overstocked in many outdoor assets.

Hunting for waterfowl and upland game birds, deer, moose, bear, elk, caribou and mountain goats are described as superlative.

Ten paragraphs are devoted to the Cowichan River-Cowichan Bay-Cowichan Lake area.

Of the river, the story says, "But for the fisherman who wants a challenge—who likes to feel he has earned his fish—the Cowichan River is the real attraction. One elderly Scot, who has fished all over the world (including Iceland and New Zealand) said Cowichan provided the finest wet-fly trout fishing he'd ever known. . . ."

The story includes maps of the most productive fishing and hunting areas in the province, lists of supplies that should be included on trips, including the best fishing tackle and firearms and even includes one side-bar story labelled, "How to Get to British Columbia."

Well, U.S. Coaches Think Canada Okay

TORONTO (CP) — Two United States coaches Friday said they have more faith in Canada's Olympic track and field team than their Canadian counterparts.

They said so during a week-long training program here for recently-named Olympic-team members, together with 150 future Olympic prospects from every Canadian province.

The yearly school is sponsored by the Canadian National Exhibition and is climaxed by a CNE sports meet today and Monday at which they get a chance to show what they have learned.

Despite poor showings at trials in Hamilton last week Canada's team can be the biggest upset of the Melbourne games, the visiting coaches, Dr. Ken Doherty of the University of Pennsylvania and Carl Olson of Pittsburgh University said.

Olson, who coached the U.S. women's team at the 1952 Olympics said he liked the style of the women's 400-metre relay team.

"They are good enough to win a gold medal and I would not be surprised if they did," he said.

Dr. Doherty eyed the men's 400 and 1,600-metre relay lineups and predicted that they will easily place in the first six at the Olympics in Melbourne in November.

Bays Blow Early Lead In Defeat by Redmen

Rossland 9, Victoria 7

ROSSLAND (CP)—The defending champion Rossland Redmen rallied from a 4-0 deficit to down the Victoria Foul Bay, 9-7, in the opener of the best-of-three B.C. senior B lacrosse finals here Friday night.

Foul Bay, who lost the title to Rossland last year in three games, scored a goal-a-minute to open the game with Frank Cower beating Buddy Dupperon for the first tally. Gower was followed by Walt Harris and Norm Kowalyk. Don Pimlott made it 4-0 early in the second before Rossland uncorked any type of scoring attack.

Jack Laface notched Rossland's first tally in the second and the Braves added two more leaving Victoria with a 5-3 lead at the halftime mark.

The Redmen deadlocked the game in the third with two unanswered goals and then scored four consecutive tallies in the fourth without a reply from Victoria.

Walt Harris scored a brace for Victoria with Frank Gower, Reg Lott, Don Pimlott, Paul Lapoint and Norm Kowalyk adding one each.

More than 900 spectators were on hand for the series opener. The second game is scheduled for Rossland Saturday night and the third, if necessary Monday.

Art Gets Paid, But Ref Must Answer Why

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Welterweight Art Aragon got paid Thursday but he and referee Abe Roth still face a hearing as an aftermath of Aragon's stormy technical knockout Wednesday night over little Cisco Andrade.

Chief Inspector Clayton Frye of the California Athletic Commission, which had impounded Aragon's purse, directed the Hollywood Legion Stadium to turn over approximately $24,500 to the fighter.

Roth, a veteran referee, was suspended pending an inquiry into the peremptory fashion in which he halted the fight early in the ninth round of a scheduled 10-rounder.

Aragon took a sound drubbing for more than seven rounds from the dancing, jabbing Andrade. He finally connected with a long left late in the eight round to floor Cisco.

In the ninth Aragon again put Andrade down under a barrage of punches. Cisco got up at nine, and appeared to be mentally alert. Roth, however, abruptly turned and raised Aragon's arm as the winner. He said later Aragon on his card was five points ahead going into the round and he wanted to spare Andrade from further damage.

NEEDS FOUR WINNERS

Johnny's 'Day' Can He Do It?

DEL MAR, Calif. (AP) — This is the day, says Johnny Longden's agent, "that I've been pointing for."

It is Longden's 15th wedding anniversary and he could celebrate it by equaling or breaking the world's riding record of Sir Gordon Richards of England.

Longden's 29-year-old win total is only four short of Sir Gordon's 4,870 record and he has seven mounts in today's nine-race program.

His agent, 70-year-old Basil Smith, who from long association is inclined to speak of himself and the jockey as a single person, says:

"I want to break the record on the anniversary. It would be nice. Something to remember."

Longden, 46-year-old native of Taber, Alta., was letting Smith do the talking.

If he doesn't equal or break the record today, he likely will get around to it Monday or some day next week, barring accidents.

Longden turned in two wins in five rides Friday, a stiff assignment that he carried through despite an injured eye.

B.C. Gridders Injured in Crash

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two players with the British Columbia Lions were slightly injured early today in a two-car collision.

Quarterback Paul Cameron suffered a bruised chest and centre Steve Palmer received a strained back. Reserve quarterback Jerry Gustafson was shaken up.

Washington, D.C.—Baby Vasquez, 135, Mexico City, stopped Jimmy Boo, 136, Philadelphia, 6.

New Orleans—Charley Joseph, 160, New Orleans, stopped Jesse Turner, 158½, St. Louis, 6.

English Youth Rates Chance in Olympics

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—John Young, an English schoolboy who breaks every rule in the sprinter's stylebook, is Britain's chief hope for the 100-metre final at the Olympic Games.

At 18, the beefily-built Warwickshire student is the baby of Britain's team of 40 men and 11 women athletes selected to represent their country in Australia Nov. 23 to Dec. 1.

Almost unknown in track circles at the beginning of the season, the muscular youth with the ungainly stride zoomed into prominence overnight with a 9.9 seconds performance for the 100 yards to win the Amateur Athletic Association championships in mid-July.

A week later he staged a marathon performance on the cinder track at the schools' championships at Plymouth, competing in 16 races in seven days. He won them all.

Young's 9.9 time in the AAA championships is fast by British standards although well outside the world record time of 9.3 seconds held jointly by Mel Patton and J. J. Golliday of the United States and H. D. Hogan of Australia.

His best time for the 100-metres is 10.7 seconds, compared with the world mark of 10.1 chalked up early this month by the American Negro sprinters, Willie Williams and Ira Murchison.

RUGBY STAR

At Bishop Vesey's grammar school in Sutton Coldfield, where Young was an honor student before graduating this year, the sprint star was better known for his prowess on the rugger field. He has won six international schoolboy caps and expects to enter Oxford University next term.

Young has never been coached for track and it is cruel, but accurate, to say he runs that way.

His starting technique is clumsy and his head rolls as he picks up speed. Arms flailing, he tears along the track in a display of raw, untrained power. But, as his times indicate, he covers the ground in a hurry.

Ironically, it is Young's style faults that make British track experts so hopeful of his chances at Melbourne. They believe he can cut at least three-fifths of a second off his present time under expert coaching.

Team coach G. H. G. Dyson says however no attempt will be made to change Young's running style before the Olympics — "we'd probably do more harm than good in the little time left."

But the young athlete will be rigidly drilled on the proper starting technique, a vital factor in the sprints.

Young doesn't expect to run off with a gold medal at Melbourne, but he does hope to finish near the top. And from now on rugger takes second place to track.

"I've told team manager Jack Crump that there will be no more rugger—the risk of injury is too great."

SOUTH AFRICAN REIGN ENDS

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters) — New Zealand beat South Africa 11-5 today in the Rugby Union test and handed South Africa its first defeat after holding the unofficial world rugby crown for 60 years.

Hero of the day for New Zealand was 228-pound fullback Don Clarke, who scored eight points with his kicks. He kicked two penalty goals and converted a try scored by Peter Jones.

TIME OUT! By JEFF KEATE

"Well, for heaven's sake! All summer I've wondered what became of Stikney in that cross country race!"

Harry (No Kid) Proves Ez-No Kid Too

SEATTLE (AP) — Harry (no longer the kid) Matthews, Seattle's aging ring warrior, won an unanimous 10-round decision over that other veteran, Cincinnati ring heavyweight Ezzard Charles Friday night.

Matthews, outweighed by 18 pounds at 182, won decisively by keeping Charles off balance with a jabbing left and scoring frequently to the head with his right.

The only knockdown of the 10-rounder was in the first when the former heavyweight champion went down for a three-count as Matthews caught him on the button with a right hook in the first minute of fighting.

Mike Gibbons Dies

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Mike Gibbons, known as the "St. Paul phantom" in middleweight boxing during the early 1920s, died Friday at his home.

PITCHERS NEED 'BREAK'

Hutchinson Urges Return of Spitter

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Fred Hutchinson, manager of St. Louis Cardinals, Friday night urged a return of the spitball "to give the pitchers an even break."

The Cardinal manager, a former hurler with Detroit Tigers, let his feelings be known here before his club opened a two-night doubleheader with Milwaukee Braves.

"I don't know why it was outlawed in the first place unless it was because people thought it was unsanitary," he said. "But nowadays the hitters get every break."

SPEED CUT ON MALAHAT CONTINUES

A 35-miles-an-hour speed limit on newly-paved portions of the Malahat highway is still in effect, although paving crews may not be working, RCMP warns.

Several motorists were convicted and fined in Colwood court Friday for speeding along the rebuilt stretch of highway.

Pilotage Rescues Two as Boat Sinks

A Victoria man and his 13-year-old daughter were saved by B.C. Pilotage launchmen early this morning, shortly before their 32-foot troller sank off the Dallas Road waterfront.

The troller broke down about midnight when 40 mile an hour winds sent seas dashing inboard, flooded the ignition, and killed the engine.

Owner of the troller, the Mable L, is CPO John Laing, 268 Zealous Crescent. With him was his daughter Susan.

"We were in deep trouble," CPO Laing said today. "We were wallowing helplessly, without power."

To summon aid, he filled a wax-lined, wooden butter box with old clothing, doused it in gasoline, lit it and set it afloat.

Nearly Swamped by Train Ferry

The Mable L. was nearly swamped when the CNR car ferry Canora spotted the improvised flare and came alongside to render assistance.

The big ferry was unable to take the small troller in tow, and messaged air-sea rescue centre in Vancouver for additional aid.

Air-sea reseue notified Gordon Head wireless, which in turn called the B.C. pilotage office on Dallas road.

B.C. Pilot No. 2 was immediately sent out, with launchmen Wally Tribe and Percy Pike in charge. They reached the Conora and the stricken troller at 12.30 a.m., between Clover Point and Trial Island, and took the fishboat in tow.

The weather worsened while the tow was being carried out, and the Mable L continued to ship water. Just inside the breakwater, headed for the pilotage wharf, the troller finally went under the waves.

It sank in about 40 feet of water. Today a lumber "hyster" towed it into shallower water.

There is no insurance on the boat. It was given CPO Laing by his father, and the navy man was bringing it here from Vancouver to give it a refit.

CPO Laing was formerly in HMCS Ontario, is now on leave preparatory to joining HMCS Naden.

Smile never dimmed

Well-Loved Dolly Wilson Dies of Cancer

By ELIZABETH FORBES
Times Women's Editor

Dolly Wilson is dead. And hundreds of her friends the world round will mourn. She died in the Vancouver General Hospital this morning of cancer.

Stricken with the dread disease several years ago when she was living in Victoria, Mrs. Wilson refused to let it spoil her life.

She did move to Vancouver to be near her son, Dr. Roger Wilson, but whenever there was something in this city that she wanted to attend, she boarded a plane with a companion and returned for the occasion.

Even in this last year, when it was getting increasingly hard for her to move about, she attended functions at Government House and was in the Empress Hotel for the CPR Golf Tournament that she had assisted with so many times in former years.

Wherever she appeared she held her own receiving line as old friends crowded around her.

DAUGHTER OF PIONEERS

Mrs. Charles Wilson, the former Miss Dorothy Sehl (Dolly, as she loved to be called), was the daughter of pioneer residents of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sehl. She was educated at St. Ann's Academy and in 1906 married Charles E. Wilson, son of another pioneer, William Wilson, who founded the firm of W. & J. Wilson, one of Victoria. Mr. Wilson predeceased her some years ago.

With a lovely singing voice, Mrs. Wilson often sang in charity concerts in her youth and was a member of the choirs of St. Andrew's Cathedral and Our Lady of Lourdes Church. She was also a member of the Ladies' Musicial Vlub here. She was first secretary of the Women's Canadian Club when it was organized in 1909 and for many years was a member of the IODE. She also belonged to the St. John Ambulance and was active as a VAD in the First World War.

GOLFER, TOO

Golf was another of her activities. She was captain of the Victoria Golf Club ladies' division for a term and is a life member of the Colwood Golf Club. When the CPR golf tournaments were first inaugurated in 1930 she became the annual tournament hostess, and held that title until she moved to Vancouver.

It is however in the world of amateur theatricals and as an organizer par excellence, that Dolly Wilson will be most remembered. When Hon. E. W. Humber was lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, Mrs. Wilson was called upon to arrange garden parties at Government House where she raised thousands of dollars for the Red Cross. She also arranged extravagant floor shows for the Empress Hotel tournaments

After her husband died, Mrs. Wilson became a world traveler and circled the globe on several tours. She took up wood carving and furniture making and the art of creating beauty from copper, pewter and silver. Many of the articles she created she gave away for she had a generous heart.

She leaves two sons, Ellbeck B. Wilson and Dr. Roger Wilson, both of Vancouver; a daughter, Mrs. Dennis Harris, also in Vancouver; one sister, Mrs. Emma Dottridge of London, Eng.; two brothers, Frank J. Sehl and Herman Sehl in Victoria. Prayers will be offered in Our Lady of Lourdes Church on Wednesday, Sept 5 at 9 p.m., and requiem mass will be sung Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery.

Holiday Weekend Events Offer Something for All

Perfect weather and one of the largest entry lists in its 88-year history marked the opening today of the annual Saanichton fair, top attraction on a long list of Labor Day weekend attractions.

Fair secretary Arthur Howe said interest in every competition class with the exception of flowers was well above that of a year ago.

The fair program got under way this morning with eliminations in the western riding events, when more than 100 horses and their riders were entered.

4-H Club judging classes also got under way this morning and were continuing most of the day. One of the outstanding features of this event was the participation of the Sannichton 4-H goat club, only 4-H goat club in Canada.

Attendance was good, but fair officials expect at least 10,000 Monday, when highland dancing, cattle judging, English riding events, and the static exhibits will be the major attractions.

Also vying for attention in the Saanich area was the giant Saanich Golden Jubilee celebration at Beaver Lake, culmination of months of work by Saanich public servants.

Opening event of the municipality's birthday party was the teenagers' mass swim from Elk Lake to Beaver Lake. The official opening took place at 2 p.m., and the rest of the afternoon was devoted to a band concert, diving competitions, frogmen display, talent show, and dancing in the evening.

LOGGERS' SPORTS

The three-day Comox fall fair at Courtenay closed today with the staging of the Pacific Northwest loggers' championship sports, that started this morning and will continue throughout the day.

This evening in Victoria will see stock car drivers racing at Western Speedway, starting at 7.30 p.m.

Fishermen will dominate the sport scene Sunday at the Cowichan Bay salmon derby, Salmon Club derby at Port Angeles, and Esquimalt Cerebral Palsy coho derby, to continue into Monday.

Other main attraction on the Island will be the eight-team baseball tournament at Courtenay with $1,000 at stake in prizes. Four games will be played Sunday, and finals will be held Monday at Lewis Park. Teams are from Vancouver, Nanaimo, Alberni, Campbell River, Cumberland and Courtenay, with Victoria's entry being the Farmer Construction nine.

Monday will be the dog day, as Saanich and other Victorians by the thousand will meet their rural neighbors and see first-hand the livestock and farm produce that has made the Saanich peninsula famous.

Highland dancing will get under way at noon with a program of 20 events. Horse breed class competition will start at 10.30 a.m., and will be followed by English saddle classes at the large ring in the top field. The program lists 10 events for children and adults.

CATTLE JUDGING

Other chief attraction will be the cattle judging that will continue through the afternoon in three rings.

ARLENE JOHNSTON
. . . Cowichan queen

Willows Beach in Oak Bay will be the scene of the annual Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association annual regatta, sponsored this year by Oak Bay municipality as one of the Golden Jubilee events.

Entries have been received from Vancouver Island and mainland points for the regatta, last sanctioned meet of the season for B.C. Fourteen races are scheduled.

Stock car racers will begin time trials at Western Speedway, Monday, at 2 p.m., and feature of the day will be the Gold Cup race.

CROWNING

Village of Lake Cowichan, on Cowichan Lake, will start its annual celebration Monday with the crowning of Arlene Johnston, 17, as Lady of the Lake. She will be crowned by her predecessor, Heather McDonald, of Caycuse, and her attendants will be Anne Leach and Marilyn Waite.

Colin Cameron, MP for Nanaimo, and Ernest Towle, chairman of the board of commissioners, will preside over the program, to include a costume and float parade, soap box derby, loggers' sports, water sports, track and field events, and a dance.

BETWEEN TIMES
By
Judy Boots Streak

Well I am here to tell you I have nothing but admiration for the State of Washington and especially for the state parks of the State of Washington.

And in case you are wondering who I am to be going around having nothing but admiration why I am Judy Boots Streak the female-type dog who lives at the Old Man's House and sometimes when the Old Man can think of an excuse why I have to write his column for him.

And the excuse the Old Man has thought up is, Monday is Labor Day, and the Old Man is taking today off so he can rest up and be ready to Labor on Labor Day although I think this is a pretty poor excuse, don't you?

But if I wish to earn my bed and bones I had better not argue with the Old Man, now where was I?, oh, yes, I was telling you I have nothing but admiration for the state parks in the State of Washington.

In the Washington state parks, discrimination has been wiped out.

The booklets which tell you all about the Washington state parks contain a very important sentence, a sentence which strikes a note for equal rights.

This sentence says "Dogs and cats must be on leash."

You see what I mean for once the poor cat is recognized as a four footed personality and is accorded equal privileges with the dog, namely to be on leash and as a long-time supporter of equal rights for cats I think this is a very good thing indeed.

Washington state parks are not like some of the parks we have around here where the signs say "dogs must be on leash" but there is no mention of cats, cats are completely neglected.

So I am thinking seriously of getting a tent for the Old Man and taking him with me to a Washington state park where he can live happily ever after carrying on a campaign for an even greater privilege for cats, namely the privilege of buying a license and wearing it jingle-jangle on his collar.

Hurray for the Washington state parks but let us press onward to even greater things, I thank you.

Scale Methods Under Fire From Snowsell

Practices followed in the woods rob the people of B.C. of "hundreds of thousands of dollars each year," CCF candidate Frank Snowsell charged at a meeting Friday in the Sidney K of P Hall.

B.C. Forest Products Ltd., the [illegible] ting on both land within its forest management licence and on former E & N Railway lands.

"Government acting scalers, paid by the company, are instructed to reduce the scale of logs cut on the publicly-owned land and to pad the scale of logs cut on E & N land," he said. "They do this because the stumpage paid on timber cut on forest management licence land is much higher than royalties collected on timber from the E & N."

B.C. Forest Products allowable cut this year is 130,000,000 board feet on E & N land and 22,000,000 feet on crown land. A total of 11,000,000 feet is supposed to be available to small operators.

DISHONESTY?

"B.C. Forest Products has no small market operators employed in this licence," he said. "Could it be that the employment of small operators in this area would reveal dishonest scaling of the big company?"

"Government scalers checking the small operators would give a check on company scaling," he said. "It is fear that the report of the Sloan commission will reveal this robbery of the public treasury, going on with this knowledge, that is making Premier Bennett call an election before the Sloan report is made public."

Big Island Plant Under Picket Threat

About 1,000 construction workers and plant men could be idled by a picket line on Crown Zellerbach's deep sea wharf at Duncan Bay, a Victorian union officer said today.

Seamen's International Union is planning action which may delay sailing of a freighter from the pulp mill operation to California with liquid wood pulp next week.

The ship is the Ss. Duncan Bay, operated by National Bulk Carriers, New York, under contract to Crown Zellerbach Corp.

"We certainly plan to take some action," union port agent Norman Cunningam said in Vancouver, "but at this stage I do not want to divulge what we plan to do."

The ship is under Liberian registry and carries a mixed crew, 34 of whom are Okinawans. Most of the rest are from the British West Indies.

Mr. Cunningham said the ship is due at Duncan Bay from Japan Tuesday and is scheduled to take a cargo of pulp to Antioch, Calif.

The entire Duncan Bay project is organized, the Victoria union man said, and if an SIU picket were established it would be honored by all workers, about 700 of them on construction.

The radio was taken from Empress Garage, and the trousers from Jameson Motors. [illegible] found in the laundry office was a red sweater.

Tory Chisholm, Noted Orator, Won't Make Speech in Campaign

Dr. Brock Chisholm, one of Canada's most noted public speakers, will make no speeches during his campaign as Progressive Conservative candidate for Esquimalt in the Sept. 19 provincial election.

"I think this policy is very sound at this stage of my political career," he said in accepting the nomination Friday night.

"I have no political experience at all."

Dr. Chisholm, former head of the World Health Organization and world-renowned psychiatrist, was unopposed for the nomination in his first bid in active politics.

He spoke to an audience of 30 persons in Colwood Community Hall.

P. W. deP. Taylor, Dr. Chisholm's campaign manager, said he would rely mostly on newspaper and radio advertising in place of public meetings.

"I will do my best for the good of the people of this community," Dr. Chisholm said.

"I have read the platform of the Progressive Conservatives of the province and find myself almost in complete agreement with it," he said.

Dr. Chisholm said he was convinced that in international fields almost everything that could be done to further peace is being done.

"It is the attitudes of people at home that dominate international fields.

"We all have to develop locally and become much more wide-minded. Then we will get a reflection in the international field that will indeed make for peace."

YOU SAID TO ME-

A Sunday message of help and comfort for those puzzled, depressed or low in spirit.

BY ETHEL TULL

You said to me, "One can't go around shouting about one's religion; it's a very private matter."

I wonder what you mean by "shouting"? If you mean emotionalism, I think you are right to mistrust that, but you may possibly feel that a dignified form of worship is all that is required of a Christian, and that personal witness by word of mouth is not necessary. May I try to show you why I think you are wrong? It is very important, because there must be many people around you who are in desperate need of your help.

I was once accused of being a sentimental Christian. This was not because I was emotional, but because I was unable to give honest help to another soul in need. When someone would confide her troubles to me, I would sympathize and try to make her feel better, where perhaps she needed to look into the situation with the help of the Holy Spirit and see that there was something in herself that must be treated drastically before help could come. I wanted to apply a poultice to the sore spot, when it needed to be cut right out by the hand of the great Surgeon of Souls. He could not get near because I was in the way with my weak, unguided sympathy.

One can never judge another, but absolute love means caring enough for the well-being of others to hold them to the best that it is possible for them to be, through the guidance of the Spirit. One can never be shocked by the revelation of sin in another life, for one knows too well the possibilities of evil in one's own heart, but one can often help another by sharing how one has fallen in a similar manner, and how the power has been given to conquer a besetting sin. You see, religion cannot be a private matter, for the whole world must be won for Christ, and we have to learn to live so that the Spirit of God can give His message through us to those who have not yet learned to listen for His voice. "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me."

Eminent Rabbi From Portland Here for High Holiday Service

Rabbi Philip Kleinman of Portland, Ore., will officiate at High Holiday services to be celebrated here by the congregation of the Jewish Temple Emanuel Wednesday to Sept. 15.

The Jewish New Year, Rosh Hashanah, will begin at 8 that evening and conclude 10 days later at sundown with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement.

Head of the Congregation Neveh Zedek for 19 years, Rabbi Kleinman also has acted as Hillel counsellor for the B'nai B'rith at Reed College.

SERVED AS CHAPLAIN

He has served as civilian chaplain at the Veterans' Administratioin Installations in Oregon and at the Portland Air Base. For seven years he headed the Portland District of the Zionist Organization of America.

He organized and served as first president of the Pacific Northwest Region of the Rabbinical Assembly of America and has contributed many articles on Jewish thought to American newspapers.

RABBI P. KLEINMAN

Now rabbi emeritus of his congregation, he explains the Jewish New Year as "a period of days between the old and new years for reflection and stock taking."

"We need the 10 days for penitence, for serious contemplation, to give serious thought to the values and purposes of life, to pray to our Heavenly Father for guidance and direction in the New Year opening for us, to seek out new sources of Jewish loyalty, to search for new means to preserve and perpetuate our great Jewish people and its civilization," he said in a news release from Portland.

VISITED PALESTINE

Rabbi Kleinman, who travelled to Europe and Palestine in 1954, is convinced that a new spirit of Jewish dedication is sweeping through the world.

"There seems to be a determination among the children of Israel in all lands to stand together at last as one united people . . . united in the solemn resolution that never again shall Jews be a people of parasites and pariahs, never again shall the doors of Zion and Jerusalem be barred to us," he said.

Rabbi Kleinman and his wife will arrive here Monday.

We Salute The Pioneers Of Saanich

The Thomsons, the McPhails, the Simpsons and Lidgates . . . the Marcotts, the Hagans and the Turgooses . . . the John family and the Trudells (it was a Trudell who planted the first apple tree in Saanich) . . . the Butlers and the Verdiers . . . the Deeks, Stellys and Harrisons . . . the Bartleman family and the Michell family . . . the Haldens and the Alexanders . . . the Tanners and the Sluggetts . . . the Thomas family, the Sadlers . . . the Youngs, the Duvals . . . the Greigs, the Irvines and the Macraes . . . the Deans, the Bryants, the Richardsons and all those others who hewed homes from a wilderness and helped to make the Saanich Peninsula a place of prosperous farmlands and well-kept gardens.

Mrs. Mary Ludlow, second from left, as one of the oldest pioneer residents attending the 50-year anniversary party of the Saanich Municipality at Beaver Lake today, was crowned queen of the festivities. The daughter of Capt. and Mrs. George Butler, Mrs. Ludlow has lived in Saanich for all of her 80 years. Her home on the West Saanich Road today is on a corner of the property first settled by her parents years ago. In the picture with her, from the left, are seven-year-old Sylvia Clark and her sister Katherine, daughters of Mrs. Ludlow's nephew, Mr. Jack Clark, 3143 Mars Street, Victoria, and, on the right, her niece, Miss Margaret Clark, a Vancouver school teacher, who spends her summer holidays with her aunt. Mrs. Ludlow, has another niece, Mrs. Daphne O'Neil, also in Vancouver.

Mrs. Carrie Pope, seated, centre, is the only surviving daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Turgoose of Saanichton. She is pictured with her daughter, Mrs. James M. Sutherland, with whom she lives on Burnside Road, and her grandchildren, Raymond Sutherland, 16, Christine and Teresa Sutherland, six and four. Mrs. Pope, born in Saanich 78 years ago, was chosen a princess for today's anniversary celebration. The other princess, Mrs. Annie Ferguson, also born in Saanich, is the former Annie Harrison, a granddaughter of the late Robert Porter.

Looking Backward

The electoral district of Saanich was created by the Representation Act of 1859 and allotted one member. The first list of voters for the new district consisted of 21 names, but of these 11 appeared on the list for Victoria City and two on the list for Esquimalt and Metchosin County district, leaving eight apparently bona fide residents of Saanich district—Bull, Cole, Deeks, Lidgate, McPhail, Morrell, Simpson and Thomson. The Municipality of Saanich was founded on March 1, 1906. Fred Turgoose, as returning officer, received the names of seven men to form the council. They were sworn in, with no election on March 10 and at the first meeting Thomas Brydon was selected as reeve. H. O. Case was appointed clerk and J. G. Elliott the auditor. The tax rate levied was very low, around five mills on land and 50 per cent of improvement values.

Today, the municipality has outgrown its original boundaries and has become two municipalities, Saanich and Central Saanich, that stretch from the borders of Victoria, Esquimalt and Oak Bay to beyond Saanichton and from Tolmie Avenue to Strawberry Vale.

The 50th anniversary of Saanich Municipality, celebrated today, sees a prosperous future looming over the horizon for this flourishing community.

Eighty-five-year-old John Thomson is the only surviving son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Thomson, first settlers on the Saanich Peninsula. Their family home, "Bannockburn," still stands on the Mount Newton Crossroad. With him is his great-great niece, Norma Carmichael, who is the sixth generation of the Thomson family to be born and to live in the Saanich Municipality.

Mr. William Duval, right, and Mrs. William Rankin (Ethel Duval) are the children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Duval, proprietors of the famed Royal Oak Hotel that gave the community of Royal Oak its name. Ian Rankin, centre, is Mrs. Rankin's son. There are two other brothers, Louis, living in California, and Henry on the West Saanich Road. The Royal Oak Hotel was built by Mrs. Louis Duval's mother, Mrs. Jame Cheeseman. Mr. Cheeseman was a Hudson's Bay Company man and exchanged his HBC property on what is now Chatham Street in Victoria for the acreage at Royal Oak. He died before the hotel was completed.

An Up-and-Coming Cuban Designer Is Stealing Fashion Spotlight This Year

Estevez . . . an exciting name in fashion news! A few months ago an article in Life magazine told about the dramatic things this young designer is doing. The name was often mentioned at the fashion showings in New York and when it was announced that a Canadian house, J. H. Warsh and Co., Toronto, would handle Estevez designs I really became interested.

Nona

Recently, I attended a preview showing of the Canadian collection in the Empress Hotel, and for those of you who appreciate high style, exclusive fabrics and quality at moderate prices, the Estevez label will be of interest.

Cuba claims Luis Estevez as one of her favorite sons, but we too can share this young designer, who, in less than three years, has rocketed to fame in the fashion world.

Luis Estevez was born in Havana, Cuba, 26 years ago. He began his primary education in a Jesuit school in Havana and later continued in an English school. He continued his education for four years in a private preparatory school in America and returned to Havana to study architecture.

On one of his trips back to New York he was offered a position for the summer months, in Lord and Taylor, in the display department, where he gained experience in decorating and fashion co-ordination. The result of this venture was so successful that he decided to give up architecture and remain with the store. He went to school to learn cutting and draping and for a year designed exclusively for Lord and Taylor.

An urge to explore the French couture was the next step and in Paris he spent a year and a half with the famous house of Jean Patou.

Living and working in Paris, Estevez will tell you, not only stimulated, it gave him a clear picture of what he wanted to do. This was to design for the majority, the kind of clothes that hitherto women in this part of the world could get only at fabulous prices.

Putting aside prestige he went to work as a designer for a volume house in New York. Later, with three associates he formed his own firm and the Estevez label was launched. Success was immediate and within the last year Luis Estevez has won two very important awards for his designs.

Looking back at the collection I saw in the Empress Hotel, necklines were the most outstanding feature. In many cases intricate cording detail was the only decoration on the straight sheath dress. One such dress is "Conquistadors", a black pure silk faille with stiffened drop shoulders which outline a bare throat. Sole touch of trimming is a self-fancing pump bow at the bosom.

"Corrida" a taut, want slender sheath in Estevez designed brocade, is a two-piece ensemble. The bare top is covered with a brief bolero with a wide, velvet trimmed collar and long sleeves.

In a very short time one of Victoria's leading specialty shops will have these dresses to show you. Just call the women's department of this newspaper and we will give you any added information.

"Costa-Brava", a short formal, a shimmer of blues and greens, the silk brocade dress completely designed by Estevez even to the fabric. The bodice is back scooped into a low, deep oval, the waist is unbroken. The skirt has a new interest, it floats back and is a support for a fringed self fabric sash that touches the hemline and is looped through a wide oval band that extends in a flat stitched fold from the hipline.

Estevez hints of the Empire—with a rope bodice lined for complete smoothness. The bodice is cut higher in the front, curves to a deep oval in the back. A band of cocoa satin twists above the bosom and ends at the back in a dancing pump bow from which two straight panels hang stiffly to the hemline. A dress for gay times. . . "Barcelona".

Luis Estevez contributes to fall, a simply but exactly tailored dress in sheer cocoa wool, wand slim, the bodice is the important point with high cross-over bands of self fabric. Each Estevez design has a name and this one is "Madrilena".

Married Quietly

The marriage took place quietly, last evening in St. Mary's chapel with Archdeacon A. E. de L Nunns officiating, between Kathleen M. Cave and Cameron Milligan. A family reception was held later at the home of the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Ford, Lincoln Crescent. After a honeymoon on the mainland, Mr. and Mrs. Milligan will live at 668 Superior street until completion of their new home at Cadboro Bay.

SHOPPING GUIDE

What She's Always Needed—A Jeweled Door Knocker!

By PENNY SAVER

So the Miss or Mrs. who has a birthday coming up seems to have everything! Your best bet, then, is to find something just a little different—something that is meant for just such a person. Here's a small, rhodium-plated jeweled brass door knocker that really works. The knocker is on a spring and both the knocker and the ornate base are jeweled with stones and costume pearls. It's tarnish-proof, so all it needs is dusting. For her bedroom or dressing room door, this knocker will be really charming and very feminine.

A jeweled corkscrew is something new, too. A perky wee monkey decorated with costume settings has a curly tail that serves as a corkscrew. There's also a jeweled match holder for milady's purse. Both these are rhodium-plated brass, and priced at $1.95.

Close to the heart of you golfers is the salt-and-pepper set I saw. On a patch of green is an 18th hole flag and two golf balls sitting up on tees. One ball holds salt, the other pepper. The whole thing is made of plastic and costs $1.98.

Another salt-and-pepper set is made of plastic and metal. This one is in the shape of a candelabra. Two "candles" of plastic are filled with salt and pepper. This set, too, is $1.98 This seems to be a popular price in today's column; doesn't it!

Wardrobes are being revamped for the coming back-to-school days that are just a few days away. Versatile and hard-wearing are the skirts that are being featured down-town. There are circle skirts of soft felt that can be worn with blouses or with belted-in sweaters. Comfortable and practical, they come in red, turquoise or black, and are $3.98.

Bobby sox with triple roll cuffs are reasonably priced at 39 cents a pair or three pair for $1. They're made of cotton and have heel and toe reinforcements of nylon. They come in white or pale blue.

White nylon stretchy terry fabric sox fit any size from 8 to 11, and cost 79 cents a pair.

Here is another shopping rule set forth to help guide you shoppers: Try to read between the lines. Too often advertisements list good points only and ignore the unfavorable side.

TODAY'S RECIPE

PEAR CONSERVE

Two quarts diced pears, 1 orange, 1 lemon, juice 1 lemon, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon ginger, 6 cups sugar.

Peel, core and dice enough Bartlett pears to measure 8 cups. Cut orange and lemon wafer-thin, cut into smaller sections. Combine all ingredients in heavy kettle.

Bring to boil, stiring until sugar is dissolved, then cook rapidly until two thick drops of syrup will run together off edge of metal spoon. This should take 30 to 40 minutes. Ladle into sterilized jars, seal as usual. Makes about 3 pints.

While these good Bartlett pears are at their height, remember to make a few jars of minted pears to serve with roast lamb or for a fruit salad plate. Just add mint flavoring to taste to the heated syrup, tint a delicate green with food coloring and proceed as for ordinary canned pears.

Ann Hanbury Is Bride In a Ceremony Today

This afternoon in First United Church, where tall standards of pastel gladioli and asters formed a lovely background, Miss Dorothy Ann Hanbury and Raymond Victor Ramsay exchanged wedding vows in a ceremony performed by Rev. W. G. Wilson.

The attractive, dark-haired bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Hanbury, 2743 Graham street, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a princess style bridal gown fashioned with a full circle skirt in ballerina length. The gown, of champagne lace over taffeta, featured a scalloped neckline and three-quarter-length sleeves. Her shoes were chocolate brown satin, her hat and gloves matching. She wore a pearl necklace with matching earrings, the groom's gift, and carried a crescent bouquet of rapture roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Maureen King was matron of honor, and chose a powder blue dress in the same style as the bride's gown. Her accessories were navy blue, and she carried a crescent bouquet of comet pink asters.

Asters and gladioli decorated the attractive little church for the ceremony. The organist, Mrs. J. C. Nimmo, played "Because" during signing of the register.

White embossed nylon sheer over taffeta was choice of the bride for her ballerina-length wedding gown. Her lace trimmed veil was held with a wreath of feathered white chrysanthemums and she carried a white ivory fan decorated with golden orchids and white feathered chrysanthemums. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, gift of the groom. She was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Joan Middlemiss as maid of honor and Miss Georgina Hiscock, a junior bridesmaid, wore primrose yellow nylon sheer over apricot taffeta ballerina-length gowns. The other junior bridesmaid, Miss Gloria Hiscock, was in yellow dotted nylon over yellow taffeta. All three carried ivory fans with bronze chrysanthemums and peach toned gladioli. Rhinestone necklaces were their only jewelry.

Kenneth Coulson was best man and the ushers, Arthur Duggan and Gary Hiscock.

A reception was held in the Legion Hall on Dunford Road where Mrs. Hiscock, wearing a gold and turquoise brocade sheath gown with matching accessories, black duster coat and corsage of yellow rosebuds, assisted in receiving guests. A three-tier wedding cake with orange blossoms and miniature white doves, centred the bride's table. White bells, white and yellow streamers and late summer flowers decorated the hall. Toast was proposed by F. J. Willway.

For travelling on honeymoon to the interior of British Columbia the bride donned a light beige wool sheath dress with jacket, chocolate and beige accessories and topcoat of brown wool tweed. Mr. and Mrs. Nunn will live in New Westminster.

KIMBER LEGHORNS
FIRST IN EARLY EGG SIZE

As of January 1, 1956, the K-137 Kimberchiks led in early egg size in all three of the random sample egg-laying tests where they are currently entered.
In California, the K-137 entry produced 48.6% large and extra large eggs to January 1. The average for all entries was 31.8%. Similar results were obtained in the Missouri and Utah contests.
Because of the price spread between large and small eggs, the early egg size of the Kimberchiks can help you recover your investment in a flock of pullets days, or even weeks, sooner.

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald Jacoby

The problem in today's hand is to make two club tricks. South has seven top cards in the remaining three suits.

South won the first trick with the king of spades and led a low club toward dummy. He finessed the jack, losing to East's singleton queen. Thereafter, he was unable to make a second club trick, and his game contract was defeated.

The correct play of the clubs is to lead low to dummy's ace immediately. When an honor drops, the rest is easy.

If only small clubs appear on the first trick in that suit, South continues by leading a low club from dummy toward his ten. This assures him a second trick even if one of the opponents has started with four clubs headed by the king-queen.

Suppose East has all of the missing clubs. He must put up the queen to win the second club trick. Now South can easily use the ten or jack to drive out the king.

Suppose West has all of the missing clubs. East will show out on the second round of the suit, and South will use the ten to drive out an honor from the West hand. South will later get to his hand in a different suit in order to lead a club toward dummy's jack. This will guarantee him a second club trick.

There are other ways of winning two club tricks if you happen to know just how the missing clubs are divided. The recommended line of play assures you two tricks even if you don't know how the missing cards are divided.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1956

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—You feel out of sorts and are not apt to have correct hunches today. Use your mature judgment, based upon past successes, to determine any conclusions you feel you must decide today. Tonight fine for entertainment and recreation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Be careful with members of your own clan early or some long-time tension can arise. Let others see you value their good will. Make sure you study ways to have added security by new upswing tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—You feel you are not getting ahead as you would like. Forget it. Spend day doing least possible amount of work. Be cheerful at proven pleasures. P.M. finds you able to get together with some worthwhile colleagues to arrange the future.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Make this a day to be economical at all costs or you find you've gotten in deeper than you had imagined. Later you find it possible to quietly enjoy sports, recreation or pleasant companionships in relaxed fashion. Take it easy..

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—You have a chance either to calmly, rationally and patiently fix things up at home which are shoddy and need especial attention or to get away and put yourself physically in better shape. Make up your mind early. Then carry through.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—You would be wise to remain "put" during the daytime completing behind-the-scene chores and letting others see you value their good will. Keep off the highway unless necessary using extreme care to prevent harm.

LIBRA (Sept 23 to Oct. 22)—Pursuing daydreams, wishful thinking during daytime can show just what will-o'-the-wisps you are unwisely chasing. Instead, look to solid, secure methods for getting ahead. P.M. fine for enjoying friends and being idealistic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Take no chances with the credit in which those in a position to help or retard your goals are concerned. Spend daytime getting yourself in perfect physical, etc., condition. The evening is fine for anything of wordly, public nature.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Wind up depressing tasks before starting out on that new track which intrigues you so strongly. After chores are completed, full speed ahead to the persons, conditions, methods, ideas you feel will fit your needs in days to come.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Organize every branch of your dealings with others from early A.M. until late at night, so that tomorrow you can be putting such arrangements into effective execution. Let others see you can be outgiving; affectionate, generous.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Sidestep argument brewing or raging between others who are close to you. Take no chances where dealing with any official is concerned. Avoid sassing officer who is doing his duty. Tonight brings chance to unite efforts with chosen pal.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Either steer clear completely of all types of vocational or other usual jobs or plunge into them and finish preoccupation. Wasted effort really follows any inner conflict what to do. Tonight, add charm to environment.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN MONDAY

Monday's child is one of those very attractive youngsters who finds that it is necessary to learn things the hard way during adolescence. However, do not interfere with your offspring's natural method since once he has learned a lesson it will never be forgotten and will stand him in good stead the rest of his, or her, lifetime. A very good chart for work requiring a considerable amount of preparation and training but which holds big returns once all facets of the subject have been conquered.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1956

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—Get down to specific jobs to be done where your own type of vocation, communications, correspondence, apparel, car, files, repairs, diet, greater efficiency in any line of endeavor is concerned. Then you find real progress right now.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Start the Fall season right by letting others see you have capabilities of a high and fascinating order. Make sure you add youngsters, do civic work. The evening is fine for romance, amusements [illegible] be happy.

GEMINI (May 21 to July 21)—Have you everything spick and span as you desire at your own residence? When things there are in order, you can look around for ways and means to utilize a current upswing for you wisely, sanely and expansively. Keep alert. Stop drooping.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Making those calls on everyone who can aid you to get your objectives, whether personally, by phone, or correspondence, is extremely good. Get on the beam. Be dynamic. Use your wonderful inventive qualities effectively. Fine for sales, too.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Now you can go right after what you want. First complete unfinished work. Then you will be in a position to make progress toward those high ideals and wonderful ambitions that attract you. Show others the depth of your devotion.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—You now can secretly start action towards making big headway toward the longings which are most cherished by you. Let others see you are interested in gaining advice and suggestions from them but keep confidential or you lose out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct 22)—Get in touch as swiftly as you can with influential friends as well as important personalities who have been unknown to you ere this. Think out the biggest goals you can envision. Then start the action to make them a part of your life NOW.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Cement active relations with those in authority. Be sure you attend to any public relations, publicity or advertising that will help you get ahead. Make fresh start at a big success in whatever draws you onward and upward.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Now you really have it in your power to obtain that data and that success in any scientific, spiritual, educational matters. Good also for finding new methods that lop off important hours. Be time-saving. Make new friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Stop working all those practical angles. Sit down for a while today and think out how you can bring yourself some larger and finer set of circumstances by which you add to your material, financial, emotional and romantic well-being.

AQUARIUS (an. 21 to Feb. 19)—Communicate with everyone possible. Close up pending contracts, deals and meetings of minds while at the same time looking for additional ways to get ahead. Good for any public work awaiting your attention. Enjoy romance tonight.

PISCES (Feb 20 to March 20)—Now you have one of those days when you can make whatever your work more charming and attractive. Fix your own special niche so that more delight is there. Good also for arranging to get along better with your associates.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TUESDAY

Tuesday's child is one of those very fortunate youngsters who is liked by everyone to such an extent that your offspring is all too likely to sit back and let the other fellow carry the load. Therefore, teach early that one really appreciates what he earns by the sweat of his own brow. Then your remarkably talented offspring will be able to gain that great success awaiting him, or her, if they put to good use the brilliance of mind and personal charm with which they have been endowed by nature.

South Africa's Segregation Law Called Mass Callousness

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — The South African government's group areas law is driving thousands of people from their homes in Johannesburg suburbs. Many are losing their livelihoods.

They are being forced to move away from the city to new communities selected for them arbitrarily.

The group areas law, adopted six years ago, is part of the government's Apartheid—racial segregation—program. It says all colored persons must live in prescribed districts, well removed from the homes of white people.

Already more than 60,000 Africans are being moved from Johannesburg suburbs to new townships created on remote meadowlands. Now the authorities are turning their attention to Asian residents of the city and its suburbs.

The Johannesburg Star reported recently that almost 22,000 Indians will have to move to Lenasia, an undeveloped township 22 miles away. The districts where they now live have been proclaimed areas for whites only.

CALL BOYCOTT

Two thousand Johannesburg Indians at a meeting called for a boycott of the government-sponsored Lenasia township. It called for an appeal to the United Nations and proposed the creation of a "Council of Action" to defend Indian homes.

No alternative areas have been designated for the more than 3,000 Chinese and Malays in and around Johannesburg, but their turn is coming soon.

About 750 of the Indians are shopkeepers and merchants. A few of them may be allowed by special permit to continue their businesses in Johannesburg, but the rest will have to try to find new incomes in Lenasia.

The law provides for purchase of their home and business properties "at a fair valuation." Experts say the Indians now own about $28,000,000 worth of city and suburban real estate. No provision is made to compensate merchants for business losses, however.

TO RENT LAND

Moreover, Lenasia is privately owned and the Indians will have to pay rent for the land on which they are expected to build new homes.

John Cope, an opposition United party member of Parliament, has protested the removal of the Indians.

"It is glibly suggested that Indian traders will be able to transfer their business to Lenasia," he said. "But their present customers are mainly colored Africans and whites. It is absurd to suggest Indian traders will be able to survive by taking in each other's washing at Lenasia."

Most of the Indians must move to Lenasia by next August, the rest a few months later.

"LOGICAL" STEP

The government considers the Johannesburg removals a logical step in the process of separate development of the white and non-white races prescribed by Apartheid. The group areas scheme is to be duplicated in other South African towns and cities until the races are living completely apart with as little contact as possible.

But critics of the government believe it will be many years before full separation can be accomplished and that it will cost millions.

The Johannesburg Star commented: "The government's decr will touch off a vast migration of people and an incalculable train of disrupted lives and human suffering. Even in the name of white civilization, we can see nothing to extenuate this act of mass callousness."

MANY BLOWS DEALT

Death Makes Sure In Auto Fatalities

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Death takes no chances in most fatal automobile accidents.

For when people are killed, they usually suffer two or three injuries, each serious enough to cause death.

This is one finding from the automotive crash injury research project of Cornell University medical school. The study seeks to pin down the causes of deaths and injuries as a basis for scientifically engineering the answers to prevent them.

More than two-thirds of persons killed in highway accidents have fatal-type injuries in at least two different body areas, says John O. Moore, directing the research.

"Seldom is there a single injury to one single area, such as the head, chest or abdomen, which could be said to have caused death beyond anything else," he reports.

GHASTLY TOLL

Motorists in North America have been dying in highway accidents at the rate of 30,000 to 40,000 annually for 25 years, with a million more injured each year.

Speed, poor roads, incompetent drivers, drink, bad weather, automobile design and other things all have been blamed as factors contributing to the ghastly toll. Remedies proposed range from putting speed governors on cars, stricter law enforcement and licensing, engineering better highways, changes in auto design to reduce death or injuries if accidents do occur.

The auto research, begun a few years ago, now has been greatly expanded with research funds coming from the United States Army and public health service, and two automotive firms, Ford and Chrysler.

Police and physicians in 11 states are co-operating, filling in detailed report forms. The speed of cars, angle of impact, time of day or night, number of occupants and where seated, whether doors opened, type of road, and other data are gathered in each accident.

ANALYZE SAFETY FEATURES

A main objective is to learn what can be done inside an automobile to reduce the chance of injury or death. The statistics are producing measures of the effectiveness of seat belts, safety door locks, paddings, and other changes recently engineered into modern cars.

Earlier data gathered by the Cornell and similar research showed that your chance of being killed or injured is doubled if you are thrown from the car, rather than remaining inside.

Forty per cent of drivers were found hurt by steering wheel assemblies, and nearly as high a percentage of front seat passengers by instrument panels, windshields and protruding objects.

SC Favoritism Vicious—Laing

VANCOUVER—Liberal Leader Arthur Laing today accused the Social Credit government of "vicious favoritism" in government business.

He also charged the government operates a political machine.

"There has been careless[illegible] and sloth in the public trusts . . . a complete subordination of the public interest to the personal interest of those who sit in power and now ask for a further mandate."

Addressing a meeting of all Liberal candidates in the Sept. 19 election, Mr. Laing pledged his party to restore the people's confidence in government.

PLATFORM

A Liberal government would:

Decentralize authority by returning municipal councils, school boards and hospital boards to their rightful position;

Reduce taxation by cutting the sales tax to 4 per cent and automobile licences to $10;

Eliminate "wasteful preferences to friends" by calling public tenders for all work;

Establish an independent highways commission to establish priorities and ensure target dates for completion.

Set up a permanent development board to advise on utilization of natural resources and economic conditions.

To aid the province's depressed agriculture industry, the Liberal leader pledged his party to a policy of short term subsidies and loans.

Farm laborers should be encouraged to emigrate to B.C. from Europe.

URGENCY, CRISIS

Attacking the government's "snap" election call, Mr. Laing said Premier Bennett "in his [illegible] speech betrayed his real concerns—he has done and is doing the unmistakable air of urgency and crisis."

"Democracy was not built by trickery, stealth or surprise and these are not the instruments by which it shall be maintained."

CPA Air Crash Bodies Brought To Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—A C-46 air transport bearing the bodies of 13 victims of the CPA airliner crash at Cold bay, Alaska, landed at Vancouver's International airport at 8.10 p.m. Friday.

The bodies, recovered from the wreckage of a Canadian Pacific Airlines' DC-6B which crashed Thursday killing 15, were taken to the Vancouver morgue. An inquest will be held here probably Tuesday or Wednesday.

A CPA official announced the body of navigator William R. Hunter, 32-year-old North Vancouver man, was found in the airliner's fuselage Friday.

An infant passenger is still unaccounted for—Judy Lem, eight-month-old daughter of Mrs. Margaret R. Lem, Toronto, who died in the crash.

CPA said today its experts at the crash scene have definitely established that there was no evidence of fire on the aircraft while in flight.

R. B. Phillips, CPA's vice-president for operations, said:

"The aircraft was in the clear, well under the cloud ceiling, and with visibility of approximately three miles. The pilot then started to make the normal left turn preliminary to his final landing run into the wind. It was at this point that the aircraft was seen to lose altitude and struck the ground."

WINNIPEG (CP)—Halfback Ed Vereb of British Columbia Lions suffered a broken nose in the second quarter of the Western Interprovincial Football Union game here Friday night against Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Vereb, last season with University of Maryland, was hurt in a scramble.

IN TONIGHT'S MOVIE—Beautiful Hedy Lamarr will be seen tonight in the motion picture, "The Strange Woman," scheduled for Channel 2 at 10.30.

CHASE THE FIRE

Suburbanville's fire volunteers are aware of a fire within the borough, but are having a hard time locating it.

A map of the area is shown above. Can you guide the firemen to the scene of the blaze in a minimum of time, without crossing lines or retracing steps?

SOME CARD POINTERS

If you will examine a deck of cards you will notice that certain cards may be considered pointers—that is, they have definite pointing characteristics.

The point of the emblem of the ace of spades for instance, is in one direction.

The nine of hearts has five points in one direction.

The seven of diamonds has an odd pip either above or below the centre.

To make use of this interesting situation, remove all of the pointers from the deck. Arrange them so that all point in the same direction. Now fan the pointers so that someone may choose a card. Turn the cards around in your hand; have the person who has selected the card return it to your hand. After a meaningless shuffle, a glance at the points will reveal the card selected.

ODD OR EVEN MONEY

Play this trick on friends next time you are given change somewhere: Extend your hand holding the coins shown at right. Ask someone to tell you whether you are holding an odd or even amount. Be careful to use this phraseology, then no matter which answer is given, it can be proven wrong. Here's how:

If the answer is "even," count up the number of coins in your hand—it's seven, an odd number, ofcourse.

If the answer is "odd," add up the values of the coins—it comes to 20c, obviously even.

MAGIC COLORS

With just a little magic on your part using crayons or colored pencils, an animal that is hidden among the maze of lines can be made to appear. Just color each area in accordance with the following color code: Bl, blue; B, black; Br, brown; R, red; G, green; Y, yellow; T, tan. To make tan, use brown lightly. Then, after all other colors have been applied, go over black and tan areas with orange.

	B	C	D	E	F	= 169
A		C	D	E	F	= 190
A	B		D	E	F	= 202
A	B	C		E	F	= 167
A	B	C	D		F	= 199
A	B	C	D	E		= 193

AGES, PLEASE

Mr. and Mrs. Jones and their four children are identified in the chart by the letters A, B, C, D, E and F. You are asked to determine the ages of each by studying the totals. In each line, the age of one member of the family has been omitted.

Which letters designate the parents and what are their ages, and which the children and what are their ages?

Solution—A, who is aged fifty-five and B, who is aged fifty-seven, are the parents. The children are B, 14; C, 22; E, 25; F, 31.

TICKET-WISE?

Suppose you were trying to figure out how many rides you had left on a monthly train ticket. You had 26 rides to begin with. Tickets 8 through 26 are still unpunched. How many unpunched tickets are left?

Answer: Nineteen.

ANSWER IN A MINUTE, IF YOU CAN

A man bought a boat which cost him $30 more than one-fourth of its price. How much did he pay for it?

Answer: He paid forty dollars for it.

BRAIN TEASER

A man walked into a bar and asked for a glass of water. Instead of giving him the water, the bartender pulled a gun from under the counter and pointed it at him. Startled, the man paused breathlessly. Then he smiled and left the barroom.

What circumstances might logically cause such a sequence?

Here are a few clues: The men were unknown to each other; there was nothing unusual in dress or physical make-up about either of them; the incident occurred during the regular hours the bar was open.

Answer: The man had hiccoughs and the scare cured him.

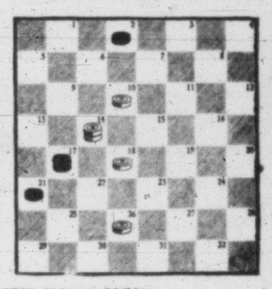
SUSPENSEFUL JOKE

Suspend a button on a thread from a cork. Place it in a bottle. Challenge someone to tell you how the button can be removed from the thread without shaking or breaking the bottle.

Answer: To burn the thread with a magnifying glass is one way.

POTTERS WHEEL

The potter's wheel was introduced into Britain about 75 B.C.



IT'S YOUR MOVE

BY MILLARD HOPPER

There is but one right move for White to win. Any other allows Black to gain a checker and equalize the game. Can you complete the play?

White, travelling up the board, moves first and wins in four moves.

Solution—White moves 26-22, Black 11-26, White 10-7, Black 2-11, White 16-15, Black 11-18, White 14-22-30.

RIDDLE

To what number can you add a letter and make it three less?

Answer: Nine. Add S to IX and get six.

6% Wage Boost For CIL Workers

Six per cent across-the-board wage increase to boost wages nine to 12 cents an hour has been given 180 workers at Canadian Industries Ltd., James Island plant.

The announcement was made jointly by R. B. Carpenter, works manager for the plant, and Robert Barrie, president of Canadian Chemical and Explosives Workers, Federal Union No. 128.

VOLUNTARY

Additional increased rates in five classifications with gains up to 21 cents an hour were awarded voluntarily by the company.

The new one year agreement, first to include a voluntary irrevocable check-off provision, is the fifteenth between the parties.

CIL workers originally asked for a 14 per cent across-the-board increase, then lowered it to 8 per cent. After two month's bargaining, the increase was fixed at 6 per cent.

Lumsdon Found Not in Shape; Grudge Race Off

TORONTO (CP) — A proposed match race between swim marathoners Cliff Lumsdon, 25, of Toronto and Tom Park, 32, of Marineland, Calif., formerly of Hamilton, was called off late Friday.

The Toronto Star, sponsor of the proposed match, said Lumsdon had withdrawn following an examination by Dr. Richard L. Hughes, Lumsdon's medical adviser. Dr. Hughes said the Toronto swimmer was not in condition for such a contest following his recent conquest of the Strait of Juan de Fuca and participation in the Lake Ontario mass swim.

The race was to have been held along the Canadian National Exhibition waterfront next Wednesday with the winner getting $1,500.

Length of the swim, termed a "grudge match" between the two outstanding marathoners, was to have been six miles or less, depending upon water temperature, peted in last Monday's mass attempt on Lake Ontario. None of the 10 starters was able to finish, but Park lasted longest and was given $3,000.

'Diggers' Eating Better Than Ever Statistics Show

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—The energy value of food eaten by Australians today is greater than it was before the Second World War.

This is shown in figures issued by S. R. Carver, Commonwealth statistician. In his daily diet the average Australian takes in 3,338 calories, compared with an average of 3,117 in the years 1936 to 1939.

Compared with pre-war, Australians are eating less meat, eggs, potatoes, fruit and grain products, but they are eating and drinking more milk, poultry, fish, sugar and tomatoes.

On an average, they are also drinking more than twice as much beer as they did before the war. The present figure is 24.3 gallons per head a year.

Things Are Looking Up

LADYSMITH CHRONICLE—Things are looking up in Ladysmith. Rental properties in the city and district are at a premium, the market for real estate is brisk and a number of new homes are under construction. It is a modest expansion compared with the boom some B.C. communities are experiencing, but it is growth, nevertheless, and there are indications that this growth will continue for some time.

The new pulp mill under construction at Crofton is probably the biggest single factor responsible for the influx of new people to this city, but it is not the only factor. Many of them have come because they think it is a good place to live. People who come here by choice will make the finest type of citizens of the community, and they will bring others.

A Summer to Remember

COWICHAN LEADER—A summer to remember will prove even more memorable if it favours with good weather the 13th annual Labor Day celebration at Lake Cowichan on this annual holiday next Monday, and then favours the district's two annual agricultural fairs later next week.

Not since the twenties do older residents recall such a summer of unbroken good weather. Duncan's thermometer has told the story impressively. If not officially the hottest on V.I. this year, the 103 degrees recorded late in July has not been topped to our knowledge. This city has been one of B.C.'s hottest little cities during the past two months.

The results of this remarkable summer have brought much satisfaction. Those in charge of hotels and youth camps are as happy as storekeepers whose summer stocks have vanished.

The curtain will soon fall on holiday time. It will have been a season to be remembered, statistically, among others, by Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce, which has given fine service to the whole district in handling a record number of visitors from all parts of the United States and Canada.

Moore Changes Mind, Won't Run For Re-Election

COURTENAY — W. C. Moore, CCF member in the provincial legislature for Comox since 1952, has announced he will not seek re-election Sept. 19.

He resigned from the CCF two weeks ago, and announced later he would seek election as an independent candidate. When he declared he would not run, he explained his original purpose in seeking election as an independent was to get the backing of all parties in attempting to defeat the government candidate.

"My purpose has been defeated," he said, with the nomination of Cyril Newman by the CCF and Robert McPhee by the Liberals.

Social Credit candidate in the Comox riding is Dan Campbell, Courtenay school teacher.

Labor Racketeer Dio Graduate of Murder Inc.

NEW YORK (AP) — The story of racketeering in New York's garment and trucking industries is a complex web of violence, death and fear.

Its shadowy presence flared into focus in the arrest of Johnny Dio accused as the master hoodlum who engineered the acid blinding of labor columnist Victor Riesel.

Dio is a personification of the strong - arm "shakedown" world. Around his suave, darkly handsome figure, you can trace the [illegible] career tells the story.

As recorded in indictments, police reports and accusations by prosecutors, it is a sequence of broken heads, of spilling acid on clothes, of cars dumped in the east river or set on fire.

Of setting up "paper" labor outfits, and then collecting $1,000 a month from garment firms to keep legitimate unions out of their shops.

HUGE PAYOFFS

Of $30,000 payoffs to help business concerns get rid of their unions.

Of $500 - a - month "protection" collections from terrorized truckmen in the mid-Manhattan garment district.

In the midst of this ugly maelstrom, for years, has been the hand of Johnny Dio.

Johnny Dio was born 42 years ago on the lower East side as John Dioguardi. He graduated into a full-fledged hoodlum under the tutelage of Louis (Lepke) Buchalter and Jacob (Gurrah) Shapiro, the Murder Inc., overlords of the garment district.

Dio first emerged as the heir of their domain in the late 1930s, when former governor Thomas E. Dewey, then a rackets - busting special prosecutor, put him and his uncle, Jimmy Doyle, on trial for extortion.

[illegible] called the Five Borough Truckmen's Association, shaking truckmen $500 a month to operate; and the Garment Centre Truck Owners Association, which levied a tariff on every coat and suit manufactured here.

There was testimony of threats, beatings by hatchets and acid poured over clothing and into the motors of trucks.

At the end of prosecution testimony, Doyle and Dio pleaded guilty and went to Sing Sing for three to five years.

Dio came out of prison, a dapper, hardened man. He managed to obtain charters for setting up AFL United Auto Workers union locals—a rival of Walter Reuther's CIO union of the same name.

Experts called Dio's outfits "paper locals." They were catch-alls, trying to take over taxi drivers or any other labor group. He failed to take over the cabbies, despite bloodshed and violence.

Then he allegedly used his locals to protect garment industry companies who wanted to operate as non-union—selling them protection at $1,000 a month here and in Pennsylvania.

His "union" henchmen would walk into a plant, call it a "union shop", and drive out those trying to organize a legitimate union.

EVADED TAXES

In 1953, he served 60 days in jail for failing to pay state income tax. While there, the AFL took [illegible]

At that time, it was reported his income from shakedowns alone amounted to $1,000,000 a year.

He also owned a dress manufacturing business in Pennsylvania operating with non - union workers and was president of Rosemary Fashions. Until his arrest, he operated the Equitable Research Association Inc., a so-called labor consultation service. The district attorney's office said it was an outfit in the business of "selling labor peace for a price."

BEING TAKEN IN—John Dioguardia, alias Johnny Dio, considered to be one of the most powerful racketeers in the country, is escorted into Federal Court in New York by two unidentified FBI agents. He was arraigned, along with his brother Tommy and some other men, in the Victor Riesel case.

Loggers Needed In Duncan Area

DUNCAN—Labor shortages in the Cowichan logging industry, despite recent shutdowns, have been reported by R. S. Robinson, manager of the Duncan office of the National Employment service, in his summary of local employment conditions during August.

Some logging operations are not working because of the fire hazard, although most in the area recalled their crews following a short shutdown.

More than one large operator was unable to increase the number of sides operating because of the shortage of skilled loggers and, despite the shutdowns, there have been very few such workers available when needed.

Many woods workers, Mr. Robinson reported, have inquired into the possibility of changing to construction work, where the main demand for workers originated in Crofton, the site of the B.C. Forest Products, $36 000 000 kraft pulp mill now under construction.

Although hiring volume has increased, there are only a few men being hired at Crofton now compared to the number that will be required in the future months.

The company will use the facilities of the Duncan NES office to recruit workers.

Cyprus Clears Way for Troops Of 9 Nations

Suez Build-Up Speeded On Eve of Nasser Talks

Today's Developments

1. Cyprus governor clears way for stationing of troops from nine nations, including U.S., on British bastion 250 miles from Suez.
2. Egypt readies indictment that could send three accused British spies to gallows.
3. Arab workers threaten to quit Mid-East oilfields.
4. Australia army chief ready to mobilize division if Britain calls for troops.
5. Twenty-six troopships loading men and equipment at French ports. Round-clock airlift of troops to Cyprus continues.
6. Prime Minister Eden rejects Labor demands for special session of Parliament immediately.

(Reuters, AP and UP Dispatches)

Governor Sir John Harding today signed an order providing for the presence in Cyprus of "visiting forces" from the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon and France.

The order, made under the Visiting Forces Act, appeared in a special issue of the official Gazette and came into operation today.

This is the first time that the act has been put into operation in Cyprus. It follows Britain's approval for a French contingent to be based in Cyprus temporarily in view of the Suez crisis.

At almost the same moment, British authorities on Cyprus revealed that a series of bomb explosions damaged the closely-guarded Episkopi cantonment of the joint Middle East command headquarters early today.

Gasoline bombs set off a fire that was later extinguished. A sergeants' mess was destroyed and the roofs of two officers' messes were damaged. An unexploded time bomb and an unexploded gasoline bomb were found in the debris.

OTTAWA COMMENT

At Ottawa, Lt.-Gen. H. D. Graham, chief of the general staff, said he had never heard of any plans for sending Canadian forces to Cyprus. Defence Minister Campney and his deputy, Frank R. Miller, were unavailable; they are touring NATO establishments in Europe.

Gen. Graham said he did not believe Governor Harding's order had any particular significance to Canada.

When the Visiting Forces Act is brought into operation, Gen. Graham said, it is normal to make it applicable to the forces of any country that might possibly be concerned.

At Sydney, Australia, Army Minister John Cramer said a fully-equipped battalion of the Royal Australian Regiment is ready if a call for troops should be made in the Suez Canal crisis. Another battalion can be mobilized at short notice and a complete division of 17,000 men could be called up if necessary, he said.

But Cramer added that the Australian army has not been placed on the alert over the Suez situation and no move has been made to cancel army leave.

At the French port of Marseille Friday thousands of French troops boarded ships bound for the Mediterranean. France's round-the-clock airlift of crack troops to Cyprus continued without let-up.

The 30,447-ton French troopship Pasteur sailed from Marseille on Friday night with 4,300 men bound for Algeria. Twenty-six other ships took on men and equipment at the French port. It was widely reported in Paris

2nd Air Crash In Alaska Kills 11

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A United States Air Force B-50 weather plane crashed on a tiny island in the Susitna river in Alaska and exploded Friday. Ten of the crew were killed and the other is believed dead.

The island, 30 miles northwest of Anchorage, is so small that helicopters were forced to land on a mud bank a quarter mile away.

An air force spokesman said the plane apparently crashed downward instead of coming in at an angle.

EMBATTLED TOWN FORMS HOME GUARD

Bloodshed Threatens In Anti-Negro Riots

Mayor Pleads For State Aid

CLINTON, Tenn. (UP)—A state of emergency was declared here today by city officials who fear that racial unrest may explode into fresh violence at a mass meeting tonight.

(From AP and UP Dispatches)

CLINTON, Tenn.—Clinton officials today took steps to organize a "home guard" unit as another scheduled segregation rally tonight posed a threat of further mob action in protest of racial integration at the Clinton High School.

Mayor W. E. Lewallen of Clinton asked today for state reinforcements to help preserve peace in this town where businessmen sat in their darkened stores Friday night with guns across their knees as a huge and riotous crowd surged through the streets of Clinton.

Lewallen said that nothing has been heard from an appeal to the state for aid and added, "It's a hot potato and they don't want to touch it."

Tennessee's five pro-segregation organizations announced they will jointly sponsor the Clinton segregation rally tonight at the Anderson county courthouse. The principal speaker will be criminal court Judge Raulson Schoolfield of Chattanooga, who was an unsuccessful candidate for governor on a segregation platform.

Lawyer Buford Lewallen, son of the mayor, said a home guard would be organized this afternoon and would be on hand at the rally tonight.

'There's Going To Be Bloodshed'

Mayor Lewallen predicted today that "there's going to be bloodshed before the night is over" unless Clinton's small police force gets reinforcements.

"I've talked to everybody but the governor (who was reported unavailable today) and they've assured me that they are closer to this thing than we think they are," Lewallen said. "They said they are watching it very closely.

"But our people can't understand why this disturbance was allowed to go on, especially on a state highway, without some state action.

"Somebody's going to get hurt. Those boys that mobbed us are coming back and they're going to try to tear up this town."

Lewallen said it was "a miracle" there was not more extensive damage here last night.

Most of the pupils at Clinton High, which admitted 12 negroes this week, were reported by their school leaders to be ready to accept integration. But there were a number of holdouts. Apparently most of the teenagers in the crowd last night started out for a good time but then were swept into a frenzy by the super-charged situation.

Autos occupied by negroes were damaged but the occupants managed narrow escapes from demonstrators, heated to boiling point by a week of agitation from white citizens council leaders.

Single Agitator Cause of Trouble

In less than a week, court-ordered mixing of races in the local high school has changed this peaceful Tennessee town into a place of racial tenseness and hatred.

Last Monday Clinton High became the first state-supported high school in Tennessee to end segregation when it admitted 12 Negro students along with about 750 whites.

The town's leaders agree that most of the trouble was stirred up by a fiery segregationist from Washington who never saw this town of 4,000 persons until last Sunday.

"Everything had been quiet until he arrived," said Sheriff Joe Owen. "Now we've got a pretty ugly situation on our hands."

He was talking of John Kasper, 26, executive secretary of the "Seaboard White Citizens' Council" of Washington.

"We will go on with our picketing and fight until we win," Kasper told a reporter. He promised to form a White Citizens' Council here, and since Monday, the school has been picketed, signs have been paraded bearing such legends as "Go home, coons," "Coon season open," and "Keep Negroes out."

Kasper conducted nightly meetings on the Anderson courthouse lawn, haranguing against integration and against local school and law-enforcement officials.

Over and over, he has repeated: "We must keep the Negroes out."

MANSFIELD, Tex. (UP) — A troubled quiet settled over Mansfield today and there seemed no immediate danger that violence would erupt over an attempt by six Negroes to enroll in an all-white high school.

The Negroes, armed with a court order, were to have enrolled Friday. But they were frightened away by more than 400 sullen whites who blocked off entrances to the school grounds and milled ominously about.

Gov. Allan Shivers ordered two Texas Rangers in for a look. He also instructed school officials to transfer out of the district any student, white or black, whose attendance could reasonably be calculated to incite violence.

Wheaton Sets New Mark To Win Elk Lake Swim

Excellent weather is expected for the Labor Day weekend, according to weatherman William Mackie of Gonzales Observatory. Sunshine will prevail, with light, cool winds and moderate temperatures. (See holiday story page 15).

Saanich Golden Jubilee perpetual trophy—top award to the fastest teen-aged lake swimmer in the district—was won today by Bob Wheaton, 14, a grade 10 student at Oak Bay High School. He lives at 661 Newport.

He back-stroked all the way with a record time of 50 minutes and 40 seconds. Hot on his trail and in second place was Doug Dickie, 15, last year's winner.

Bob beat the record set by Doug last year—52 minutes, 35 seconds. Doug's time today was 53 minutes, 50 seconds.

Twenty-six youngsters aged 14-16, battled across the two-mile course between Elk Lake's Happy land and Beaver Lake beach in the third flight which kept the winning of the top trophy in doubt to the last moment.

Sixty-eight youngsters kicked off this morning in the swim toward a brilliant array of 20 cups and other prizes.

First race of the three-wave swim saw 16-year-old Monty Vanden take an easy win with a time of 60 minutes and 30 seconds for the two-mile course.

First girl in the second race was Diane Jay, and first girl in the final wave was Gail Parker.

Winners in the second group were 11-year-old Ralph Mills, first, with a time of 69 minutes, 23 seconds; Keith Mulloy, 14, second, 71 minutes 34 seconds; Dennis Parnell, 13, third, 71 minutes 35 seconds. Only one of 17 starters in the under-13 failed to finish.

On stepping ashore each swimmer was led through a uniform guard of Eagles drill team and band members who saluted the youngsters.

11 DIE IN FIRST DAY OF HOLIDAY WEEKEND

By The Canadian Press

Canada started a three-day holiday weekend marking Labor Day with 11 persons killed in traffic accidents since 6 p.m. (local time) Friday.

The United Press reported 45 persons killed in accidents on streets and highways in the U.S. since 6 p.m. (local time) Friday.

Sandown Racing Back on Again

The Sandown Park race meeting, canceled Wednesday after a dispute between horse owners and the association over purse money, was rescheduled today.

The Ascot Jockey Club this morning completed arrangements with the horsemen for a two-week meeting at the suburban track near Sidney.

The meeting will open Sept. 15 and close Oct. 1.

Racing will be held daily except Sunday.

Last-minute negotiations started Friday resulted in the change of plan.

The minimum purse money of $500 per race remains the same as the Ascot Jockey Club previously offered the horsemen.

However, two co-features a day have been added. On Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, these will be worth $600; on Wednesdays $600 and $700, and on Saturdays $600 and $800.

The Ascot Jockey Club lost heavily on last year's meeting at Sandown; this year it is prepared to lose money again in order to preserve racing for Victoria.

A leading horse owner in Vancouver said today:

"Victoria needs racing; it always was a good racing town, and I'm certain Victoria fans want to see racing again. I'm certain that this effort on the part of the Ascot Jockey Club and the horsemen will be appreciated."

NO TIMES ON MONDAY

The Times will observe Labor Day. Next publication will be Tuesday with holiday weekend coverage in all editions.

Manchester U. Takes Lead In Football

LONDON (AP) — League champion Manchester United soared back to its old place at the top of the soccer standing today with a 3-0 home victory over Portsmouth.

Chill winds and driving rain kept crowds small again for the third straight Saturday, but the teams turned in some blazing stuff with Sunderland's 8-1 win over Charlton Athletic topping the list of monster scores.

Preston, without a point in four previous matches, slammed Cardiff City 6-0. Newly promoted Sheffield Wednesday hammered Newcastle 4-0. And Sheffield United, down in the second division and striving to get back, took a 6-1 away victory over Barnsley.

'WHO NEEDS MONEY?'

B.C. Woman Refuses $50,000 Inheritance

VANCOUVER (CP)—A former Burnaby, B.C., woman who was left $50,000 by a long-lost brother doesn't want the money.

Mrs. Ida Mary Topham Lewis, 70, now of Haddenham, Buckinghamshire, said she doesn't need the money and isn't enthusiastic about the legacy.

Mrs. Lewis was the object of an intensive search in B.C. recently and was finally located in England. A brother in California bequeathed her the money.

"What's $50,000 in pounds?" she asked the reporter who showed her the clippings. It's about £17,142.

She said she didn't need the money "and besides, the government would take a large part of it anyway."

Them Tennessee crowds seem t' be pervidin' a pretty good exhibition o' whut happens when eddication ain't wide enuff t' let both races study t'gether.

ONE NAME RECURS IN WILLS

Deaths of 29 Rich Widows 'Not Adequately Explained'

EASTBOURNE, England (UP)—Scotland Yard officials hinted today that they are on the trail of a definite suspect in the mysterious deaths of 30 wealthy women.

They said examination of more than 400 wills disclosed that the name of one man appeared in many of them, but they refused to announce his name.

Scotland Yard threw reinforcements of detectives into the hunt to fulfill a police prediction that enough evidence will be uncovered to make an arrest by the middle of next week.

All but one of the 30 deaths in question "are not adequately explained," Scotland Yard's Detective Superintendent Herbert Hannan said.

A well-known Sussex hypnotist was interviewed this week in an effort to learn if a man with hypnotic power could induce a person to make a will in his favor, and whether he could persuade that person to act in a way which would cause death, apparently by accident or natural causes.

Officials said the hypnotist demonstrated to them how persons could be put into such a state of hypnosis and that they could be made to "follow certain lines of action suggested to them."

. . . CYPRUS

that a number of the ships soon will sail for Cyprus.

Both France and Britain have been building up their military forces in the Mediterranean since July 26 when Egypt seized the canal.

Meanwhile, at London the five-power Suez conference committee headed by Prime Minister Menzies of Australia put the finishing touches to the canal plan it will deliver to Egypt's President Nasser Monday. The committee is due in Cairo Sunday.

The committee will deliver a western - sponsored proposal, backed by 18 of the 22 countries which attended the recent London conference on the canal issue, that an international board operate the canal.

Diplomatic sources say Menzies will face the "toughest and roughest" fight of his career when the talks begin. They say the Egyptian mood has become increasingly rigid in its opposition to any suggestion of widening control of the waterway.

At Cairo, the Egyption attorney-general was drafting indictments which could send three accused British spies to the gallows.

Egypt, burning with resentment at Anglo-French "pressure tactics"—especially the buildup on Cyprus—moved against the accused Britons under its war code which orders death for anyone transmitting military secrets to a foreign country. Egypt technically is in a state of war with Israel.

Speculation in Cairo was that the spy trials would begin next week, perhaps simultaneously with the Menzies-Nasser conversations.

As the canal controversy continued to develop, other Middle East troubles boiled up.

The biggest clashes in months were reported along the Egyptian-Israeli frontier. Egypt complained to UN truce supervisors that Israeli forces killed 13 Egyptian soldiers in three separate raids on Egyptian territory.

Threats they would quit work in Mid-East oilfields, key source of Europe's fuel supplies, were issued by the Federation of Arab Worker.

In Britain, Prime Minister Eden resisted growing uneasiness, stirred by Labor Party speechmakers, against the use of force outside the United Nations. Eden rejected a Labor demand he call Parliament into urgent session.

Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell said in a letter to the government Friday—his second within a month—that it is essential to recall members "not later than the week after next" so that Parliament would have an opportunity to discuss the Suez situation before the government took any new decisions.

"SET FOR WAR"

The Manchester Guardian, Liberal, warns editorially that the government is "preparing to go to war immediately" if Egypt turns down the 18-country proposals for international control of the Suez canal.

The News Chronicle, also Liberal, criticizes the government for deciding to permit the stationing of French troops on Cyprus. "We give the impression of being more intent than ever on dictating rather than negotiating a settlement," The Chronicle says.

In turning down Gaitskell's request, the government statement said: "The date for the recall of Parliament cannot be fixed until the government have had an opportunity of considering the outcome of the discussions due to begin in Cairo on Monday."

Canada's External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson left Ottawa last night for a special Paris meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council next week on the Suez Canal crisis, and a three-week series of consultations with his colleagues on NATO's committee of "three wise men."

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By DINAH KERR and IRVING STRICKLAND

Question: Saanich is celebrating its 50th birthday today. How long do you think it will be before the municipality is as large as Victoria city in population? (1951 census figures: Victoria, 51,331; Saanich, 28,481).

Derek Carrigan, druggist, 3943A Quadra: "I'll give her five years. I think Saanich will equal Victoria in no time at all. Lots are too high-priced in Victoria. That's why I moved out here."

Howroyd Carrigan

Mrs. J. Howroyd, 1710 Mortimer: "I imagine Saanich will catch up to Victoria within 12 years. Look at the rate it's growing right now. The expansion out here is just amazing."

George Ditchburn, realtor, 3551 Saanich road: "Undoubtedly Saanich is growing faster than Victoria and will soon overtake her. It's hard to say how many years this will take. Of course, the two may be combined before very long."

Ditchburn Horth

Mrs. H. G. Horth, Land's End Road: "I wouldn't like to guess the number of years, but I am sure that Saanich will keep growing until it is larger than Victoria. I've lived in the municipality for several years and have seen a great many changes. Actually, I'm in favor of amalgamation."

Horace Taylor, bulldozer operator, 651 Alpha Street: "As a matter of fact, I don't think Saanich will ever overtake Victoria in population. There are just too many farms out there."

Taylor Preston

J. Preston, hardware salesman, 3440 Whittier Avenue: "I think Saanich will soon be larger than Victoria. Saanich has plenty of room to expand in, whereas the city has had it as far as population goes. It wouldn't take Saanich any time at all if they allowed industry there."

B.C. ELECTION ROUND-UP

Concessions Made to BCE 'Cause for Alarm'—Turner

VANCOUVER (BUP) — CCF candiates at a Vancouver East election meeting Friday blasted the handling of public power under Premier Bennett's government.

Arthur Turner, veteran MLA, said the question of public power is a top issue in the election. The public must know what the government's policy is in this matter, he said.

"Bennett's silence (on the power issue) must be interpreted as knowledge that he has something to hide," charged Mr. Turner.

He said that the government concessions to the B.C. Electric are "cause for alarm."

The Premier's refusal to allow enquiry into charges against former Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers and holding back of the RCMP report "show an utter contempt for honest dealing in public affairs," said Mr. Turner.

"When Bennett comes in the door, democracy flies out the window."

Douglas Speaks Here on Tuesday

Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan will speak in Victoria Tuesday during his six-day B.C. election campaign for the CCF.

Mr. Douglas will be joined by all Greater Victoria CCF candidates at a meeting in Central Junior High School at 8 p.m.

Irwin Should Quit

CLOVERDALE, B.C. (CP) —James Rhodes, CCF candidate for Delta riding in Sept. 19 B.C. election, said Speaker Tom Irwin of the legislature should resign from the Social Credit party.

Mr. Rhodes said the speaker, who is seeking re-election in the Delta riding, says he is a member of the government "but does not agree with half they do." He said Mr. Irwin should resign from the party and sit as an independent member or "get back on the bandwagon."

"You can't sit on the fence and be a member of the government and at the same time properly represent the people," Mr. Rhodes said.

'Red Herring'

LADYSMITH (CP)—Labor Minister Wicks, speaking in support of Social Credit candidate Rev. Charles W. Parker, former MLA for Peace River and now Cowichan-Newcastle nominee, said opposition criticism "is a red hrering for the people."

Mr. Wicks said the opposition has constantly asked the present government to go to the people. "Now their criticisms are doing nothing but confusing the public."

'Ducks and Drakes'

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—CCF Leader Robert Strachan accused Premier Bennett Thursday night of lying and deceiving the people.

He accused Attorney-General Robert Bonner of playing "ducks and drakes" with democracy and said neither Bonner nor former lands minister Robert Sommers has the moral right to stand for public office so long as an RCMP report on Sommers is kept secret.

Speaking for an hour to an audience of about 150 in the CCF hall here, Mr. Strachan attacked Social Credit policy on debt reduction, taxation, forest management and hospital insurance.

Strachan

Answering a question from the floor regarding the Sommers case, he said if he were premier he would not let a minister of his resign if he were innocent. He would announce his stand publicly and would not do what Premier Bennett has done.

"Bennett hasn't said a word to this day and probably knows as much about it as anyone. He must have seen the RCMP report." He said if he were the premier he wouldn't allow "the bumbling political finagling" of the attorney-general.

"Had the attorney-general been interested in the welfare of the public he would have disclosed the RCMP report."

He charged that the attorney-general withheld information in the report deliberately for political purposes.

Strachan said the premier's boast that he had reduced public debt to $191,000,000 was an example of a downright lie. He said that debt reduction was a fable and charged the government with keeping two sets of books.

Judgment Withheld

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Tom Irwin, Speaker of the last legislature and Social Credit candidate for Delta, says the Social Credit party is withholding judgment on a former cabinet minister pending the outcome of his case in the B.C. courts.

Speaking at a Delta nominating convention, Mr. Irwin referred to former lands and forest minister R. B. Sommers who is suing Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy for slander.

Mr. Irwin said: "Those unfortunate circumstances came about as something the party had no control over."

"We allow people to do what they want," he said. "If they don't do the things that live up to the tenets of Social Credit, then we don't want them in the party."

"But, as always, we will hold judgment until we know for sure."

CONCESSIONAIRE RETIRES

Retiring after more than 10 years running Canadian National Institute for the Blind concession in Belmont Building is Horace Woodfield, here passing keys over to Clayton Hamilton, his successor who formerly ran the CNI concession beside the Public Library on Yates Street.

CHIEF CHARGED—Police Chief Charles Lockwood of Marmora in eastern Ontario has been charged with theft from the mails. The chief had been helping investigate the theft of $8,500 from a bank shipment two weeks ago. He was arrested by Ontario Provincial Police.

Perry's Son Named

Prince George lawyer Frank Perry, 28, son of former Liberal cabinet minister Harry Perry, has been nominated Liberal candidate in the Fort George riding.

His opposition will be Education Minister Ray Williston, and CCF-er Walter Kienzle, a farmer, who was promised by party backers they will harvest his crop for him while he campaigns.

Other nominations:

At Kamloops, Victor Mauro, 36, has been nominated CCF candidate. His opposition will be Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi and Liberal T. P. Wilson.

Progressive Conservative candidates in Vancouver-Burrard will be James A. Macauley, 27, and Wilfred Caine, 66.

Glyn Thomas, 28, has been nominated second Labor-Progressive candidate in the North Vancouver riding. His running mate is Charles Caron.

Oilman Boosts Bennett For Northern Policies

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Political Reporter

FORT ST. JOHN—Frank McMahon, president of the West Coast Transmission Company, extended an enthusiastic welcome to Premier Bennett here Friday and said:

"I hope everyone will support you in your election campaign." His firm is engaged in a gigantic oil and gas development program in the north and is building the Peace River-to-Vancouver gas pipeline.

Mr. McMahon said other governments had tried to develop the Peace River country but he did not think they had "tried very hard."

He gave fullest credit to Mr. Bennett and his cabinet for taking the PGE Railway to Prince George and planning its construction to Fort St. John.

Government officials, B.C. industrialists, newspaper men, and guests from all over the United States, fairly gasped with surprise when the millionaire oilman said:

"We have tried for nearly 20 years to get things going up here. We tried the Pattullo government and the John Hart government. But we had to wait for the Bennett government to get any kind of action."

Mr. McMahon stated afterwards that he was not a member of the Social Credit Party, and had no interest in politics apart from the fact that the Social Credit government had encouraged northern development.

"We have tried for 20 years to invest our money up here and at last we have succeeded," Mr. McMahon told his applauding audience.

Premier Bennett said no man was entitled to more credit than Mr. McMahon for his "magnificent northern enterprise" and, he pointed out, the by-products of Mr. McMahon's development would provide tremendous traffic for the PGE Railway.

"This PGE is going to Fort St. John and north to the Beaton river," Mr. Bennett said.

"We owe a great deal to the inspiration of such men as Mr. McMahon. Without such men it might not have been possible to lay the foundations of what will be known to history as the glorious north of British Columbia."

Politicians and the CBC

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT was perhaps too rushed in its last hours to realize the gravity of certain affairs in the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. The unsatisfactory exchanges on this subject leave some vital questions unanswered. They will require an answer later on.

The C.B.C. was introduced into the House of Commons when Mr. Solon Low, leader of the Social Credit Party, declared that the publicly-owned radio and television system harbored Communists and distributed Communist propaganda.

He was referring to a play about the Industrial Workers of the World, the so-called "Wobblies," a famous left-wing movement in the United States about the time of the First World War.

Dr. J. J. McCann, minister of national revenue, who is responsible for the C.B.C.'s relations with the Government, made an extraordinary reply to Mr. Low. He said: "Apparently there are Communists everywhere, and they infiltrate into organizations of government as well as into places of industry."

This remark was widely interpreted as meaning that Communists have infiltrated the C.B.C. as Mr. Low had alleged. But a few days later Dr. McCann explained that was only making a general statement about Communist infiltration. He did not mean that this had occurred in the C.B.C.

Dr. McCann added, however, that he regretted the C.B.C.'s action in broadcasting the play about the Wobblies because it would revive old feelings of social bitterness. He would be on his guard, he said, to prevent a recurrence of such a mistake.

Both Dr. McCann and Mr. Low seem to be confused about the Wobblies. Their movement was certainly radical and, in the view of many people, dangerous. It was not part of general Communist conspiracy which got under way after the Wobblies had disappeared. They were enemies of the Communist International.

Whether the C.B.C. was wise in broadcasting its play about a radical workingmen's movement is a matter of opinion. The C.B.C. doubtless makes mistakes like other public bodies, including the Government and Parliament.

It should never be forgotten, however, that the C.B.C. is an absolutely independent body, so far as its programs are concerned, and the Government has no right to interfere with them. If Dr. McCann or any other politician is allowed to interfere in these matters the C.B.C. will become involved inevitably in partisan politics. Its independence will be destroyed.

It is no part of the Government's business to censor the C.B.C.'s broadcasts or to protect the public from material which it considers undesirable. Our radio system is founded on the assumption that an adult population is capable of making up its own mind on social questions and that it is entitled to hear all sides of those questions. For this purpose it pays huge sums annually to support the C.B.C.

If the C.B.C. were infiltrated by Communists, if it were broadcasting Communist propaganda—as it certainly is not—its managers should be dismissed; for in the case of international Communism we are not dealing with a legitimate social movement but with an agent of a hostile foreign power.

On the other hand, if the C.B.C. is to become a kind of Nice Nellie of the air, if it is afraid to open its channels to social debate on the most controversial questions, if the public cannot hear all sides of all such questions from its own radio system, then we had better pack up the C.B.C. altogether.

Time to Hunt, Time to Worry

ANOTHER HUNTING SEASON opened today and with it came the usual apprehension.

Within the next few days or weeks, unless the pattern has changed radically, newspaper readers will be informed that someone has been shot in the woods, has been lost or has narrowly escaped serious injury.

The virtual certainty of such news items stems from two primary causes: An increasing number of people are going hunting and far too many of them are not competent in the woods or in the use of firearms.

Because we are relatively remote from frontier living, woodlore and automatic safety education in the use of guns are not part of the present generation's conventional training. At this season, and this season only, a number of urbanites attempt to revert to a type of life which required and once developed as second nature particular skills now seldom used.

Those skills can still be learned, preferably at an early age by boys from fathers who are experienced and careful. Many potentially good woodsmen are being developed in that way. This year, however, a change in the regulations prevents them from hunting with their fathers until they are 14.

Perhaps the authorities might look a little more deeply into that age restriction. We are going to have young men hunting in the woods for years to come. The earlier they learn how to conduct themselves, the better. Conceivably special permission might be given to those even below 14 to gain experience in the field under the supervision of men of proven ability and safety consciousness.

'Are You There?'

IT IS REASSURING TO BE TOLD that the telephone of the future—the instrument which will present a visual image of the person on the other end of the line as well as transmit conversation—will be equipped with a mechanism to switch off the picture.

The man roused from bed, with hair standing on end and probably wearing inelegant night attire, will not have to make a spectacle of himself when he picks up the receiver and says "Hello." Nor will the young lady with her hair in curl pins preparing for the evening date.

Without the image of the listener automatically displayed, it will still be possible to read a book while receiving the outpourings of a telephone bore. It will be possible, even, to retain stand-ins to murmur "uh-huh" at appropriate moments while taking a coffee break from a telephone monologue.

On the other hand, it will still be possible for an unseen voice at the other end to pop the old and exasperating question, "Guess who this is!" But perhaps the phone of the future will have another button that can be pressed to deliver a mild, though not too mild, electric shock to the ear of people who have made and still make this communications medium a small horror.

'Where Duty And Glory Lead'

With reference to your editorial in the issue for Aug. 29: It would indeed be regrettable if the old 5th Brigade were to fade into oblivion. At this critical period in World history I think it would also be a grave mistake on the part of those responsible.

"Everywhere. Where Duty and Glory Lead." This is the proud motto of the Royal Regiment of Artillery and the Royal Canadian Artillery, of which the 5th Western Harbour Defence Bty. forms an integral part.

In all parts of the Commonwealth wherever there are defence forces there will be found artillerymen. They are truly ubiquitous, and wherever they are, in peace or in war, they have always tried to live up to the second part of their motto.

Tradition plays a great part in stimulating the esprit de corps of a unit. An American general wrote an article some time ago deploring the fact that in the United States Army the units did not have that continuity of tradition that the British Army has, and lacked its stabilizing influence.

It is a great pity that the long history of the 5th Brigade of which the last unit is to be disbanded, is not published. I feel sure there would be a public outcry against the projected move.

Apparently there is no suggestion that the Canadian Navy is to be abolished, otherwise money would not be spent on the new buildings for the Naval Base. A navy consists of ships. Ships require places where they can refit, refuel, or be repaired. When in harbour for these purposes they cannot adequately defend themselves.

Hence the need of some form of defences against attacks by air, sea, and land. I think that most naval officers are against diverting naval personnel for such defences. They need all they can get to man their ships.

So all over the world wherever there are Commonwealth naval bases, artillerymen have manned the shore installations protecting the harbours.

As you remark in your editorial, weapons change with the times, but the new types still need men trained to use them. Naval vessels still are armed with guns though some are being fitted with guided missile projectors.

Very wisely the navy is not scrapping the old before the new are available. Surely in these critical times the same principle should apply to the defences of their bases.

Guided missile batteries will, no doubt, eventually replace existing armament. This I have read is already being done in the U.S.A. notably at New York where some of the old forts have been converted. It would be interesting to know whether the Russians and the Chinese still have coastal defences. I feel sure that they do.

Atomic bombs of large explosive force mean complete destruction of anything they are used against and cannot be ruled out though it would appear that all countries who have them at present will hesitate to use them.

But even their possible use does not preclude attacks made with more conventional weapons where complete destruction is not the main object, but where the attacker, if successful, may desire to make some use of the place he is attacking, e.g. drydocks, repair facilities etc.

A naval base costs millions of dollars to construct and maintain. Surely those responsible do not intend to leave it entirely unprotected. To do so would be to invite sudden attack before a declaration of war.

Personnel, whether they are air force, artillery, or infantry allotted to defended ports, should be stationed at or near them, and should be constantly exercised in all phases of defence by air, sea, or land. They should know the surrounding country better than any potential enemy, and be ready to man the defences at extremely short notice.

For this reason units from other parts of the country are not so suitable as a local one since conditions in Central Canada for example are so different to those in B.C. Hence the need of Reserve units formed here in Victoria and on Vancouver Island of which the original 5th Brigade was one of the oldest if not THE oldest in B.C.

The fact that few harbour defence weapons were fired against an enemy in the two World Wars only goes to show that they fulfilled their role, which was to make the enemy hesitate to attack ships in harbour.

Let us hope that the powers that be will reconsider their decision to disband harbour defence units.

Good-Bye Summer, Good-Bye

IN a few more days man's summer siege of nature will be lifted. Autumn is hurrying to the rescue of the wilderness. You can almost hear the forest's sigh of relief and the cheers of the woodland creatures. For the last two months, throuhgout the length and breadth of the nation, man has been trying to remake nature in his own image. He has invaded the woods, terrified the native inhabitants, filled the air with the noise of his engines and polluted it with his gasoline fumes. He has converted a thousand silent lakes into clamorous ski resorts. The echo of his shouts has mocked the virgin hills.

Hutchison

He has regarded the sun only as a furnace to heat his swimming pool or as a sun-tan lamp to change the natural color of his skin. He has given much of the Canadian landscape the authentic look of Coney Island.

BUT that is finished now or nearly finished. After Labor Day the invaders will retreat and leave nature to her own devices. The brave woodsmen of summer will crawl home to the shelter of their steam heated caves. Nature will get down to business again, free of interruption.

All year-round residents of these parts, human, animal and vegetable, are looking forward with relief to their annual holiday as the summer horde goes back to work.

An ancient man, driven from the lake since the end of June by speedboats and airplanes, was launching his battered rowboat today, resplendent in a new coat of paint, in anticipation of a merciful quietude and a return of the trout, long sulking on the bottom. He says he will now enjoy not only the chance of fishing but the chance of thought; for no one could think around here when the gasoline fleet was sputtering, the barbarians shrieking and the tall glasses clinking.

A DOE and her overgrown fawn ventured out of the woods this evening for the first time in many weeks, realizing by some private system of communication that the aliens would soon be gone. The first grouse are coming down out of the hills. None of these creatures, designated as game under man's laws, was aware that the open season will follow the holiday season and then a new invasion will begin under the curious name of sport.

The forest alone has been spared the knowledge of man's presence, having no eyes to see, or ears to hear him or nose to smell the poisons of his machinery.

FOR the trees it has been just another routine season of labor. An extra ring of wood has been added to every trunk, from the seedling to the giant, and while this may seem a small achievement for a whole year's work it adds up to quite a total and, though the forest has not read the news, this process of growth has produced massive effects on men's affairs and even on his elections and the business of his courts.

If it has accomplished nothing but the addition of a new layer of wood, the forest has accomplished more than its brief visitors. They have nothing to show for their summer but a coat of tan which will hardly last until Christmas and has no commercial value; unless, of course, they are instinctive and dedicated builders like my neighbor, Mr. Horace Snifkin.

AFTER five years of toil he has almost completed a lop-sided house which, with luck, may outlast the snows of winter. But Mr. Snifkin is an exception, as you can see when he occasionally puts on a bathing suit and reveals a white skin, the sure mark of the worker too busy for sun bathing, as the manly tan is the mark of the drone and waster.

Well, it has been a good summer for all concerned, man, animal and vegetable; a summer of sunshine to alter man's original pigmentation, of one timely rain to assuage the forest's thirst, of surging growth to nourish the woodland natives; a summer of perfection in the wilderness as it was a summer of politics, conventions, crisis and customary disorder in the affairs of mankind.

NOW that summer begins to die its approaching end must fill any old man's heart with a certain melancholy, for there are not so many summers left. Only the wilderness is immune to time. New human strangers will arrive next year and some old familiar faces will be missing but everything else will be the same. Unlike man, the wilderness goes on forever and it is fixing now for its winter holiday season of quiet and content while man transfers his energies, his noise, his fury and his brown skin to the city.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG — By GUS SIVERTZ

Round Trip Through the Sooke Watershed

THERE was one last wonderful excursion before school opened in the early autumn to cut our little journeys down to Saturdays only. It was a full day bicycle trip and it entailed a good packed lunch without any fruit added. That came gratuitously from roadside orchards. My bike was a fine English Raleigh, bought, of course, from Peden Brothers store on Government, just below Broughton street. Later, indeed much later, I graduated to a real superbike—a three-speed Singer.

We started early because the first real stop was at Goldstream Hotel and that was quit a bike ride. Naturally, it wasn't made in one spurt. There was the long walk up Four-Mile Hill and at least part of the longer hill leading up from Parson's Bridge to the old Colwood Hotel.

There was no golf course at Colwood then—Joe Sayward hadn't yet fathered the smart idea of building one in that lovely valley. A few miles further on we would stop at Langford Lake which then was not on a motor highway but skirted by a dirt road that snaked a twisted course only as far as Goldstream.

The Malahat was not yet even on the drawing boards but a road of sorts led down through the beautiful Goldstream gorge to Finlayson Arm and then I believe just sort of petered out in the highlands after giving access to a few rugged stump farms.

Popular Stop

At the Goldstream station of the E & N Railway there was the then famed Goldstream Hotel, a very popular stop for convivial spirits, operated, I think, by a Mr. Phair. It boasted a wide and long porch covered with creepers and adjoining it were quite substantial gardens and an orchard in which the Gravenstein apples were ripening about this time of year.

Across the road from the hotel was a picnic park equipped with rustic seats and tables and this was the site we were looking for for lunch—with sun-warmed apples for dessert.

Actually it was a very lovely spot and was frequently used for large picnic parties that arrived by train from Victoria. I think it was a popular destination for smart young swains, rigged out in peg-top pants, coats with flared skirts and high tight collars, who drove their girl friends out for a day in shiny hired livery rigs.

We left Goldstream by a road that startd at once to climb up to Sooke Lake watershed to which it aspired with all the twisting of a frightened garter snake.

At the top we halted, which was a good thing because the country was new to us and we had no warning of the steep descent to Sooke Lake. The bikes slithered as we braked them and for most of the down grade we dragged our feet on the rough gravel to check our speed.

The crazy road debouched all of a sudden onto the lake side at right angles to the fairly good road along the lake shore.

But we didn't stop there. It was a gloomy lake, shut in by high steep hills and the water looked cold, dark and forbidding. It seemed almost to have a sinister aspect as though we were trespassing where we had no right to be. We felt impelled to leave it as soon as we could and were soon peddling fast down toward Sooke River which drained the lake from its southern end.

Different World

Here a different world opened out for the Sooke River was—and is yet—a lovely stream with joyous, laughing ripples over sandy bottoms, sudden little cascades and deep quiet inviting pools. It was a place that, unlike the lake, seemed to call a welcome to you.

Perhaps we would have lingered for a swim but with the natural improvidence of boys we had long ago eaten the last of our lunches and the last of Mr. Phair's apples. We were mighty glad to find trees with fruit-laden oranches hanging over easily scaled fences.

It was a long way from home for a group of small boys but except for the steep hill up to 17-mile House the road was winding without any severe climbs. At 17-Mile House, which was a stop for the old horse stage from Victoria to wherever it finished out Jordan River way, we refreshed outselves by asking politely for a drink of water.

Kindly People

The good wife of the landlord was touched by our plight and added some thick slices of homemade bread and jam and glasses of milk. We seemed so often to meet kindly people on our jaunts.

A little further on we passed the stage coach whose weary horses made puffs of dust as their hooves clop-clopped up the hill.

At Metchosin there was a store at the Happy Valley crossroad where we were able to buy something to give another stay to the ravages of hunger.

And from there in—except for old Four-Mile Hill—it was easy going and the miles fled behind our singing tires as we called on reserves of energy for the spurt to home—and supper.

NO FLYING SAUCER — By JOHN WINDSOR

Our Nearest Neighbor Pays Us a Visit

SILENTLY cutting its way through unlimited oceans of space, Mars is approaching the earth. Its reddish light, far outshining that of other stars, can be clearly seen at dusk on the south eastern horizon.

Each night as it draws closer, it will continue to shine more and more brightly until Sept. 7, when it will have reached its closest proximity to earth since 1924, a mere 35 million miles.

There is a theory abroad at present that the planet, named in honor of the war god, has been attracted this way by the political war at present being waged in the province, but scientists are inclined to scoff at this idea.

In point of fact, Mars, our nearest planetary neighbor, varies considerably in its distance from us, sometimes swinging in close, as at present, at other times drifting out to a distance of 60 million miles.

Whilst vast quantities of valuable information has been written in science fiction and comic books on Mars, the Martians, flying saucers and other types of space ships in which they commute to and from the earth, they have apparently not been read by our scientists, who frankly admit to many unsolved mysteries as far as this planet is concerned.

It is known that Mars, considerably smaller than our earth, has two moons, Phobos and Deimes, which an observer, possessing a telescope, might be lucky enough to see on Sept. 7. Like ourselves Mars has an icecap, but it is very thin and melts away during the warm season.

Its day, just over 24 hours, is about the same length as ours, but its year of 687 days is nearly twice as long. However, it is the temperature that Victorians, used to their evergreen climate, would find hard to take. During the day it soars to a sizzling 90 F., whilst at night it falls to a bone chilling 90 below.

The big question of course is what, if any, form of life exists on this neighboring planet. As it is thought that the surface is covered with arid deserts on which only lichens grow, it does not seem probable that there is any form of advanced life — and yet there are canals, or are there?

Whether they exist or not is still an unsolved dispute among scientists. If there are canals, are they natural formations or were they artificially constructed, and if so, by what kind of creatures?

Maybe this question will not be answered on Sept. 7, but astronomers from many countries will be using cameras, telescopes, television and spectroscopes in order to try and find out more about our next door neighbor.

If on that day you should run into a little man standing only two feet high, who jabbers at you unintelligibly, don't be alarmed; it's not someone trying to talk politics to you, but only a Martian who took advantage of the cheap weekend excursion rates to follow the birds to Victoria.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

By SILENUS

An Echo from the Past

The atmosphere in Mr. Justice Wilson's chambers last Monday and Tuesday when Deane Finlayson, The Vancouver Sun and the Herald were haled before the court for contempt was quite different from that of any other legal proceeding which this column has ever observed. Though I am a little young to remember with any clarity the State Trials of the 18th century, there was more than a whiff of the feeling which ran then and which permeates even the dry official account in Howell's Reports.

The large Vancouver Assize courtroom was crowded with lawyers and others interested in liberty; the sense of dramatic expectancy which never left the proceedings overflowed into the rest of the building, gathering little conversational knots of people in the corridors and offices. For this, as everyone recognized, with the curious unanimity of crowds, was not a mere juicy spectacle. It was a contest between legitimate freedom of speech and the press and the authoritarian hand of an oppressive executive.

Despite the assurance of counsel who made the motion that it was merely a step in a private lawsuit, the spectators remained convinced in their minds that this apparently insignificant proceeding was in effect a State Trial.

Senator Farris and John Diefenbaker, the acknowledged stars of the production, were never in finer form. It is not often these days that one is treated to a display of advocacy of the heyday of the art, and here was advocacy indeed, from two of the great Canadian exponents. Courtroom oratory is far more than mere presentation, and it can never take the flavour of ordinary public speaking. The advocate, where there is no jury, must convince a judge, whose cold and fishy eye is ever upon him, noting, taking in and silently assessing. In the words of the old song:

It's a deuce of a drudge
To budge a judge
and to budge one

the advocate must talk only clear cold sense of an authoritative kind.

It is evident that the Senator and the MP did just that. But even so thoughts of Erskine defending Tom Paine or Horne Tooke, passed through the minds of many onlookers.

In one of these columns I tried to show how great an influence small beginnings may have on the progress of the Common Law. A dead snail in a ginger beer bottle is the cornerstone of a vast body of private law. Similarly in the field of public law, the criticism by ordinary people of the government of George III which resulted in the State Trials of the day gave free English juries the chance to settle for all time the form of our liberties.

Here Mr. Finlayson provided our own Supreme Court with the opportunity to restate those liberties.

But liberty, in these troubled times, is becoming more and more of an abstraction. For a long time past it has been draining imperceptibly away from an indifferent people. It is a great thing for all of us that we still have courageous men like Deane Finlayson, who deliberately ran the risk of imprisonment for the sake of his expressed convictions, and courageous journals who will publicize such utterances. They speak for the individual against the power of an increasingly monolithic state.

So long as such people and such papers exist, the old ideal of liberty under the law will not altogether disappear among the curiosities of history.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Why No Second Class?

Reyburn

LONDON—I am indebted to Peter Roos for explaining to me, in a BBC broadcast, why it is that British railways have first and third class but no second class. It is something that puzzles you when you first come to England but then you take it for granted, without bothering to find out the why and wherefore. You say to yourself it is just the quaint way the English do things, and let it go at that.

Reason why the subject has come up is that countries of western Europe have got together to standardize the various classes that you encounter as you go from one country to another. It is confusing as it is now.

In planning a continental trip you have to figure that third class on an English train is the equivalent of second in France, while in Spain to get the same sort of accommodation you have to travel first, whereas in Switzerland, etc., etc. Any Canadian who has had a European trip knows all these problems of booking rail journeys.

So, under the new system, Britain's third class is to be designated second. It won't look any different, being up-graded in name only.

How did it come to be that British trains have first and third, with second non-existent?

When Britain got this business of trains started early last century there were all three classes, and on some lines even four classes. In the 1840s there were entire first class trains (with accommodation for the servants of the well-to-do people who traveled by such trains) and the carriages looked like three horse-drawn coaches joined together and placed on a flat wagon.

And that, incidentally, is how the British system of compartments in trains arose and still persists. There were also second class (less elegant) trains and "mixed trains" of first and second. The third class trains were something to be avoided because you went along with the freight and the accommodation wasn't much better than that of the cattle trucks.

To dissuade people from traveling third the railway companies saw to it that they never made any connections. In 1884, on behalf of the masses, the government passed an act forcing the railways to make third class better and it was around this time that second class disappeared.

One of the companies announced that henceforth they would admit third class passengers to all their trains. Third class travelers took over the second class accommodation and first class fares were reduced to the level of second class and in this shuffle this company and the others that followed suit wound up with only first and third.

In those days 70 out of 100 traveled third but today it is true to say that "practically everybody travels third." Only two out of every 100 sit in the first class carriages. There is no stigma attached to traveling third, as in the old days. Even less so now that it will be a case of saying "I'm traveling second."

ANIMALS AROUND US

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL

Dr. Carl

Until the magnifying glass was invented and inquisitive people began looking more closely at living things around them, the moss animals escaped attention. Up to that time these rather complicated animals were thought to be mossy plants and even today many of them are not recognized as members of the animal kingdom.

The reason for this of course is that these creatures in general are small and many species form branching colonies that appear to be plant-like to the naked eye. Only close attention to details reveals their true character.

Under a lens a branching colony is seen to be a tubular structure with individual animals occupying the ends of the "twigs." Each animal has a gullet, a U-shaped stomach, muscles and other structures, as well as an incomplete ring of tentacles around the mouth. When feeding, the body is extended into the water, but when at rest or alarmed it can be retracted into the hollow tube.

While moss animals are defenceless except for the protection afforded by their tubular housing, some are equipped with minute structures resembling a bird's head with jaws that open and snap shut to prevent other small forms from settling on the surface of the colony.

LIVE IN SEA

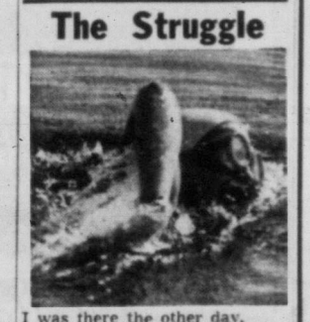
Most moss animals live in the sea, especially in shallow water. The attractive colors seen in tide pools are largely due to encrusting forms that cling to rock, shell and other support. Some common species are cream colored and slippery to the touch, others are in modern shades of pink or are dead white forming delicate whorls of lacework on flat fronds of seaweed.

One world-wide species lives in fresh water where it forms a mossy growth creeping over submerged rocks and waterlogged branches of trees. Before the days of chlorination this colonial animal was a source of trouble to maintenance men in charge of Victoria's water system. Finding a constant source of food and favorable anchorage these creatures flourished in water meters and other sections of the distribution system often completely stopping the flow of water. Following the necessary addition of chemicals to the water their rich supply of food was cut off with the result that these colonies are no longer able to exist within the pipe. However, extensive colonies still flourish in Sooke Lake, and no doubt in all lakes in the district.

Ontario Cracks Down

TORONTO (BUP)—Ontario police will crack down on used car dealers to enforce a 1955 law requiring dealers to issue mechanical fitness certificates for all cars sold, Attorney-General Kelso Roberts said Thursday.

The Struggle



I was there the other day,
When Marilyn beat in to
Horseshoe Bay;
I jerked my ankle outa joint,
Jumping down rocks at
Clover Point.
I was just as excited as all the rest,
When I thot I saw her on a
crest.
I looked way over, Port Angeles
way,
Just HOW could a human,
battle that spray??
Something told me, she'd make
the beach,
People started to wade, they wanted to reach,
And grasp the hand of this little girl,
Who'd fought the cold, the
the tides & the swirl.
I felt all these souls had SO
wanted to dare,
To do something big . . . so
people would stare,
But somehow fate wove a different story,
There's just the odd one, who makes it to glory.
And yet, as I saw the aged &
lame,
I knew each one had that inward flame,
That kept them
stroking all their lives,
Thru some awful straits
that life
contrives.
These the real
heroes, fighting great woe,
The bravest
grapple . . .
and CONQUER SO.

Sherlock Holmes Solves Mystery Death (By Proxy)

CHATHAM, England (AP)—Chalk up the solution of another mystery to Sherlock Holmes.

The death of Capt. Edward Mantell, 26-year-old army adjutant, puzzled the Kent police and army officials. He was found dead in a field with head injuries. Was it murder?

Then one detective, an enthusiastic reader of Conan Doyle stories noticed young horses grazing in the field. He thought of Silver Blaze, the horse which Holmes discovered had killed its trainer by kicking him.

The shoe of one horse showed traces of blood and hair.

Dear Neighbors:

I have accepted the nomination of the Progressive Conservative Association in Oak Bay, and wish to ask your support during this campaign and on election day.

I am a Conservative believing in this party's principle of orderly progress without extravagance. I do not believe it is necessary for the people of British Columbia to be the highest taxed people in Canada.

With your support, I will fight for the following:

1. Economy in Government.
2. Protection of the Rights of the Small Lumberman and Logger, Assuring a Future for This Industry and Its Employees.
3. Fair Treatment, Freedom from Political Interference and Better Salaries for Our Civil Servants.

ART IN REVIEW

Gallery Curator Pays Tribute To Publishing Friend of Arts

What follows here is in the nature of a postscript, as technically this column ceased to exist as of last Saturday. Growing pressures on gallery administration, combined with reasons of health, have at last brought relief to those patient and polite readers who have done weekly pennance by struggling through it off and on these past three years.

But before signing off completely I want to say a word or two that could hardly be said while still in the employ of this newspaper—something so unseemly in fact that it was with difficulty that I persuaded our modest publisher to let me say it.

Except in the case of a few big metropolitan dailies it used to be the honored tradition on this continent for newspapers to mention the arts mainly when they brought forth a scandal. If a regular review chanced to find its way into the columns of a paper, it classically originated from an interview which ran as follows:

Editor: What kind of work have you done?

Reporter: Well, I've covered baseball, the police courts, and filled in for the financial editor.

Editor: Fine. You'll do. Tomorrow you start as our art critic.

With this background in mind let us look at the activities of a certain newspaper in this city.

When Miss Sara Spencer offered her Moss street home as a gallery for the city, this newspaper at once championed its cause, bringing its editorial guns to bear on a city council reluctant to accept the gift.

COLIN GRAHAM

In the ensuing five years the paper devoted more than a score of editorials to the gallery cause, taking the lead in the recurring battle for civic grants for both the gallery and the symphony.

When the same newspaper brought Sir Edmund Hillary to talk about Everest at the arena, it was the art gallery that received the proceeds. It was the gallery, too, which received the proceeds when the paper cooperated in bringing this summer's Mexican show to the city.

CRUCIAL FACTOR

It is no exaggeration to say that the vigorous support of this paper has been a crucial factor in the gallery's struggle for survival and its establishment on its present solid foundation.

Victoria artists, too, have good reason to be grateful to this same paper, which has set an example by giving space to murals in its offices, by taking on their cause in its Saturday arts page, by helping native carvers over a fallow period in their employment, and in general by giving copious space in its news colums to the activities and achievements of local artists.

When, in short, I tell visiting curators and artists about the kind of support the arts get from the Victoria Daily Times and its always helpful staff, a greenish tinge spreads over their countenances.

It appears that you will not find the like of it anywhere else in Canada. It is just our good luck, in fact, that we have in our genial publisher, Stuart Keate, one of the warmest and staunchest friends the arts have ever had in this country.

I must apologize for saying this about him in his own paper. But the above facts needed repeating for we are too apt to take these good things for granted.

Music of Berlioz Gains Popularity

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A fine collection of Hector Berlioz overtures performed by the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra with Sir Thomas Beecham conducting is now available on a Columbia record (ML5054).

The record includes the Roman Carnival, King Lear, the Corsair, Les Francs - Juges and Waverley overtures. The entire collection makes an enjoyable program and should prove popular with the devotees of Berlioz.

Davy

The outstanding feature of the program is Beecham's version of these overtures. The conductor's performance is sparkling and his readings on a high level. Beecham is one man who really understands the composer and can interpret his music.

As for the music of Berlioz, one of the most controversial composers of the 19th century, it is gaining in popularity, particularly in England and in the United States. The man who wrote the "Damnation of Faust" and the Symphony Funebre and Triumphal, containing some of the world's most stirring and idylic music, is coming into his own.

Meanwhile, Epic has come out with a record "Serenades for Strings" designed to satisfy anyone who likes music, classical or otherwise. The disc features the world's best-loved melodies, such as "Greensleeves," Massenet's "Meditation de Thais" and selections from Tchaikovsky's tuneful "Serenade in C Major."

In all there are 10 selections, performed by the Boyd Neel Orchestra with Cedric Dumont conducting.

Serenades have an interesting history. While the music was primarily designed to be complimentary or diverting, some forms were written as dinner music. As early as the 13th century it was realized that music assisted the digestive system.

Look out for Columbia's release of Puccini's "La Boheme" featuring Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra. The disc is destined to make a hit.

POPS LIBRARY — Canadian artist Adam Timoon who has appeared on "Cross Canada Hit Parade" makes his debut on a Columbia disc "Too Bad," a rock and roll number. "Rpeat After Me" is another of his releases.

PLATTER CHATTER—"Clay Idol," a ballad with a rock-n-roll twist, should establish Betty Johnson (Bally Records) as the female singing find of the year . . . Pearl Bailey's sense of humor shows up in her Mercury recording of "I Can't Rock and Roll to Save My Soul." She doesn't need R&R . . . Dick Hyman, who has distinguished himself as one of the country's best instrumentalists and who helped make "Moritat" one of the year's best numbers, puts a Dixie beat in his "One Finger Piano" (M-G-M).

TOPS IN POPS — "Peachy Peachy" by Rosemary Clooney (Columbia) "Please Be Gentle With Me" by Jean Martin (Unique), "In the Middle of the House" by Vaughn Monroe (RCA-Victor).

Best piano number—"Are You From Dixie?" a rollicking oldtimer given new enthusiasm by Del Wood (RCA Victor).

Best revival—"Bei Mir Bist du Schon," by the Crew Cuts (Mercury). This is a remake of the number that made the Andrew Sisters one of the most important groups of the 1940s.

Jo Mielziner has signed Fernando Lamas to play the leading male role opposite Ethel Merman in "Happy Hunting," the Lindsay-Crouse musical comedy which is due on Broadway Dec. 6 after engagements in Philadelphia and Boston.

This will be Lamas' first appearance on Broadway. The motion picture star was Argentina's leading actor when he was brought to this country to appear in a series of motion picture hits which included "The Girl Rush" and "The Merry Widow."

Victoria Choral Society Appeals For New Members

Many clubs will be resuming their activities this September, among them the Victoria Choral Society, now appealing for new members. This choir embraces all religious denominations and is led by Mr. Graham Steed.

The first practice will be held at Christ Church Memorial Hall, Tuesday, Sept. 11, at 7.30 p.m. Because of public demand it has been decided to present Handel's "Messiah" in mid-December.

The principal work for the second half of the season has not yet been selected. It is likely to be one which has not yet been performed in Victoria.

To Meet Thursday St. Luke's Players

First meeting of the season will be held by the St. Luke's Players, Thursday next in St. Luke's Hall, Cedar Hill Cross Road.

Anyone interested in acting or backstage work is invited to join the organization. Commander H. Luke, president, will show colored films of last season's productions. Refreshments will be served.

(BB to A "THE AMBASSADOR'S DAUGHTER" (Odeon) — United Artists' comedy "The Ambassador's Daughter" is a gay, fluffy, sometimes draggy affair. But it's worth the price of admission to watch Olivia de Havilland prove that in addition to being a fine dramatic actress she is an accomplished comedienne as well.

Two-times Academy Award winner ("To Each His Own," 1946; "The Heiress," 1949) Miss de Havilland waltzes out of the Snake Pit, so to speak, to present a thoroughly charming and captivating picture of an ambassador's daughter who is mistaken for a Dior fashion model by a GI serving in Paris.

Produced, written and directed by Norman Krasna the play is risque in intent but some of the scenes between Miss de Havilland and John ("Teahouse of the August Moon") Forsythe might have been cut a bit to hurry up the business of bringing the plot to a clean-cut and logical solution.

However, there are plenty of funny scenes and incidents, such as when Forsythe's GI sidekick Tommy Noonan is caught on the window ledge in his shorts by embassy guards. The Technicolor photography of Michel Kelber is excellent and the Paris backdrop lends enchantment.

THERE ARE some familiar faces that veteran movie-goers will be interested to see again. Myrna Loy, once voted the world's most perfect wife while playing with William Powell in the "Thin Man" series, back in the early 30s, is nicely fitted to the role of wife to Senator Adolphe Menjou. The late Edward Arnold doubtless would have enjoyed seeing his last picture, a far cry from his "Diamond Jim Brady" days, technically at least.

But in the end it is Miss de Havilland's picture. It is she who makes one think that the whole thing is believable and therein lies her talent.

If you're looking for a picture to cheer you up and take you out of the drabness of the work-a-day world, "The Ambassador's Daughter" should fill the bill nicely.

SCOTT'S BOOK TALK

'Bad' Women, Fiction Writer's Bread and Butter It Appears

It is probably true, as one school of gallantry insists, that there is no such thing as a "bad" woman. However, gallantry aside, it must be admitted that there are the odd few who are hard to get along with and who even may be unfaithful to their husbands and sweethearts. Such women, of course, are the very stuff of fiction and many a writer would never have achieved name and fame without them.

Scott

Two such women have cropped up in the new books which are coming out at a great clip these days. These two are by no means the usual type found in what might be called triangular romances. This pair make highly intriguing, if not altogether pleasant, reading.

Hilda Manning is the name of the book and the name of the heroine in Allan Seager's latest. Now Hilda is a strange girl. Rustic, untutored, indeed almost bovine. Hilda has that quality which each age gives its own particular name. She is the kind of girl who can turn into a gas station to get the tank filled up and the gent who runs the station will close it up, borrow $1,000 and follow her half way across a continent. In fact, that is one of the things which happens in this book, and all because Hilda had this peculiar something which affected men that way. Disappointingly enough, author Seager never does describe just what it was that Hilda had. I assume that he considers that any red-blooded man will know without being told, but what about the lady readers? I suspect that they might very well be interested in a description of this devastating allure of Hilda Manning's.

Anyway, using this strange power over men as its basis, this novel winds through a series of rather tawdry scenes which are designed to give us both insight into and sympathy for such girls as Hilda Manning.

Somehow this most interesting project does not come off. The narrative line is strong and there is no trouble with the events themselves. One sees Hilda married to an older man, another becoming infatuated, the older man sickening and then suddenly dying only to leave Hilda free to turn down the faithful suitor. And so it goes as Hilda runs away, collects men, and then returns. During all this, she commits a monstrous crime but the author allows her to get away with it. I'm not sure whether because he thought she was morally right or because of that tremendous appeal.

It's just such confusion as this which weaken Hilda Manning and it's too bad because it is a most interesting theme—for the male side of the readership anyway.

The other heroine who comes a cropper this week is Constance Turner, who plays the feminine lead in H. E. Bates' The Sleepless Moon. Constance does not have the magical allure of Hilda Manning. She is just an innocent girl who married the wrong man, finds solace in the arms of another and—get this—pays the price.

But H. E. Bates is a very different kind of author than Allan Seager. There are few writers of fiction who can handle the delicate nuances of the human situation for greater effect than Bates.

The Sleepless Moon proves this point. The author takes the view that infidelity in marriage is a great tragedy. Using only the ordinary mundane counters of such a situation he spins a yarn which becomes increasingly oppressive as it works its way through a tangled web of inconsequential events. He does not rely on spectacular happenings to hold his reader; rather he takes us through the minute torment of the frustrated heart as it is eked out in each dull moment of each grey day.

This is a powerful piece of writing and a very subtle one and, strangely enough, it answers more of the questions that such a situation raises, than the flashy performance of Allan Seager.

Politics, Poetry Filling Life Of Distinguished Victorian

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Politics and poetry; it sounds an unlikely combination, but in that order they have absorbed the full attention of former Victorian, Phyllis Webb, at present spending a long contemplative vacation in her home town.

Before she left Victoria after graduation from the University of British Columbia, to go to Montreal, Phyllis Webb's claim to fame lay in her candidature on the CCF ticket in a B.C. election when she campaigned vigorously and with telling effect.

Today she is better and more widely known for her poetic and essayist's contributions to Canadian literature and her critical and other broadcasts over CBC.

She has been seen on TV in the interview type program, "Tabloid," from Toronto and has appeared on a "Fighting Words" panel with Clyde Gilmour and Morley Callaghan.

Her vivid interest in people and events in Canada and her astute mind makes continued interest in politics inevitable. However she does not contemplate returning to active participation. As a creative writer she feels personal involvement is unwise.

"Silence and solitude are essential for the writer," she points out. "A factor that puts the creative writer and the active politician poles apart."

In order to gain more time for the kind of silent meditation that produces books of poems like her recently published "Even Your Right Eye," Miss Webb decided to give up her regular secretarial occupation and rely on free-lancing.

This means that she does free lance secretarial work and radio broadcasting. She has been heard on the analytical CBC program, "Critically Speaking" on several occasions. Book reviews and essays are among other published work of this Canadian poet.

PHYLLIS WEBB

In the immediate future, she is to have work included in the Oxford Book of Verse and in a new anthology of Canadian poetry.

On September 5, dark-eyed Phyllis Webb with her low-pitched musical voice and arresting personality, will be seen on local TV screens, when she appears on CBUT's "Almanac."

When she leaves Victoria next month, after spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. Mary Webb, Central Avenue, she will be going back to Montreal, a city she loves and is getting to know, with special concentration on its dual nationality and bilingualism.

But, because travel too is one of the essentials for anyone following her craft—and especially one whose interests range so widely in all the arts and intellectual exercises of the human mind—Miss Webb is already planning a second foray on the European continent within a year or so. She had formerly spent a year in England where she worked as secretary at the London School of Economics.

It is possible that Miss Webb might have been a considerable asset in the field of politics if she had decided to pursue that career.

But it is even more certain that she will make valuable contributions to the equally important cause of Canadian literature as time goes by.

Strife Within Prison Walls

THE NINTH HOUR by Ben Benson, George J. McLeod, Toronto, 224 pages, $3.25.

For his first full-length novel outside the mystery field, Ben Benson has chosen a story of strife and tragedy inside a state penitentiary running along the lines of stories that have recently made the headlines.

Nine hours covers the period of "The Ninth Hour."

Without revealing too much of the plot, convicts, prison officials, hostages, state troopers, criminal psychopaths, newsmen, frightened relatives and friends are involved in an explosive story.

The tense situation is dramatically revealed by an author whose work has been bought for television and motion pictures and who, in 1954, had two of his books selected by The Saturday Review for their list of the Year's Best.

CREATIVE WRITING AWARDS

NEW YORK — The Rockefeller foundation today announced a grant of nearly $50,000 for four fellowships in Canadian creative writing.

The fellowships, to be used during the next three years, will enable young Canadian authors of poetry, fiction, drama or criticism to devote one year to the practice of their art free from any requirements of formal study or supervision.

Fellows will be selected by a committee of three English-speaking and two French-language members of the Canadian foundation.

The Canada foundation, whose purpose is the advancement of art and other cultural activities, already has received the grant from the Rockefeller foundation.

Also announced was a $6,000 grant to the McGill University, Montreal, for its research in human genetics under the direction of Dr. F. Clarke Fraser.

Adventure Story For Juveniles

"A DOG FOR DAVIE'S HILL," by Clare Bice; MacMillan.

Clare Bice has written a fast-moving adventure set in the misty sheeplands of Scotland, well designed to hold the attention of the younger readers at whom it is aimed.

Mr. Brice, who earlier wrote "Jory's Cove" and "Across Canada," also illustrates his own book. "A Dog for Davie's Hill" is the story of young Davie Matheson and a sheepdog named Fly—"a nice wee dog, but fearful thin."

Their adventures together, interwoven with a mysterious old tramp who told rousing stories of Bonnie Prince Charlie and Sandy Big Alec, the village villain, are interestingly told against an authentic background.

"Nightmare" — By Cornell Woolrich (Dodd, Mead). Half-dozen assorted yarns make up this auto-anthology by skilled performer; psychological factors are stressed.

An educational system isn't worth a great deal if it teaches young people how to make a living and doesn't teach them how to live.

'UNWITTING ERROR'

YOUNG MEN SO DARING; Fur Traders Who Carried the Frontier West, by Vera Kelsey. Bobbs-Merrill Co., Inc. Indianapolis, 1956. McClelland & Stewart Ltd., Toronto, 1956. $3.25.

Winnipeg-born Vera Kelsey is well-equipped to tell the story of the beginnings of the Oregon Trail, which is the subject of her latest book. She has been writing since her early college days, and has published books of various kinds, travel, history, mystery stories and juveniles.

Her present book will interest younger as well as more mature readers, as her style is racy, journalistic and easy to read.

Young Men So Daring is the story of four young, adventurous men, whose common interest lies in fur. Her heroes are Peter Pond, John Jacob Astor, Jim Bridger and the less well-known Manuel Lisa. These men little realized that, in satisfying their love of adventure and incidently their quest for riches, they would pave the way for the settlement of the western states.

Vera Kelsey tells very graphically and clearly the adventures of her four daring young men, and shows how each one plays his important part in the discovery and history of the west.

Peter Pond in his search for the western sea, inspired—through jealousy—the discoveries of Alexander Mackenzie. Manuel Lisa promoted trade and exploration along the Missouri. John Jacob Astor pushed his trading posts to Astoria and the west coast, while Jim Bridger, the mountain man, flourished in the mid-west and the Mormon country.

Miss Kelsey's theory is that each one of these men made one big mistake in his life, and through this unwitting error which, as she says "changed the whole course of their lives, they adventured and achieved."

Though the paths of these four men never crossed, and each worked independently in pursuit of the beaver, yet each explored sections of the route which led to the western sea. Later, these sections joined and made it possible for others to follow their route over one of the most famous of historic trails to Oregon.

"Riddle of a Lady"—By Anthony Gilbert (Random). British lawyer's light-o'-love fades out; Arthur Crook, crime hobbyist, looks into business. Heavily overcrowded.

Night Shoppers Jam Stores In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Evening shopping became a reality Friday night in downtown Vancouver.

Thousands of housewives jammed stores. In the streets, car drivers hunted for parking spots. Department store lots were jammed to capacity.

"We have been extremely busy tonight. I can say that Friday night shopping appears to be well accepted by the public," said a department store official.

Another manager said his firm's eight stores in Greater Vancouver had a "very busy" night considering competition from the Pacific National Exhibition.

Ex-Socred MLA Criticizes PGE

More Slides Feared By Tomlinson

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) —A Social Credit member of the British Columbia's last legislature Friday criticized the provincial government for the way it built the Squamish-North Vancouver extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

George Tomlinson, ex-MLA for North Vancouver, said at Deep Cove that the 40-mile addition to the publicly-owned line should have been "driven through rather than engineered through."

He added it was unfortunate that the first slide should occur on the inaugural run but predicted there would be many more rock slides.

Commenting on the railroad's future he said "It is going to be a source of trouble. They should have taken more time to build it."

Mr. Tomlinson, who was not re-nominated, is running as an independent. He pledged himself to carry out a "true Social Credit campaign" if re-elected.

"I believe the election was forced too quickly on the people," he said.

Mr.Tomlinson's running mate Stan Wilcox also spoke.

"I always took Mr. Bennett with a pinch of salt," he said. "He has not carried out a Social Credit program but sold out to vested interests and put a millstone around the neck of the public."

Mr. Wilcox said "The government, which was supposed to work for the people has become a class government which is continuously running to the barons of finance."

TORONTO (CP) — K. R. Thomson, executive vice-president of the Thomson Co. Ltd., publishers of the Thomson newspapers, has been elected president, the company announced Friday. He suceeds his father, Roy Thomson.

BOEING JET TANKER MAKES MAIDEN FLIGHT

SEATTLE (AP)—The first jet-powered tanker for the Strategic Air Command took its maiden flight Friday.

The 600-mile-an-hour plus KC-135 Stratotanker took off from the field at the Boeing Airplane Co. Renton plant where it was built. It landed an hour and 19 minutes later at Seattle's Boeing Field.

It is the first jet tanker-transport to come off a Western Hemisphere production line. It is modeled after the 707 Prototype which has been flying for two years and "cruised" across the nation from Seattle to Washington, D.C., non-stop at a 592-mile-an-hour average.

Ike Will Let Adlai See His Dispatches

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today President Eisenhower will formally offer Adlai Stevenson, his Democratic opponent, intelligence reports on foreign affairs.

Press secretary James C. Haggerty told newspaper men he expects the offer will be made next week.

Reporters had asked Hagerty about a statement by Stevenson at a press conference in Chicago Friday that he would "welcome such an offer very much."

Similar offers have been made in the past to avoid harm to national security through bitter partisan conflict in the presidential campaign, and to provide continuity in the conduct of foreign affairs in the event of a change in administration.

"Of course," Hagerty replied today when asked whether Eisenhower would make such an offer to Stevenson. "The president has always expected to offer this. I would expect that a formal offer will be made next week."

Tug Saves Two After Lions Gate Collision

VANCOUVER (CP)—A tugboat skipper and the crew of a train barge teamed together early today to save two men whose 40-foot schooner was sunk in a collision with the barge.

John Fournier, 23, and Richard Childs, 61, were coming into Vancouver harbor in Mr. Fournier's two-masted schooner, the Crosswind, when it grazed the bow of the train-barge.

The two men leaped into the chill waters as the yacht was pushed under the surface by the prow of the barge.

The crew members of the barge threw flares into the water to mark the yatchmen's position as the 100-foot tug turned towards them.

Winds gusting to 45 miles an hour carried the men and the flares under Lions Gate Bridge and into the harbor.

Captain Norm Beazley of the tug Point Ellis said, "We'd never have seen them if it hadn't been for the flares. It was really boiling out there."

Sell-Off Cost Wall Street $4 Billions

By ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UP) — Stocks made a rousing comeback in the Friday session this week after four straight days of decline had hacked $4,000,000,000 from the valuation of all listed shares.

The Friday rally restored half of that loss with United Aircraft the outstanding feature on a $6 gain and the steel group soaring on outlook for record business the remainder of the year.

Timid bulls sold early in the week on Labor Day jitters. The main body of investors held their stocks. On Friday the bears, just as much afraid of the post-Labor Day markets as the bulls, did some short covering.

Adverse factors were unchanged from last week, namely Suez, tight money, and a failure of rails to confirm the industrial advance.

Tight money this week brought some rate increases and started a move of savings banks to increase their interest to depositors. This, it was said, might bring in more savings that eventually might help finance the industrial expansion program.

LITTLE TRADING

The feature of the week was the lack of volume. Sales totaled a mere 8,032,353 shares, smallest since the week ended June 22 when the market had a few shivers as the steel strike approached. In the previous week the total turnover was 8,892,795 shares.

Daily volume averaged a mere 1,606,470 shares, against 1,778,559 shares a week ago.

Despite the rally Friday, the market closed lower on the week. Industrials finished at 502.04, off 5.87 points after touching a reaction low at 495.96. Rails touched 158.26 and closed at 160.65 off 2.01. Utilities, the best performers averagewise, lost only 0.07 to close at 68.63. The average of the 65 stocks closed the week at 176.62 off 1.74 from the previous week and up more than 2 points from the low.

Business news contained several favorable items—a rise to around 97 per cent in steel operations and a sharp rise to more than $600,000,000 in heavy construction awards. Auto output fell again but the outlook was for early production of new 1957 models.

DIVIDENDS HELP

Despite the sell-off several issues managed to rise on the week. Curtiss-Wright shares were up more than 2 on an increased dividend. The same type of news lifted Granite City Steel by 4½ points.

Others to show gains included Bendix Aviation, Boeing Airplane, Burroughs, U.S. Steel, Newport News Shipbuilding, Electric Storage Battery, Emerson Electric and American Natural Gas.

The losers included Alcoa off 5½, Santa Fe off 6¼, Du Pont off 4½, Continental Oil off 5½, Gulf Oil off 3⅞, Magna Copper off 3¼, National Gypsum off 4¾, Park & Tilford off 5½, Trane off 3, and Union Carbide off 4⅛.

Of the 1,367 issues traded 316 advanced, 872 declined and 179 were unchanged. There were 83 new highs and 183 new lows.

THE CASE OF THE SLIPPED DISCUS

Red Newspaper Bucks Kremlin In Storm Over Nina's Chapeaux

BY EDWIN SHANKE

LONDON (AP) — A diplomatic storm over a Soviet discus thrower named Nina and five frilly hats almost blew the Suez crisis right into the background here today.

The affair even obscured the normal Kremlin line of the Communist newspaper Daily Worker, which found itself agreeing with some arch-Conservative papers in ticking off the Russians.

The story, which the press has dubbed the "case of the slipped discus," began Wednesday with the arrest on a shoplifting charge of Russia's red-haired Nina Ponomarova, winner of an Olympic gold medal in 1952.

Five feathery little hats in salmon, emerald, royal blue, lilac and rose pink, were involved.

CHARGE "BLACKMAIL"

It resulted in the Russians yelling "blackmail" and "dirty provocation" and pulling their entire team of 60 from a Soviet-British track meet scheduled for White City Stadium Friday night.

Nina, who jumped the £5 bail posted by a Soviet Embassy official, disappeared. Police kept watch for her at seaports and airfields.

"She is in London of course," said a Russian Embassy official, discounting rumors that she had been spirited aboard a Soviet ship bound for Leningrad.

"She has lots of money," he added. "She could buy 100 hats."

The case has aroused decided editorial views in the British press.

"Why were the Russians so stupid?" asks the mass-circulation Daily Mirror.

The Daily Sketch calls the affair "the great boob over Nina's hats," and says the British foreign office, by lack of imagination and sense of humor, has allowed the case to grow into the "stature of a major crisis."

Under the heading, "wrong step," the Daily Worker says the Soviet decision to quit the track meet was "in every way regrettable . . . for if there was provocation that is what provocateurs were aiming at."

The Daily Telegraph asks if Russian Embassy officials "imagined Miss Ponomarova would be executed or flung into a dungeon at the Tower?" and added: "The Russians understand no system of justice but their own."

MOSTEST AND LEASTEST — The Boeing B-52 Stratofortress jet bomber, above, and the Cessna T-37 jet trainer in front of it represent the largest and smallest jet aircraft being produced for the U.S. Air Force. The T-37 carries a student and instructor side by side, travels about 400 miles per hour, and weighs 6,100 pounds when loaded. In sharp contrast, the B-52 carries a six-man crew, has a top speed of 650 miles per hour, weighs 400,000 pounds.

TORONTO MARKET'S WEEK

Buyers Vamoose —482 Stocks Slump

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Strong rallies in the final session averted one of the year's sharpest declines on the stock markets this week.

The markets were headed for their worst setback since President Eisenhower's second illness three months ago until the week's only appreciable buying wave regained half the losses taken during the first four sessions.

A feature of the week was the slow trading pace. Volumes reached their lightest marks of the year at the three exchanges.

New York set the trend in each session and the Canadian markets at Toronto and Montreal followed suit.

NO BUYIN G

Brokers said the reason for the downward trend wasn't because of selling orders but rather because of a lack of buying. Dealers apparently adopted a wait-and-see attitude, keeping a sharp watch on international developments.

The industrial index at Toronto lost about four points while western oils dropped 6¾ points and base metals almost four points. The number of issues which declined was more than twice the number which advanced. Of 825 issues traded, 482 declined, 167 advanced and 176 were unchanged.

Losses in industrials ranged to almost $5. Imperial bank lost $4.87½ while Aluminium, Eddy Paper, Inglis and Trans Mountain were down more than $3. Gains were limited to a range of about $1 or less.

Noranda declined $2.25 in senior base metals and Falconbridge dipped $1 but other issues were virtually unchanged.

Western oil losses outnumbered gains but the price range was the same on both sides.

PRICES DON'T FAZE U.S.

Buying Binge Ready to Roar

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP) — United States business got set this week for a new consumer buying binge that promised to shatter all existing records.

With one notable exception, all the elements for a record fall and winter spending spree were there.

There was, or soon would be, plenty of attractive new merchandise for folks to spend their incomes on — gleaming new 1957 automobiles with lower lines and higher horsepower, restyled home furnishings that would make existing pieces look drab and out-of-date, new appliances, new color television sets, new styles in apparel.

The one element lacking was an abundance of cheap and easy credit.

Already voices could be heard warning that the expected boom in 1957 automobiles might get tangled up in the money - credit squeeze. This week several auto-finance companies served notice that financing charges are going up.

Other costs went up this week. The price of prime steers at Chicago inched to a 1956 high of $31.15 a hundred pounds. General Electric and Philco boosted prices of their TV sets; Admiral slapped higher price tags on its refrigerators and freezers.

Steel scrap brokers demanded a record price of nearly $60 a ton—double the 1954 price.

BUSINESS MIXED

As business headed into the long Labor Day weekend, major economic indicators were thoroughly mixed.

The stock market, obviously worried about "tight money" at home and new uncertainties in the Suez Canal dispute, drifted lower in aimless fashion. But at week's end it bounced back smartly for the best gain on average since early June.

Steel production pushed up to 96.5 per cent of capacity—highest operating rate since before the industry-wide July strike.

SPEED CUT ON MALAHAT CONTINUES

A 35-miles-an-hour speed limit on newly-paved portions of the Malahat highway is still in effect, although paving crews may not be working, RCMP warns.

Several motorists were convicted and fined in Colwood court Friday for speeding along the rebuilt stretch of highway.

Pilotage Rescues Two as Boat Sinks

A Victoria man and his 13-year-old daughter were saved by B.C. Pilotage launchmen early this morning, shortly before their 32-foot troller sank off the Dallas Road waterfront.

The troller broke down about midnight when 40 mile an hour winds sent seas dashing inboard, flooded the ignition, and killed the engine.

Owner of the troller, the Mable L, is CPO John Laing, 268 Zealous Crescent. With him was his daughter Susan.

"We were in deep trouble," CPO Laing said today. "We were wallowing helplessly, without power."

To summon aid, he filled a wax-lined, wooden butter box with old clothing, doused it in gasoline, lit it and set it afloat.

Nearly Swamped by Train Ferry

The Mable L. was nearly swamped when the CNR car ferry Canora spotted the improvised flare and came alongside to render assistance.

The big ferry was unable to take the small troller in tow, and messaged air-sea rescue centre in Vancouver for additional aid.

Air-sea rescue notified Gordon Head wireless, which in turn called the B.C. pilotage office on Dallas road.

B.C. Pilot No. 2 was immediately sent out, with launchmen Wally Tribe and Percy Pike in charge. They reached the Conora and the stricken troller at 12.30 a.m., between Clover Point and Trial Island, and took the fishboat in tow.

The weather worsened while the tow was being carried out, and the Mable L continued to ship water. Just inside the breakwater, headed for the pilotage wharf, the troller finally went under the waves.

It sank in about 40 feet of water. Today a lumber "hyster" towed it into shallower water.

There is no insurance on the boat. It was given CPO Laing by his father, and the navy man was bringing it here from Vancouver to give it a refit.

CPO Laing was formerly in HMCS Ontario, is now on leave preparatory to joining HMCS Naden.

Smile never dimmed

Well-Loved Dolly Wilson Dies of Cancer

By ELIZABETH FORBES
Times Women's Editor

Dolly Wilson is dead. And hundreds of her friends the world round will mourn. She died in the Vancouver General Hospital this morning of cancer.

Stricken with the dread disease several years ago when she was living in Victoria, Mrs. Wilson refused to let it spoil her life.

She did move to Vancouver to be near her son, Dr. Roger Wilson, but whenever there was something in this city that she wanted to attend, she boarded a plane with a companion and returned for the occasion.

Even in this last year, when it was getting increasingly hard for her to move about, she attended functions at Government House and was in the Empress Hotel for the CPR Golf Tournament that she had assisted with so many times in former years.

Wherever she appeared she held her own receiving line as old friends crowded around her.

DAUGHTER OF PIONEERS

Mrs. Charles Wilson, the former Miss Dorothy Sehl (Dolly, as she loved to be called), was the daughter of pioneer residents of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sehl. She was educated at St. Ann's Academy and in 1906 married Charles E. Wilson, son of another pioneer, William Wilson, who founded the firm of W. & J. Wilson, one of the first business houses in Victoria. Mr. Wilson predeceased her some years ago.

With a lovely singing voice, Mrs. Wilson often sang in charity concerts in her youth and was a member of the choirs of St. Andrew's Cathedral and Our Lady of Lourdes Church. She was also a member of the Ladies' Musical Club here. She was first secretary of the Women's Canadian Club when it was organized in 1909 and for many years was a member of the IODE. She also belonged to the St. John Ambulance and was active as a VAD in the First World War.

GOLFER, TOO

Golf was another of her activities. She was captain of the Victoria Golf Club ladies' division for a term and is a life member of the Colwood Golf Club. When the CPR golf tournaments were first inaugurated in 1930 she became the annual tournament hostess, and held that title until she moved to Vancouver.

It is however in the world of amateur theatricals and as an organizer par excellence, that Dolly Wilson will be most remembered. When Hon. E. W. Humber was lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, Mrs. Wilson was called upon to arrange garden parties at Government House where she raised thousands of dollars for the Red Cross. She also arranged extravagant floor shows for the Empress Hotel tournaments

After her husband died, Mrs. Wilson became a world traveler and circled the globe on several tours. She took up wood carving and furniture making and the art of creating beauty from copper, pewter and silver. Many of the articles she created she gave away for she had a generous heart.

She leaves two sons, Eilbeck B. Wilson and Dr. Roger Wilson, both of Vancouver; a daughter, Mrs. Dennis Harris, also in Vancouver; one sister, Mrs. Emma Dottridge of London, Eng.; two brothers, Frank J. Sehl and Herman Sehl in Victoria. Prayers will be offered in Our Lady of Lourdes Church on Wednesday, Sept 5 at 9 p.m., and requiem mass will be sung Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery.

Holiday Weekend Events Offer Something for All

Perfect weather and one of the largest entry lists in its 88-year history marked the opening today of the annual Saanichton fair, top attraction on a long list of Labor Day weekend attractions.

Fair secretary Arthur Howe said interest in every competition class with the exception of flowers was well above that of a year ago.

The fair program got under way this morning with eliminations in the western riding events, when more than 100 horses and their riders were entered.

4-H Club judging classes also got under way this morning and were continuing most of the day. One of the outstanding features of this event was the participation of the Sannichton 4-H goat club, only 4-H goat club in Canada.

Attendance was good, but fair officials expect at least 10,000 Monday, when highland dancing, cattle judging, English riding events, and the static exhibits will be the major attractions.

Also vying for attention in the Saanich area was the giant Saanich Golden Jubilee celebration at Beaver Lake, culmination of months of work by Saanich public servants.

Opening event of the municipality's birthday party was the teenagers' mass swim from Elk Lake to Beaver Lake. The official opening took place at 2 p.m., and the rest of the afternoon was devoted to a band concert, diving competitions, frogmen display, talent show, and dancing in the evening.

LOGGERS' SPORTS

The three-day Comox fall fair at Courtenay closes today with the staging of the Pacific Northwest loggers' championship sports, that started this morning and will continue throughout the day.

This evening in Victoria will see stock car drivers racing at Western Speedway, starting at 7.30 p.m.

Fishermen will dominate the sport scene Sunday at the Cowichan Bay salmon derby, Salmon Club derby at Port Angeles, and Esquimalt Cerebral Palsy coho derby, to continue into Monday.

Other main attraction on the Island will be the eight-team baseball tournament at Courtenay with $1,000 at stake in prizes. Four games will be played Sunday, and finals will be held Monday at Lewis Park. Teams are from Vancouver, Nanaimo, Alberni, Campbell River, Cumberland and Courtenay, with Victoria's entry being the Farmer Construction nine.

Monday will be the big day at the Saanichton fair, when Victorians by the thousand will meet their rural neighbors and see first-hand the livestock and farm produce that has made the Saanich peninsula famous.

Highland dancing will get under way at noon with a program of 20 events. Horse breed class competition will start at 10.30 a.m., and will be followed by English saddle classes at the large ring in the top field. The program lists 10 events for children and adults.

CATTLE JUDGING

Other chief attraction will be the cattle judging that will continue through the afternoon in three rings.

BETWEEN TIMES
By
Judy Boots Streak

Well I am here to tell you I have nothing but admiration for the State of Washington and especially for the state parks of the State of Washington.

And in case you are wondering who I am to be going around having nothing but admiration why I am Judy Boots Streak the female-type dog who lives at the Old Man's House and sometimes when the Old Man can think of an excuse why I have to write his column for him.

And the excuse the Old Man has thought up is, Monday is Labor Day, and the Old Man is taking today off so he can rest up and be ready to Labor on Labor Day although I think this is a pretty poor excuse, don't you?

But if I wish to earn my bed and bones I had better not argue with the Old Man, now where was I? oh, yes, I was telling you I have nothing but admiration for the state parks in the State of Washington.

In the Washington state parks, discrimination has been wiped out.

The booklets which tell you all about the Washington state parks contain a very important sentence—a sentence which strikes a blow for equal rights.

This sentence says "Dogs and cats must be on leash."

You see what I mean for once the poor cat is recognized as a four footed personality and is accorded equal privileges with the dog, namely to be on leash and as a long-time supporter of equal rights for cats I think this is a very good thing indeed.

Washington state parks are not like some of the parks we have around here where the signs say "dogs must be on leash" but there is no mention of cats, cats are completely neglected.

So I am thinking seriously of getting a tent for the Old Man and taking him with me to a Washington state park, where he can live happily ever after carrying on a campaign for an even greater privilege for cats, namely the privilege of buying a license and wearing it jingle-jangle on his collar.

Hurray for the Washington state parks but let us press onward to even greater things, I thank you.

ARLENE JOHNSTON
. . . Cowichan queen

Willows Beach, in Oak Bay will be the scene of the annual Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association annual regatta, sponsored this year by Oak Bay municipality as one of the Golden Jubilee events.

Entries have been received from Vancouver Island and mainland points for the regatta, last sanctioned meet of the season for B.C. Fourteen races are scheduled.

Stock car racers will begin time trials at Western Speedway; Monday, at 2 p.m., and feature of the day will be the Gold Cup race.

CROWNING

Village of Lake Cowichan, on Cowichan Lake, will start its annual celebration Monday with the crowning of Arlene Johnston, 17, as Lady of the Lake. She will be crowned by her predecessor, Heather McDonald, of Cayeuse, and her attendants will be Anne Leach and Marilyn Waite.

Colin Cameron, MP for Nanaimo, and Ernest Towle, chairman of the board of commissioners, will preside over the program, to include a costume and float parade, soap box derby, loggers' sports, water sports, track and field events, and a dance.

Scale Methods Under Fire From Snowsell

Practices followed in the woods rob the people of B.C. of "hundreds of thousands of dollars each year," CCF candidate Frank Snowsell charged at a meeting Friday in the Sidney K of P Hall.

B.C. Forest Products Ltd., the Saanich candidate said, is cutting on both land within its forest management licence and on former E & N Railway lands.

"Government acting scalers, paid by the company, are instructed to reduce the scale of logs cut on the publicly-owned land and to pad the scale of logs cut on E & N land," he said. "They do this because the stumpage paid on timber cut on forest management licence land is much higher than royalties collected on timber from the E & N."

B.C. Forest Products allowable cut this year is 130,000,000 board feet on E & N land and 32,000,000 feet on crown land. A total of 11,000,000 feet is supposed to be available to small operators.

DISHONESTY?

"B.C. Forest Products has no small market operators employed in this licence," he said. "Could it be that the employment of small operators in this area would reveal dishonest scaling of the big company?"

"Government scalers checking the small operators would give a check on company scaling," he said. "It is fear that the report of the Sloan commission will reveal this robbery of the public treasury, going on with this knowledge, that is making Premier Bennett call an election before the Sloan report is made public."

Big Island Plant Under Picket Threat

About 1,000 construction workers and plant men could be idled by a picket line on Crown Zellerbach's deep sea wharf at Duncan Bay, a Victoria union officer said today.

Seafarers' International Union is planning action which may delay sailing of a freighter from the pulp mill operation to California with liquid wood pulp next week.

The ship is the Ss. Duncan Bay, operated by National Bulk Carriers, New York, under contract to Crown Zellerbach Corp.

"We certainly plan to take some action," union port agent Norman Cunningham said in Vancouver, "but at this stage I do not want to divulge what we plan to do."

The ship is under Liberian registry and carries a mixed crew, 34 of whom are Okinawans. Most of the rest are from the British West Indies.

Mr. Cunningham said the ship is due at Duncan Bay from Japan Tuesday and is scheduled to take a cargo of pulp to Antioch, Calif.

The entire Duncan Bay project is organized, the Victoria union man said, and if an SIU picket were established it would be honored by all workers, about 700 of them on construction.

Tory Chisholm, Noted Orator, Won't Make Speech in Campaign

Dr. Brock Chisholm, one of Canada's most noted public speakers, will make no speeches during his campaign as Progressive Conservative candidate for Esquimalt in the Sept. 19 provincial election.

"I think this policy is very sound at this stage of my political career," he said in accepting the nomination Friday night.

"I have no political experience at all."

Dr. Chisholm, former head of the World Health Organization and world-renowned psychiatrist, was unopposed for the nomination in his first bid in active politics.

He spoke to an audience of 30 persons in Colwood Community Hall.

P. W. deP. Taylor, Dr. Chisholm's campaign manager, said he would rely mostly on newspaper and radio advertising in place of public meetings.

"I will do my best for the good of the people of this community," Dr. Chisholm said.

"I have read the platform of the Progressive Conservatives of the province and find myself almost in complete agreement with it," he said.

Dr. Chisholm said he was convinced that in international fields almost everything that could be done to further peace is being done.

"It is the attitudes of people at home that dominate international fields.

"We all have to develop locally and become much more wide-minded. Then we will get a reflection in the international field that will indeed make for peace."

YOU SAID TO ME-

A Sunday message of help and comfort for those puzzled, depressed or low in spirit.

BY ETHEL TULL

You said to me, "One can't go around shouting about one's religion; it's a very private matter."

I wonder what you mean by "shouting"? If you mean emotionalism, I think you are right to mistrust that, but you may possibly feel that a dignified form of worship is all that is required of a Christian, and that personal witness by word of mouth is not necessary. May I try to show you why I think you are wrong? It is very important, because there must be many people around you who are in desperate need of your help.

I was once accused of being a sentimental Christian. This was not because I was emotional, but because I was unable to give honest help to another soul in need. When someone would confide her troubles to me, I would sympathize and try to make her feel better, where perhaps she needed to look into the situation with the help of the Holy Spirit and see that there was something in herself that must be treated drastically before help could come. I wanted to apply a poultice to the sore spot, when it needed to be cut right out by the hand of the great Surgeon of Souls. He could not get near because I was in the way with my weak, unguided sympathy.

One can never judge another, but absolute love means caring enough for the well-being of others to hold them to the best that it is possible for them to be, through the guidance of the Spirit. One can never be shocked by the revelation of sin in another life, for one knows too well the possibilities of evil in one's own heart, but one can often help another by sharing how one has fallen in a similar manner, and how the power has been given to conquer a besetting sin. You see, religion cannot be a private matter, for the whole world must be won for Christ, and we have to learn to live so that the Spirit of God can give His message through us to those who have not yet learned to listen for His voice. "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me."

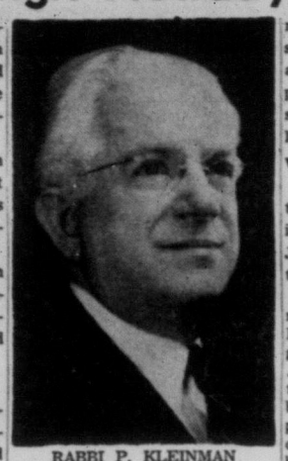
He organized and served as first president of the Pacific Northwest Region of the Rabbinical Assembly of America and has contributed many articles on Jewish thought to American newspapers.



RABBI P. KLEINMAN

Now rabbi emeritus of his congregation, he explains the Jewish New Year as "a period of days between the old and new years for reflection and stock taking."

"We need the 10 days for penitence, for serious contemplation, to give serious thought to the values and purposes of life, to pray to our Heavenly Father for guidance and direction in the New Year opening for us, to seek out new sources of Jewish loyalty, to search for new means to preserve and perpetuate our great Jewish people and its civilization," he said in a news release from Portland.

VISITED PALESTINE

Rabbi Kleinman, who travelled to Europe and Palestine in 1954, is convinced that a new spirit of Jewish dedication is sweeping through the world.

"There seems to be a determination among the children of Israel in all lands to stand together at last as one united people . . . united in the solemn resolution that never again shall Jews be a people of parasites and pariahs, never again shall the doors of Zion and Jerusalem be barred to us," he said.

Governor Sir John Harding today signed an order providing for the presence in Cyprus of "visiting forces" from the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon and France.

The order, made under the Visiting Forces Act, appeared in a special issue of the official Gazette and came into operation today.

This is the first time that the act has been put into operation in Cyprus. It follows Britain's approval for a French contingent to be based in Cyprus temporarily in view of the Suez crisis.

At almost the same moment, British authorities on Cyprus revealed that a series of bomb explosions damaged the closely-guarded Episkopi cantonment of the joint Middle East command headquarters early today.

Gasoline bombs set off a fire that was later extinguished. A sergeants' mess was destroyed and the roofs of two officers' messes were damaged. An unexploded time bomb and an unexploded gasoline bomb were found in the debris.

At Ottawa, Lt.-Gen. H. D.

Wheaton Sets New Mark To Win Elk Lake Swim

Excellent weather is expected for the Labor Day weekend, according to weatherman William Mackie of Gonzales Observatory. Sunshine will prevail, with light, cool winds and moderate temperatures. (See holiday story page 15).

Saanich Golden Jubilee perpetual trophy—top award to the fastest teen-aged lake swimmer in the district—was won today by Bob Wheaton, 14, a grade 10 student at Oak Bay High School. He lives at 661 Newport.

He back-stroked all the way with a record time of 50 minutes and 40 seconds. Hot on his trail and in second place was Doug Dickie, 15, last year's winner.

Bob beat the record set by Doug last year—52 minutes, 35 seconds. Doug's time today was 53 minutes, 50 seconds.

MONTY VANDEN

Twenty-six youngsters aged 14-16, battled across the two-mile course between Elk Lake's Happy land and Beaver Lake beach in the third flight which kept the winning of the top trophy in doubt to the last moment.

Sixty-eight youngsters kicked off this morning in the swim toward a brilliant array of 20 cups and other prizes.

First race of the three-wave swim saw 16-year-old Monty Vanden take an easy win with a time of 60 minutes and 30 seconds for the two-mile course.

First girl in the second race was Diane Jay, and first girl in the final wave was Gail Parker.

Winners in the second group were 11-year-old Ralph Mills, first, with a time of 69 minutes, 23 seconds; Keith Mulloy, 14, second, 71 minutes 34 seconds; Dennis Parnell, 13, third, 71 minutes 35 seconds. Only one of 17 starters in the under-13 failed to finish.

On stepping ashore each swimmer was led through a uniform guard of Eagles drill team and band members who saluted the youngsters.

'WHO NEEDS MONEY?'

B.C. Woman Refuses $50,000 Inheritance

VANCOUVER (CP)—A former Burnaby, B.C., woman who was left $50,000 by a long-lost brother doesn't want the money.

Mrs. Ida Mary Topham Lewis, 70, now of Haddenham, Buckinghamshire, said she doesn't need the money and isn't enthusiastic about the legacy.

Mrs. Lewis was the object of an intensive search in B.C. recently and was finally located in England. A brother in California bequeathed her the money

"What's $50,000 in pounds?" she asked the reporter who showed her the clippings. It's about £17,142.

She said she didn't need the money "and besides, the government would take a large part of it anyway."

Miss Pepsi Wins

DETROIT (UP)—"Miss Pepsi," owned by Roy Dossin of Detroit, whipped four other boats in the first heat of the classic Gold Cup powerboat race today.

"Miss Pepsi," made the first heat a walkaway by beating the second-place "Miss Thriftway," owned by William Rhodes of Seattle, by more than a mile. Miss Pepsi averaged 91.525 miles per hour over a course that was slightly rough.

LONDON (AP) — League champion Manchester United soared back to its old place at the top of the soccer standing today with a 3-0 home victory over Portsmouth.

Chill winds and driving rain kept crowds small again for the third straight Saturday, but the teams turned in some blazing stuff with Sunderland's 8-1 win over Charlton Athletic topping the list of monster scores.

Preston, without a point in four previous matches, slammed Cardiff City 6-0. Newly promoted Sheffield Wednesday hammered Newcastle 4-0. And Sheffield United, down in the second division and striving to get back, took a 6-1 away victory over Barnsley.

2nd Air Crash In Alaska Kills 11

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A United States Air Force B-50 weather plane crashed on a tiny island in the Susitna river in Alaska and exploded Friday. Ten of the crew were killed and the other is believed dead.

The island, 50 miles northwest of Anchorage, is so small that helicopters were forced to land on a mud bank a quarter mile away.

An air force spokesman said the plane apparently crashed downward instead of coming in at an angle.

The plane was from Elelson air force base, 26 miles from Fairbanks. Weather planes make routine flights over the north pole, the Aleutians and the Bering sea.

Horsemen Accept New Track Terms

The Sandown Park race meeting, cancelled Wednesday after a dispute between horse owners and the associatiosn over purse money, was rescheduled today.

The Ascot Jockey Club today completed arrangements with the horsemen for a two-week meeting at the suburban track near Sidney.

The meeting will open Sept. 15 and close Oct. 1.

Racing will be held daily except Sunday.

Last-minute negotiations started Friday resulted in the change of plan.

The minimum purse money of $500 per race remains the same as the Ascot Jockey Club previously offered the horsemen.

However, two co-features a day have been added. On Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, these will be worth $600; on Wednesdays $600 and $700, and on Saturdays $600 and $800.

The Ascot Jockey Club lost heavily on last year's meeting at Sandown; this year it is prepared to lose money again in order to preserve racing for Victoria.

A leading horse owner in Vancouver said today.:

"Victoria needs racing; it always was a good racing town, and I'm certain Victoria fans want to see racing again. I'm certain that this effort on the part of the Ascot Jockey Club and the horsemen will be appreciated."

Bloodshed Threatens in Negro Riots

(From AP and UP Dispatches)

CLINTON, Tenn.—Clinton officials today took steps to organize a "home guard" unit as another scheduled segregation rally tonight posed a threat of further mob action in protest of racial integration at the Clinton High School.

Mayor W. E. Lewallen of Clinton asked today for state reinforcements to help preserve peace in this town where businessmen sat in their darkened stores Friday night with guns across their knees as a huge and riotous crowd surged through the streets of Clinton.

Lewallen said that nothing has been heard from an appeal to the state for aid and added, "It's a hot potato and they don't want to touch it."

Tennessee's five pro-segregation organizations announced they will jointly sponsor the Clinton segregation rally tonight at the Anderson county courthouse. The principal speaker will be criminal court Judge Raulson Schoolfield of Chattanooga, who was an unsuccessful candidate for governor on a segregation platform.

Lawyer Buford Lewallen, son of the mayor, said a home guard would be organized this afternoon and would be on hand at the rally tonight.

'There's Going To Be Bloodshed'

Mayor Lewallen predicted today that "there's going to be bloodshed before the night is over" unless Clinton's small police force gets reinforcements.

"I've talked to everybody but the governor (who was reported unavailable today) and they've assured me that they are closer to this thing than we think they are," Lewallen said. "They said they are watching it very closely.

"But our people can't understand why this disturbance was allowed to go on, especially on a state highway, without some state action.

"Somebody's going to get hurt. Those boys that mobbed us are coming back and they're going to try to tear up this town."

Lewallen said it was "a miracle" there was not more extensive damage here last night.

Most of the pupils at Clinton High, which admitted 12 negroes this week, were reported by their school leaders to be ready to accept integration. But there were a number of holdouts. Apparently most of the teenagers in the crowd last night started out for a good time but then were swept into a frenzy by the super-charged situation.

Autos occupied by negroes were damaged but the occupants managed narrow escapes from demonstrators, heated to boiling point by a week of agitation from white citizens council leaders.

ONE NAME RECURS IN WILLS

Deaths of 29 Rich Widows 'Not Adequately Explained'

EASTBOURNE, England (UP)—Scotland Yard officials hinted today that they are on the trail of a definite suspect in the mysterious deaths of 30 wealthy women.

They said examination of more than 400 wills disclosed that the name of one man appeared in many of them, but they refused to announce his name.

Scotland Yard threw reinforcements of detectives into the hunt to fulfill a police prediction that enough evidence will be uncovered to make an arrest by the middle of next week.

All but one of the 30 deaths in question "are not adequately explained," Scotland Yard's Detective Superintendent Herbert Hannan said.

A well-known Sussex hypnotist was interviewed this week in an effort to learn if a man with hypnotic power could induce a person to make a will in his favor, and whether he could persuade that person to act in a way which would cause death, apparently by accident or natural causes.

Officials said the hypnotist demonstrated to them how persons could be put into such a state of hypnosis and that they could be made to "follow certain lines of action suggested to them."

The man will be flown to hospital in Seattle.

RCAF search and rescue units here were standing by to aid in the transfer if necessary.

Graham, chief of the general staff, said he had never heard of any plans for sending Canadian forces to Cyprus. Defence Minister Campney and his deputy, Frank R. Miller, were unavailable; they are touring NATO establishments in Europe.

Gen. Graham said he did not believe Governor Harding's order had any particular significance to Canada.

But Cramer added that the Australian army has not been placed on the alert over the Suez situation and no move has been made to cancel army leave.

dered mixing of races in the local high school has changed this peaceful Tennessee town into a place of racial tenseness and hatred.

Last Monday Clinton High became the first state - supported high school in Tennessee to end segregation when it admitted 12 Negro students along with about 750 whites.

The town's leaders agree that most of the trouble was stirred up by a fiery segregationist from Washington who never saw this town of 4,000 persons until last Sunday.

"Everything had been quiet until he arrived," said Sheriff Joe Owen. "Now we've got a pretty ugly situation on our hands."

He was talking of John Kasper, 26, executive secretary of the "Seaboard White Citizens' Council" of Washington.

"We will go on with our picketing and fight until we win," Kasper told a reporter. He promised to form a White Citizens' Council here, and since Monday, the school has been picketed, signs have been paraded bearing such legends as "Go home, coons," "Coon season open," and "Keep Negroes out."

Kasper conducted nightly meetings on the Anderson courthouse lawn, haranguing against integration and against local school and law-enforcement officials.

Over and over, he has repeated: "We must keep the Negroes out."

MANSFIELD, Tex. (UP) — A troubled quiet settled over Mansfield today and there seemed no immediate danger that violence would erupt over an attempt by six Negroes to enroll in an all-white high school.

The Negroes, armed with a court order, were to have enrolled Friday. But they were frightened away by more than 400 sullen whites who blocked off entrances to the school grounds and milled ominously about.

Gov. Allan Shivers ordered two Texas Rangers in for a look. He also instructed school officials to transfer out of the district any student, white or black, whose attendance could reasonably be calculated to incite violence.
